Turkish and Bulgarian plenipotentiaries have met at Abak-Tchikeui.

The Berlin Bourse is in a state of panic.

Greece has occupied Chios, an island in the Aegean Sea.

The third British battle squadron has returned to Malta from the East.

All Bulgarian regular troops have been withdrawn from Adrianople and sent to Chatalja.

Bulgarian infantry on Thursday entered a suburb of Adrianople, but were forced to retire.

Turkish troops have displayed desperate gallantry, and repulsed every attempt to hold Papastepe.

Bulgarian and Servian casualties around Adrianople are estimated to number 12,000.

Cholera is raging at Adrianople, and has appeared amongst the Servian besiegers.

Seven hundred Bulgarians are reported to be dying daily from cholera.

"We can hardly over-estimate the value of the work of these institutions," said his Excellency.

The South Coast mining trouble has not been settled.

Heavy rain has flooded the North Lyell mine. The water is within a few feet of the 700ft level.

The Royal Commission inquiring into the disaster will probably sit to-morrow.

The Federal Government does not favour departing from the principle of a separate Australian naval unit.

Extension of that principle, Mr. Fisher states, is in the best interests of the Empire.

The question of concentration, he added, would be determined by events.

The Parkes Municipal Council has protested against accused persons being placed in the dock during trial.

The altered plan is considered to be an ideal one for a large inland city.

THAT INEXPRESSIBLE SOMETHING!

Have you ever noticed, when you are looking at a "Tesla" portrait, that there is an "inexpressible something" about it that makes you say, "I like this photo!" ...... What is that "inexpressible something"? IT IS THIS: The combination of permanency, pleasing expression, effective posing, and artistic finish. It is these qualities and characteristics that invest TESLA PORTRAITURE with special value, and render it so universally popular. And yet our prices remain the lowest in the City. Ask us to quote you for any class of photograph, and we say, with confidence, that we, with our enormous resources, CANNOT BE APPROACHED BY ANYBODY, WHERE HIGH, SOLID QUALITY and MODERATE PRICES ARE IN QUESTION.

A GREAT RESPONSIBILITY.

The discussions on the Criminal Law Amendment Bill in the British Parliament brought the subject of that most dreadful evil of modern times, the white slave traffic, forcibly before all thinking people, and the matter has been very seriously considered by men and women who are interested in the welfare of the race. For the time has passed when "nice" women shut their eyes to such matters, and refused to know anything about them. The woman of to-day, with her broader outlook and her deeper knowledge of the fundamentals of law and life, realises that she is her sister's keeper. She recognises her responsibility to society, and she knows that it is her duty, as a citizen and as a human being, to understand the dangers that threaten her fellow-creatures, and to join in the fight against them. And so Englishwomen have been giving their most earnest and serious attention to this dreadful evil, which is spreading like a malignant growth throughout Europe and America. At a recent lecture, given at the Women's Institute in London, the lecturer expressed the opinion that any lasting good with regard to this question can only be achieved on economic lines. "To shirk our own personal responsibilities in the matter becomes an impossibility, if we regard the question from its economic standpoint," writes an Englishwoman, commenting on the lecture. "Low wages, long hours, standing in ill-ventilated shops from morning to night, the long trudge to shop or business backwards and forwards in all weathers, have their influence. 'I was just tired out,' is the excuse which is given time after time by girls in homes, where rescue work is undertaken. We are only too ready to acquiesce in this condition of affairs, forgetting that a client's personal influence and justifiable curiosity towards the work girls employed by the firm where she deals for her food, clothes, and other commodities, is far greater than she imagines. Timely investigation on her part, making her orders conditional to satisfactory proof of a fair wage, would count for much in improving the conditions under which they work."

This fact is being realised in America, too, for there the members of the Consumers' League refuse to buy or use any goods produced by sweated labour. In Australia, fortunately, women workers are not underpaid to the same extent that they are in the older lands; but still there are trades in which the wages paid are less than a living wage; and even when the pay is good, there are many girls and women working under conditions, the discomfort and unhappiness of which might drive an overstrained girl to desperate remedies.

The responsibility of the Australian woman is greater even than that of the English or American woman, for she has a direct voice in the legislation that arranges these things. Responsibility is the price we pay for our power, and it is the duty of every enfranchised woman to understand something of the conditions of life surrounding her less fortunate sisters. When the day of reckoning comes, ignorance will prove no excuse for the part her indifference may have played in a life's tragedy.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

In these days, when women take a part in all sorts of public matters, sitting on committees and joining in meetings, it is extraordinary that more attention is not paid to the art of public speaking. There are a number of Sydney women who are excellent speakers, but the majority of women say, "Oh, I'm too nervous to speak in public," make no effort to overcome that nervousness, and are content to sit silently through a discussion, or, if they are forced to speak, do so in a stumbling and halting fashion that is painful to their listeners. These women seem to think that the good speaker is born, not made, and that the art of addressing an audience is a gift.

Some people, both men and women, are naturally much more fluent in their speech than others, but with the great majority of successful orators their skill is the result of much study and effort. As Mrs. David pointed out last week in an address to the Girls' Club of the Pitt-street Congregational Church, there is no royal road to oratory, but success in this, as in all other arts, is the result of hard work. There must be many hours of preparation of what to say and practice of how to say it.

The speaker took first the question of "how to say it," beginning with deportment. As it is the aim of a lecturer to please, the attitude, facial expression, and gestures require thought, for many a good discourse is spoilt for the listeners by the awkward or ungraceful attitudes of the lecturer. Much care should be given, too, to the question of voice production, as it is essential that a speaker should be heard easily, and the finest sentiment will lose force if muttured through half-closed lips. Then, as it is the aim of every speaker to be understood, it is impossible to give too much attention to the choice of language; short sentences are more effective than languages, and much easier to manage. Care should be taken to choose the word that is exactly appropriate, for sometimes quite a wrong impression can be conveyed by a false shade of meaning. Don't be sententious, and don't be didactic, were two valuable bits of advice.

Having given many useful hints as to "how to say it," Mrs. David went on to the question of "what to say." She laid great stress on the necessity of preparation, and gave her listeners some helpful suggestions as to the method of preparing a speech. The speech is very like the essay in form; it should be arranged, broadly speaking, into three parts—the beginning, which should be short and to the point, to attract attention and introduce the subject; the middle, or main part of the discourse, in which the subject matter is clearly given; and the end, which should be short, clinch the points, and leave a good impression. Light and shade may be introduced into the main part by various means, such as jokes, anecdotes, kindly humour, and at times sarcasm, but all must be absolutely to the point, and introduced with the object of giving force to the main idea. But the most important thing to remember is this: "Never speak if you've nothing to say."

Mrs. David laid emphasis on the need of thought and time in preparing an address; and she advised intending speech-makers to read up their subject, and to think it over before writing it out, then, having written it, to say it and note the time, and, if necessary, revise it. She gave her listeners some useful hints about learning quotations—haven't we all shuddered at familiar passages misquoted?—to collect ideas and stories, figures and facts, and to keep them pigeonholed, ready for use. And she laid stress on the importance of women learning the rules governing committee work, for formality is necessary to order and despatch.

In conclusion, she spoke of the need of a school of oratory, where all who had to speak before an audience—preachers, teachers, lecturers in schools or colleges, and public men and women—could learn to give verbal expression to their thoughts in the best and clearest way.

WORKING GIRLS' COMPETITIONS.

The living embodiment of the hopes and ideals of the Sydney University Women's Society exists in the work of the University settlement. For it has forged and is forging a link between girls and women in close touch with the culture of University life, and the girls and women of the workaday world close by. That the link is real and likely to be binding was evidenced by the enthusiasm and interest displayed on Saturday last, by those who gathered in the Great Hall on the occasion of the Working Girls' Club competitions, held annually under the auspices of the society. Outside grey and black clouds banked up in threatening splendour but inside the light shone now then through the beautiful windows of the brown Hall on groups of girls whose animated faces were a permanent bright feature of the gathering. Although the number of competing clubs was less than last year, interest appeared as keen as ever. The hall of great and solemn dignity was thronged with unwonted groups of mothers, friends, sisters, and even baby relatives who gazed whole-heartedly at the work of the competitors.

The fall in attendance at girls' clubs is sorely perplexing those who have charge of them. The Settlement Club shares in the common difficulty of how to make things so attractive as to ensure a regular big attendance. The competition of the Picture Show, and the many cheap and varied forms of amusement and opportunities for outdoor recreation militate against this. Still, those whose hearts are in the work feel that the depression is only temporary, that a deepened interest and larger organised enthusiasm on the part of workers will bring its reward in a larger measure of success. It was, perhaps, most heartening to see the many members of the Mothers' Club step up for their prizes, including one dear old competitor who may have been a grandmother or a great aunt. Mothers are apt to look on their days of prize-winning as past, but they are as keenly happy as the girls at receiving them. The Settlement Mothers' Club flourishes, says its guardian, Miss Evans. With its sewing meetings, health talks, cookery demonstrations, and social reunions, it forms a very real part of the work. The jumble sales and library are well patronised, and mutual confidence and friendliness flourish.

Lady Chelmsford, in a few words, brought home to the girls the value of such clubs as theirs in the development of the nature and lives of working girls. She impressed the fact that commonsense views of life might be gained by their mutual association, dwelling especially on a wise care of their bodies. The speaker expressed her hope and dream of the day when numerous clubs would forgather annually in the same happy spirit of rivalry. A new club was well in evidence in the needlework competitions, that of Blackfriars school old girls. The idea may be commended to those who have the development of girls' clubs at heart, associations of old pupils of the big schools in the many crowded areas near the university. The institution of such in fresh centres would provide a new aspect of life for some who may share in the depression that sometimes comes to all who are bounded by the dull and drab of the common round. Another of the lately suggested lines of development is the service that might be rendered by the settlement to the study of sociology and the furtherance of economic reform. It is maintained that such a field of interest would appeal to workers interested in the scientific side of human life, and would furnish valuable aid. The dearth of reliable statistics on such subjects of inquiry as the cost of living is often deplored, and settlement workers, in their daily intercourse with the working housewife, would have a better opportunity than ordinary officials of gaining reliable information. This field of research is a common feature of the work of all larger and older settlements.

THE LUNCHEON HOUR.

"Typiste's" appealing article in the "Women's Page" of the 20th inst., will have been read with interest, and her sentiments endorsed, by many girls similarly situated, who daily undergo the trying experiences depicted therein.

"Such an unreasonable complaint," was the remark of one matron, who perused the article in question. Those girls are in town all day, and yet they grumble if we go in once in a while to do a little shopping, and happen to do so in the luncheon hour. They apparently want the whole city to themselves, and do not seem to consider that we women have to do the housework, and get the children ready before we start off for the day."

To a certain extent the above remarks are true, but it can scarcely be assumed that the majority of women, who occupy the counters at the lunch hour, are hindered from doing their shopping earlier in the day, for the reasons given, and even in the case of those so burdened, would it not be possible to postpone the expedition until after 2 o'clock.

Certainly, the girls referred to are in town all day, but it must be remembered that the precious midday hour is the only time at their disposal, for the remaining hours, their presence is demanded at desk and typewriter, and, apart from their own requirements in the way of shopping, how many of these girls, in their good nature, undertake small commissions for others. "Ask Mary to get so-and-so," is a familiar statement. "It will be easy for her to do so, as she is going to town," and Mary, despite the fact that her time for shopping is limited to the small space of sixty minutes, from which lunch-time is to be deducted, undertakes to obtain the desired articles.

"That type of girl rushes into print with every small complaint," was the remark of another reader, quite overlooking the fact that only through the medium of print can we hope to have our grievance remedied. We cannot go into the public highways and make our complaints, but a small article such as that from the pen of "Typiste" will be read by many women, otherwise considerate, whose action with regard to the grievance in question, may perhaps have been occasioned by pure thoughtlessness. S.A.H.

I noticed in your "Page for Women" of last week "Typiste's" remarks with reference to the business girls' "shopping hour." I myself have the misfortune to be, as far as shopping is concerned, a business girl also, and know only too well how difficult it is to get served at any of the large drapery establishments during the hour from 1 till 2 o'clock. I can, therefore, sympathise with "Typiste" and "Susie" in their experience at the glove counter. But what I want also to draw attention to is the way in which matrons and others, who are not business folk and therefore are not absolutely obliged to lunch at a certain time, throng the restaurants and tea-rooms during the same hour. I have repeatedly been obliged to stand and wait until a seat is vacated by, perhaps, a fussy stout lady, whose time of freedom is not limited to an hour, and who can enjoy the luxury of a leisurely lunch. And, then, when I have secured a seat I find myself wedged in at a crowded table to such an extent that to move at all is difficult. Under these circumstances I cannot truthfully say I enjoy my lunch, and more often than not before I am half way through my repast I glance at the clock to discover to my dismay that it is nearly 5 minutes to 2, and as there is some shopping I absolutely must do I leave the over-heated, over-crowded room as hurriedly as possible, and finally rush back to the office 10 minutes late, having purchased, perhaps, the very article I didn't want.

The tea-rooms would be exceedingly well filled if business people only were admitted during the hour in question, and the waitresses would still be kept busy. Surely if ladies in town for a day's shopping and pleasure would think a little they could manage to leave that hour to those whose time for shopping and for lunch is enclosed within its close-set boundaries. Perhaps some of them have daughters of their own who are business girls, and I think if they exercised a little kind though they would not patronise the tea-rooms during the waitresses busiest hour. MELBOURNE NOTES.

Twenty-three charitable institutions were represented on a deputation that waited on the Chief Secretary "to urge that the Government should take action in regard to worthless husbands who failed to support their families." Mr. Hicks, M.L.C., stated that 1254 children had become wards of this State during the past year. The average cost per annum, as there was at present 7178 children kept by the State at a cost of £478,000 a year. For every eight children committed to the care of the State one was the child of a father who was in gaol or who had deserted his family. Sister Lucy (Methodist Mission) suggested that the term "vagrant" should be widened, so that idle husbands might be dealt with in a court of law. The Chief Secretary, though sympathetic, considered that the problem bristled with difficulties. It was difficult to understand why, during the most prosperous years of the State, the charitable bill was going up. He thought the bill now before Parliament would go through without difficulty, and promised to place the matter of punishing defaulting husbands before his colleagues.

Miss Alice Phillips, who came to Melbourne from Sydney to attend the congress of the National Council of Women, had a unique journey. Her nieces, the Misses Hypatia and Boadicea Monk, were fired with the idea of being the first women to attempt the overland journey by motor, acting as their own chauffeur. Miss Phillips undertook to journey with them. They drove in a touring car of 30-h.p., and a revolver, loaded in six chambers, was included in their luggage. Unfortunately, when half the distance had been comfortably and pleasantly completed, a severe breakdown occurred, which necessitated the completion of the journey by train. The return journey, however, is to be attempted, and Miss Monk is confident that it will be successful. The fact of the main shaft breaking on a lonely part of the Great Southern-road has not daunted their courage.

The Sixth Class Women Teachers' Association are complaining that teachers have too much clerical work to do for the Education Department. The leading administrative officers are not inclined to admit that there is much in the grievance. It is admitted that teachers, whose hours of duty are not too long, and who are not required to teach on Saturday, have to prepare returns and attend to correspondence connected with their schools, but the department fails to see any hardship in such an arrangement. Parents frequently write lengthy epistles regarding their progeny to teachers, but officers point out that such correspondence can be tactfully discouraged. VERONICA.

THE BOYS' BRIGADE.

A new era is beginning for the work of the Boys' Brigade. Yesterday afternoon the foundation stone of a new building was laid by His Excellency the Governor. This should be of great interest to all the women of our city, for a woman's influence is a big factor in the development of a boy's character.

In these days of systems and methods for training the minds of the young, and directing their energies and talents into the most useful spheres, there is no greater scope for their practice than at the Boys' Brigade or Club in Surry Hills. There the plastic material consists of some 200 boys—the poorer boys of the city—who have learned by experience that the Brigade in Pitt-street is the best place to spend their evenings. Not only away from temptations, but amongst surroundings which insensibly tend to civilise and cultivate. In spite of the inconvenience of the present building—with its want of ventilation, want of class-rooms, want of gymnasium, want of adequate space—there are a few voluntary women workers who are influencing the boys for good. Occupation is what they want, what they crave for—these high-spirited, keen, intelligent boys. The older members have classes for carpentering, basket-making, fret saw work, but it is the younger ones who plead for something to do. It is a chorus of, "Can I do some painting?" "Show me how to make a kindergarten basket," "Let me have the letters to make words." Who is to conduct these "happy evenings?" Who will seize the opportunity of guiding their hands and minds to good and useful things, instead of letting them drift on in idleness, where Satan surely finds some mischief still? It needs the sympathy of a woman for this minor but important sphere of the Brigade's organisation. The present workers have done what they could against great odds, and the Bandola work, etc., is witness to what can be done. When the new building is finished, and this work can be extended systematically, let us hope some of the leisure women will come forward and take their share in influencing for good those Brigade Boys, who, before long, will be some of the responsible citizens of Sydney. —HELPER.

"CONCERNING HATS."

Scene: Skarecroe and Co.'s Showroom.

Dramatis Personae: The members of the Family, the Assistant, the General Public, and Me.

Me (to stately assistant, confidentially): "I want a hat, please."

Assistant (languidly): "Trimmed or untrimmed?"

Me: "T——"

First Member (briskly): "Untrimmed, please."

Second ditto (explanatory): "Then it can be made to suit her."

Third ditto (dubiously): "I believe she'd better have it trimmed."

Me: "I——"

First M.: "Let us see the untrimmed first—some in the new shape, turned up at the back."

Second: "Not too wide a leaf—it falls on her shoulders, her neck is so short."

Third: "And not too large a crown—she gets such a lost look under it."

Me: "I would like——"

Assistant (producing cart-wheel arrangement): "Something after this style, madam?"

First M. (critically): "Yes; that's not bad."

(To me: "Just try it on—I'll hold your bag.")

Me: "But I——"

Second M.: "A trail of roses would look well on it."

Third: "No; a silk swathe and upstanding bow would be more stylish." (To Assistant: "Don't you think so?")

Assistant (politely): "Either style would be very chic, madame. Something like this model?"

(The others move apart, and gaze yearningly at the model.)

Me (struggling with hatpins): "I think it's a sight of a thing."

Interested Elderly Lady, in heliotrope (aside): "Don't you 'ave none of them crowns, dearie. Ye'll 'ave to 'ave a long 'atpin, an' if ye forgit yer purtector, we're are ye? My dorter-in-lor, 'ere, wuz fined eleven shillin', no less, an' after 'er buyin' shields at fourpence-'apenny each, an' with the meat that dear——"

First Member (returning from feasting her eyes): "Try it on, Martha."

(Attendant holds hat, poised for an instant, then reverentially places it on my head. Total eclipse of me! The others gather round. Through the transparent brim I watch the expression on their faces. Not a vestige of a smile.)

First Member (deliberately, with head on one side): "Ye-es, pretty fair!"

Second: "I'd rather have it caught up at the side."

Third: "A large black bow——"

Me (from the depths, tragically): "Well, if you get it you may put it on the hearse, for I'd die rather than wear it!"

Third (critically): "Perhaps it is a little large."

(Daylight and fresh air are mine once more as the cart-wheel is removed and carried off. The members turn their attention once more to the hat table.)

Lady in Foulard (in a whisper): "Take my advice, dear, an' 'ave a little toke—one that'll set tight on yir 'ead, an' need nex to no 'atpins."

First Member (holding up a crown of fifteen inches, surmounted by a black battlement): "This style looks very well on some people!"

Second: "Yes, but she'd need do her hair differently."

Me (firmly): "Well, it won't be done differently, at least not to put under that feudal stronghold!"

Third (tragically): "That is you all over—you will not try them on—only make fun of them."

Assistant (placing on my head an amorphous something, whose brim rises erect from front): "These are very much worn, and are very becoming."

First Member (in rather paralysed tone): "A little too—er—"

Second (ponderingly): "Somewhat—er."

Third (doubtfully): "Rather—er."

Me (looking in glass—horror-stricken): "Take away that bauble! I look like a Woolloomooloo 'Arriet'"

Assistant, to attendant Satellite: "Dear, just bring me one of the new whaite trimmed models."

(Dear produces a white hat-cum-toque-cum bonnet-all-innocence-arrangement of lace, forget-me-nots, and baby roses.)

Assistant (enthusiastically): "Such a sweet thing! Quaite the latest!"

Me (ironically): "A little too late for me, thank you. Grey hair and baby roses do not harmonise."

First Member (freezingly): "Suppose you try on hats instead of moralising."

Second: "Let us look at this other lot." (They move off.)

Lady in foulard, to daughter-in-law: "No, M'riar, that ain't my style. Gimme a bit o' pink, I sez. I don't 'old wi' them jets an' weppin' willers." (To attendant): "Jist 'and me that toke wi' the view rose poppies an' the haygrette."

Daughter-in-law (bitterly): "An' it'll look very nice if ye git terbacear ash dropped on it, sime as I did on my pale blue." (To me) "But that don't matter. Ye kin git yir 'ats an' yir skirts ruined in the streets, not ter mention micrognes, while the Lord Mayor an' the council Their troubles! S' long as yir 'at pins don't show (ironically and scripturally) An' of sich is the kingdom of 'evin!"

First Member (resignedly): "One would think you would take a little interest in what you are going to wear, and try to select it!"

Me (cheerfully): "Not if I know it! This is your affair! I'm so tired of your comments on my purchases that I intend you to have the whole credit this time!"

Third M. (balancing leaning Tower of Pisa structure on her hand): "I've seen this style look well on Mrs. Porter, but then, she is tall and carries herself well."

Assistant: "They do not suit all faces."

(Four pairs of eyes regard me with disfavour.)

Me (encouragingly): "Don't despair! After all, I've tried on only four. Let us once more into the breach!"

Another "Lover" writes:—

I have read with much pleasure the articles on Woman's Page in the "Sydney Morning Herald" re the above. Like "Shakespeare Lover," I am over 600 miles from dear old Sydney, near the Queensland border, and like her, do my share towards distributing the literature of the Bush Book Club. I have been all my life a book-worm, and a reader of any and everything that came my way (except, alas, Shakespeare). However, put it on the right side of the ledger that I always carried a copy of his works with me, well knowing that there must be some "kernel" to this much-talked of "nut." The inevitable day came when there was nothing to do but read, and absolutely nothing to read but my neglected Shakespeare. It is useless to try and put down on paper my sensations, as for the first time I read those matchless comedies, those moving tragedies, those hundreds of gems of speech, which one recognises as old friends, seeing that they are now part and parcel of the English language. I have read the worn old book thro' twice. Does any Shakespeare lover think he could buy it from me now for a pound? I am sure he does not. It is never far away, very often under my pillow, and I have only one fault to find, that it makes all other reading seem commonplace by comparison. I hope to hear more of the country assistance scheme, and will certainly do my utmost, whether in town or country, to forward the movement. My subscription will follow later, as it will have to be put aside, a little at a time.

A LAUNDRY PARTY.

Now that most of us have a sale of work, if not imminent, at least pending, the following details of a small and very successful affair of this sort may be helpful. It requires but a short time for preparation, and very little outlay, the sewing being chiefly pieces of white work of not very great value, and other articles that will wash.

Our little effort was made in the local hall. We called it a Chinese laundry party, and it lasted just one afternoon and evening. We did not attempt anything elaborate, and kept as closely as possible to the idea of a Chinese laundry.

The attendants wore over their own frocks the loose kimono-like robe of the Chinese. The Chinese slippers, costing a few pence, were found clumsy to unaccustomed feet, so they were fastened on with elastic over our own shoes.

Borrowed Chinese flags and Chinese lanterns hung from the roof, while across and across the room stretched clothes lines, on which were pegged articles for sale, each adorned with a price ticket of pink laundry paper. These tickets had been stencilled, in black oil paint, with the Chinese equivalent for "very good."

One line was marked "one shilling." It was sold out immediately. On this line were pillow-slips, bolster-slips, towels of all sorts, lunch cloths, and table napkins, plain camisoles, little children's underwear, print laundry bags, muslin cushion covers, kitchen aprons, babies' overalls, bibs and feeders, linen belts, neckwear, socks and stockings, etc. We were surprised to find how many articles we could make for that shilling line.

On another line the shilling limit had been exceeded, and here were dainty Mount Mellick and corticelli, some artistic stencilling, and fine drawn thread and crochet.

A little line was devoted to soft, warm, baby wear. Here were booties and bibs, and bonnets for the baby; and all the other delightful soft luxuries and necessities for that most luxurious of all necessities.

Mothers of boys found plenty to attract them on the boys' line. Socks and handkerchiefs, ties and collars, shirts and pyjamas for all sizes of boys, were there.

Now, the collectors had garnered many articles that would have been out of place hanging on a clothes-line. These were carried round by the young folks in very small baskets, such as the vegetable men carry on a bamboo. A Chinese shop supplied the baskets for a few pence each, and the bamboo was bought at a fishing tackle shop, in lengths of about 12 feet, and cut up into short lengths. One youngster (and didn't they enjoy it) carried pots of preserved ginger, another lychee nuts, another peanuts, and several had fruit and vegetables and tea.

Perhaps they were not quite "in the picture" of the Chinese laundry idea, but as so many miscellaneous gifts had been received this was thought the most appropriate way of disposing of them.

The "dips" were made up like laundry parcels, in pink paper, stencilled with Chinese characters. They were stacked on shelves, like finished work waiting to be sent out, and looked very realistic.

The "competitions" were all in keeping. A soap firm, also a firm making starch and blue, supplied us with some very decorative advertising posters for the walls, making a most appropriate background. The donations of soap, starch, and blue were sold out beforehand, with entry forms for various ironing competitions.

The most keenly contested was for the prize of a set of irons, for the best ironed white shirt. This was won by a blushing bride-to-be, the announcement being received with much cheering by the friends of the prospective bridegroom. Oddly enough, he himself won the prize for chopping a pile of stove wood—a shining axe.

An inspired addition to the programme was the performance of an amateur juggler, announced as "the Great Panjandrum Himself, with the Little Round Button on Top." Dressed as a dignified mandarin, with an imposing queue of plaited black Llama braid and huge round spectacles, he amazed his easily pleased audience with clever tricks of sleight-of-hand.

Almost everything was sold; even the baskets and bamboos having a ready sale as stocking baskets and curtain rods. Quite a large sum was realised, considering it was so small an effort, and everybody agreed they had had a most enjoyable evening. —Our Chinese laundry party. EFFIE AITCH.

Miss Aileen Alpen, of Sydney, after spending the summer in Switzerland, is now spending the autumn with the Marquis and Marquise Malenchini, at their villa near Parma, Italy. Later she will go to Florence with them for the winter, and will sail from Naples for Sydney in May.

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

"I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes."—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

There can be no doubt that the idea of a boarding-house for retired gentlewomen has seized upon the imagination of Sydney women, for the Lady Mayoress's room was crowded yesterday afternoon by numbers of interested and sympathetic women. Every woman worker feels in the back of her mind the dread that some day she may be amongst those whom the newer generation has elbowed out of the race, and to those who are unable to make provision for old age the thought of years spent in uncongenial surroundings comes like a grey ghost to haunt even their active hours. So the proposal to build or rent a house, with a garden and nice rooms, to be let at a moderate rent to retired professional women, appealed to all, and was carried unanimously. The scheme has been put before the public under the name of "Twilight" Home, but several speakers yesterday objected strongly to that title as being too suggestive of the end of life, or, as one speaker put it, "of waiting for the dark." The idea was first suggested some years ago by Madame Hunter, but the Lady Mayoress has taken so keen a part in bringing the scheme before the public, and has used her personal effort in rousing general interest, that it was suggested that the house should be named the "Florence Clarke" House, after her. The Lady Mayoress herself thought that Madame Hunter's name should be commemorated.

Miss Mary Proctor seems to have acquired some of the speed of her beloved comets, for she has certainly been making records in the matter of travelling over this continent. On Saturday night she left Sydney for Brisbane, arrived there Sunday night, lectured there under the patronage of the Governor (Sir William Macgregor) on Monday night, left there Tuesday morning, arrived here this morning, and gives her final lecture in Australia to-morrow night. To travel over 1400 miles and give two lectures within half a week is no small feat for any woman to perform.

Miss Ethel Irving, who has just scored another success in London in "The Turning Point," told an interviewer recently that her greatest artistic ambition was to die on the stage. She had been to see Sarah Bernhardt, "who dies so incomparably, and as I watched her," said Miss Irving, "I thought I would like to die, too. But it is impossible. English audiences are too tender-hearted, and a heroine, to whom the fitting and artistic finish would be death in the last act, is let go scot free with her lover or her husband at the last curtain, whether she deserves it or not. No; I'm afraid I'll never 'die' on an English stage."

"I have visited practically all important countries on earth, but I have never seen women of another nationality so frugal as the German women, and they are very hard workers, too," says Tenkei Hasegawa, the Japanese literary critic; "but I would not have a German woman for my wife, nor for my sweetheart. She is not noble-looking like an English woman, or fascinating like a French woman. I would like to have an American woman for my friend. She would be very companionable, and my good adviser sometimes."

WHY ARE WE NOT CENTENARIANS!

A hundred years have passed since Napoleon invaded Russia, and—on his way to the silence, the ominous silence, of Moscow—fought the battle of Borodino. Only a hundred years since he began that grim and fatal retreat from the magnificent city, where fire was his only combatant, to meet, in falling snow, in gales, in starvation, three foes against whom his gallant legions were powerless. At the passage of the Beresina his broken squadrons, hungry, footsore, harassed by pursuing Russians, led astray by false guides, dropped from the shattered bridge into the icy water of the river, and perished, uncounted, uncared for, while he rode on to France and safety. The great Napoleon! How many since have done heroic deeds and died unnoticed!

It is not a matter of history now. Three generations have passed, and, to even our old folks, Borodino is a mere name in the story of Napoleon's ambition. But Russia, desiring greatly to keep the centenary of the battle, and to celebrate her great deliverance, sought and found during the last three months both men and women who could remember the events of the invasion, and gave them an honoured place in a procession on its anniversary. Eight persons were discovered who remembered Borodino. Their united ages reached far beyond 900. The oldest, Peter Kapitkin (122), still a hale old man, was an inquisitive young one when Napoleon's army passed his village, and he was caught up a tree gazing at the invaders, and made to act as a guide to the nearest town. He still prides himself on having escaped from his captors. Another, Marie Popoff (121), easily remembers watching the flames of burning Moscow. She was then engaged in doing housework outside the city, and is still doing similar work, though, perhaps, not as fine tables and chairs—in the same neighbourhood. All the others, like these two, are peasants, and descendants of peasants. Not a single eyewitness of the great invasion could be found among the wealthy or educated classes.

The Russian peasant, as we read of him, wears dirty clothes, lives in an unventilated house, in an unsanitary village, works early and late, eats immoderately when he can get the coarse food that he prefers, and drinks vodka until he is intoxicated. In short, he disregards every one of the precautions which we think necessary. And then, as if to ridicule our theories of care, he produces samples of himself as required who were old men when our grandmothers were babies.

Hard work, then, cannot be killing; nor hard fare. Our good food and our many holidays are not so necessary as we suppose. Can we discover and provide for our children—it is, alas, too late, perhaps, for ourselves—the conditions which made the Borodino veterans into centenarians? Can we teach the rising generation to live as they lived? Maybe not. If it were wise, it should be easy, for the conditions are all negative, and may be compressed into two words—no worry. No worry of education, no worry of competition, no worry of keeping up an appearance. Marie Popoff rose early, worked hard in loose clothes, ate what she could get, and slept as long as she was allowed. For her no balls or bridge parties, no afternoon teas, no morning tennis, and, more important, no anxieties. She cared little whether her home was more attractive than her neighbour's, and knew not whether her new gown was, or was not, of the latest cut. She lived, and enjoyed the work of the day as it came, and slept the sleep of tired labour when the sun set. With even a certainty of her length of life, it would be hard for us to do as she did. But we could easily make life more simple if we chose. The question is—is it worth doing?

It may not be worth doing for the sake of long life, though no one wishes to die young. But it is surely worth doing if by such means we may be more sure of a happy old age. And how is it to be done? By a process of negation? Perhaps more wisely by a process of diminution. We live too much, and too fast. We are filled with unsatisfied longings for more of everything except ease—more useless ornamental things to display to more neighbours, more fettering clothes to wear to more entertainments, more rich food to eat more often, more learned lore to enlighten more acquaintances, more ideas to enable us to carry on more conversation, more of the excitement that wears out body and spirit. We get it, and with it, less of the silence of a modest home, less of the renewing sleep that follows quiet labour, less of the calm spirit of abiding content, less of the peace that passeth understanding. Is it any wonder that we die before we reach half the age of Marie Popoff?

THE CHARLOTTENBURG FOREST SCHOOLS.

Charlottenburg, which adjoins Berlin, is one of the most beautiful and best-laid-out towns in Germany. On the outskirts of the town, in the middle of a pine forest, are situated the "Waldschulen" (forest schools) for delicate children, the first of which opened in 1904, the second a few years later. These schools were designed for children, for whom the regulation four or five hours daily school attendance in ordinary school classes proves too great a physical strain, but whose ill-health is not so pronounced as to absolve them altogether from school attendance. Children with tubercular affections, with cardiac disorders in which there is no compensation, and those afflicted with epilepsy, chorea, or pronounced hysteria, are not accepted. The selection of suitable cases rests with the town school doctors attached to the specified schools, and the final admissions are decided by the forest school doctor in co-operation with the school executive. The majority of the scholars visit the school from the Easter to the Michaelmas holidays, while a smaller number who appear to be in special need of continued vigilant care attend the school daily until Christmas. The children arrive early, about 8 a.m., and return to their homes at dusk. They are met at the railway station by the teachers and taken to the forest which is situated about a quarter of a mile away. No motors, dust, or noise break the stillness which reigns in this peaceful resort. Under the tall sentinel-like Tannenbaume, with their fresh pine smell and branches not bushy enough to shut out the health-giving sun's rays, the delicate children have the best tonic necessary to restore them mentally and physically to perfect health.

They certainly did not look very delicate, the day the members of the British Congress visited the school, and their fresh healthy faces proved, the excellence of the method adopted for their welfare. Large pavilions, with tables and forms are used by the children to have their meals and also as a place of refuge in case of rain. The lessons are given out in the open. The children are encouraged to take an interest in gardening, the botany lesson is given in the gardens and their own plants and flowers are used as illustrations. The boys during their playtime dig tunnels and make fortifications in the hard sandy soil, the island of Heligoland, with its peculiar formation, being a favourite subject. The little girls also model dolls' houses, and furnish them most artistically. The small architects and town planners were only too proud to show us their really clever work. The functions of the forest school are thus partly hygienic and partly pedagogic. Its hygienic aim is to promote the recovery of the scholars and to improve their general physique by the application of the simplest curative and dietary factors—prolonged stay in the fresh, pure forest air, plentiful sunshine, simple nourishing food, and suitable baths. The dietary is liberal and strengthening. Each child receives daily about 1 litre of milk, 100 gs. meat, 200 gs. vegetables, potatoes, etc., white and black bread, butter, dripping, and jam. The meals take place as follows:—Upon arrival of the children, soup, bread, and butter; at 10 o'clock, two cups of milk and black bread, with butter or dripping; at half-past 12, meat, vegetables, or soup and meat, etc.; at 4 o'clock, milk, black bread and jam; half-past 6, milk, soup, or cocoa, with bread and butter. The parents pay for each child 55 pfg (about 6d) a day board. In case of poverty, however, a reduction or exemption is granted. Very few of them are in a position to refund the whole amount. After dinner the children rest about two hours in deck chairs under the trees. If the weather is cool they are wrapped up in rugs, and when it rains the midday rest is conducted in the open sheds. The doctor decides what baths are to be taken—ordinary baths, shower, or medicated baths. Sun and air baths are a prominent feature of the treatment, and are a source of endless enjoyment to the young people. The pedagogical aim of the forest school consists in giving the children, in the lower classes receive two hours' tuition every day, and those in the higher classes 2½ hours. Each lesson is limited to half an hour. At the expiration of every half-hour there is a pause of five minutes, and of 10 minutes after every full hour.

A further expansion of the system has taken place quite recently. As it was repeatedly shown that the most delicate children only remained fresh and right for the first few weeks after their return to the town schools, but fell back towards the end of the term, and thus plainly proved that the four-five hours' daily attendance in crowded classrooms brought with it a return of debility and lassitude, an experiment was made in the winter of 1909-1910 to retain the weakest children in the forest school until the beginning of the winter holidays, and then to send them from January to March to a special school in town, where the school time-table coincided with that followed in the forest school. The results were encouraging, and the plan has, therefore, been permanently adopted. Children who are so delicate that they cannot even keep up with the forest school teaching are received in the forest camps. In 1910 1075 children were cared for in these camps. The majority were absorbed from any degree of class teaching; others received at least some short lessons in arithmetic and German as soon as permission was given by the doctor, in the hope that they might not forget what they had already learnt. The forest camps for children are, however, not schools like the forest schools, but are essentially convalescent institutions and day recreation camps. Since the forest school for elementary school children proved an unqualified success, the municipal authorities decided in 1909 to initiate a similar institution for the benefit of scholars attending higher schools. It was opened April, 1910, and is situated close to the forest school for elementary school children.

The premises include a school-house, containing three large classrooms, two smaller rooms for the teaching staff, and a small room for school paraphernalia, with two dressing-rooms built on; a second building devoted to domestic purposes, containing kitchen, storeroom, and a sitting-room for the sister in charge and the domestic staff; an open air-shelter, several covered summer-houses, a building for baths and lavatories, and an assortment of drilling equipments.

The initial cost of erection and equipment amounted to approximately 85,500 marks (£2675). The money was provided by a generous advocate of the forest schools. The upkeep of the school is met by charges to the parents (which include school fees and the cost of meals). They are required to pay 250 marks (£12 10s) for each child. This works out at 2s per head per day, of which is is reckoned for food. Children who are not natives of Berlin are charged 50 marks extra. The municipality grants a subsidy of 20 per cent. towards current expenses, which sum may be devoted to admitting a limited number of scholars at half-price. According to the doctor's report, the attendance at the school has been highly beneficial to the children, who now number 134. No child has left it without displaying unmistakable benefit to health. The majority of the children increased in weight to a gratifying extent, and at the close of the season all the children bore a fresh and healthy appearance. From an educational point of view, also, the results were very satisfactory. M.D.

Most Sydney people will recognise something familiar in the girl who calls forth the following criticism from a French writer; indeed, she might almost be claimed as an Australian product:—"At the races, in the tea-rooms, at all the favourite haunts of smartly-dressed people, one meets a type of feminility which puzzles one. She wears very neat, high-heeled shoes with bright buckles, silk stockings to match her dress, and a skirt which barely reaches her ankles. Her corsage is bloused like a young girl's; her neck is quite bare, also a bit of her chest; her hair hangs in curls round her neck and face; her hat sits right down over her ears, and her silhouette is distinctly that of a schoolgirl. But her hands are berinaged, her nails very much manicured, her face is slightly made up, and her manner is that of an assured product of forty. She is quite a recent product in Paris. But who is she?"

BOOK II.—THE YEAR TWO.

CHAPTER XIII.
THE SHADOW.

Katherine and Keith Oramore had been in Switzerland since May. They had only waited to see how Keith was hung in the Academy, and for a look at the other pictures, and had then gone straight to the Jungfrau Hotel up at Isenfluh under the Sulegg. For Keith had set his heart on painting the three Oberland giants just as the morning glory touched their topmost peaks with silvery fire, and set them gleaming against the still-dark sky, and slowly thrust the shadows back down the smooth white slopes of virgin snow.

It was to be—and was, as far as it went—a wonderful picture. The valley is a sea of soft, white mist. On the left rise the bold wooded heights of Hunnenfluh. Beyond the valley-haze lie the slopes of Wengen, still in the shadow. Above them the pine-draped Wengen Alp, and the bare heads of Tschuggen and the Lauberhorn—all still in faint half-lights. Then, behind all these, rises the noble bulk of Jungfrau, dim below, but growing gradually clearer and stronger in detail towards the light above, till, up there, the crown as far as the Joch, with the virgin cones of Schneehorn and Silberhorn, are all softly ablaze with the thin, bright, silvery-gold of the newly-risen sun. A wonderful presentation of one of The Master's masterpieces.

But its execution was dearly bought. For it entailed very early rising into a chill and trying atmosphere, heavy still with the dews and mists of the night. Doubly trying to one with the sweet, soft air of the Canaries still in his lungs, and never at any time given to consideration of personal comfort when his art was in question.

They would have done better to acclimatise for a month on lower ground, but Keith seemed quite well and fit, and was so eager to get to his work that Katherine could not find in her heart to raise objections.

With her assistance, and only after long and careful observation, he selected the exact point of view, and had erected there a little wooden hut commanding it, in which the picture could be left, and which afforded him a certain amount of shelter, but not very much.

He was out before sunrise every day, watching the ghostly peaks, and waiting for the signal fires, then feverishly at work in the short time allowed him, and so enraptured with the sight that at times he could hardly paint for very joy of it, and from fear of the utter impossibility of ever being able to render it worthily on his canvas.

Very often Katherine accompanied him, and saw that he had something to eat and a drink of hot coffee, which he made himself over a private cafetiere in his own room, and that he wrapped up properly, and behaved sensibly out there.

But there were days when she was tired, and he went alone, and it was probably some neglect on his part on one of these that started his cough.

As far as he could he concealed it from her, lest she should be unnecessarily alarmed, and insist on the picture being set aside. And it was for some time possible to do this, since he occupied a room opening into hers, so that he could, when desired, rise and slip away to his work without disturbing her.

As a rule, however, she insisted on rising also and attending to his comfort and well-being, and going with him. The standing and waiting about were somewhat trying, but they always forgot all that when the wonder-glory came, and the great white peaks flashed out the signal of the new day's birth above the sleeping world. Then eager, energetic work, in a fever of artistic desire on Keith's part, while the shadows slipped slowly from the heights and rolled down and disappeared before they reached the lower lands. And Katherine did sentry-go to keep warm on a plateau of dry rock behind, and watched it all, and stole down now and again to see how her painter-man was getting on.

He knew he was letting that cold on his chest go too far, but he had had it before, and knew how to cure it, and the picture must not suffer for so simple a thing as a cold on the chest.

But at times his lungs felt like a big sponge through which it was difficult to breathe, and more than once he actually experienced a sense of relief when Katherine was not with him, but chiefly on her account, for then he could cough as he chose without fear of alarming her.

That he was able to keep her in the dark so long was due to two causes: Firstly, to the fact that the trouble was greatest first thing in the morning, and a quarter of an hour's coughing as a rule set it all right and left him comparatively free for the rest of the day, and he took good care that Katherine should not hear him at it. And presently, to the greater fact that about this time Katherine had a trouble and sorrow of her own and a grievous disappointment. Her doctor from Lauterbrunnen insisted on her lying down for the greater part of each day, and Keith, after his early morning's work alone, passed the rest of his time by her couch, reading to her, writing for her, chatting of the past and the future—anything to keep her from brooding over the sorrow of the moment.

It was the end of July before she was quite herself again and able to mount slowly, on his arm, to the little wooden hut, and see for herself what progress he had made.

"It is splendid, Keith. I'm sure it's far and away the best thing you've ever done," she said, delightedly.

"I believe it is, but it's not finished yet," and then, of a sudden, he fell to coughing in a way that startled her.

"That wont do. Why did you never tell me?"

"It's nothing," he reassured her, "I've had it lots of times. It's just the morning air got on my lungs a bit. If you like we'll go down to Hilterfingen for a week or so, and if that doesn't cure it, we'll go along to Rosanen, up in the pine-woods. That always cures me, but once they get you up there they won't let you go again, and I don't want to leave the picture too long."

"The picture is nothing compared with your health," said Katherine, and they started next day for Hilterfingen.

The joyous air and sunshine of the Thuner See did him so much good that, after a fortnight of it, his only desire was to get back to Isenfluh and his picture, which another month would see completed.

So up to the highlands they went, and Keith tackled his work with the delight of a master, and the vehemence born of enforced idleness.

Perhaps he over-estimated his strength and the proportion of his cure. The cold got hold of his lungs again. The wheeze in his chest came back and was accompanied at times by a stab. He had to acknowledge it at last, and Katherine was alarmed by the sudden loss of strength which supervened on the confession.

He had, in fact, been overtaxing himself to get the picture finished, keeping the enemy at bay by sheer force of will, and using up all his reserves in the struggle, and when at last he had to capitulate, the garrison was woefully reduced.

"Rosanen," said he, and she took him there by easy stages.

PEACE SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the New South Wales branch of the Peace Society was held at the School of Arts on Monday. The president, Miss Rose Scott, occupied the chair.

The annual report showed that a new freedom league had been formed, and had many adherents. It was terrible to contemplate, the report added, that the Federal Government had spent over £5,000,000 on defence, involving the country in that mesh of military expenditure out of which the older nations of the world had been for so long striving to disentangle themselves; and the question was "How long will the people endure the increasing burden of taxation that this supreme folly will accomplish?" Well had it been called the bottomless pit of "military expenditure."

The report was adopted on the motion of Rev. Dr. Roseby.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were:—President, Miss Rose Scott; vice-presidents, Messrs. W. A. Holman, M.L.A., Wm. Cooper, Stanley F. Allen, Rev. Dr. Roseby, Dr. MacCarthy, Mrs. Septimus Harwood, M.A. (hon. secretary), Miss Wearne (press secretary), Mrs. Locke Burns (hon. treasurer), Mr. J. M. Price; committee, Mesdames Harold Hunt, Nolan, Mogini, Timmins, Revs. Page, Rivett, W. H. Beale, Messrs. Alfred Allen, F. Allman, W. C. Norman, and L. W. Pedersen.

DANGEROUS HATPINS.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

Nine women were charged before the Adelaide Police Magistrate with having worn unprotected hatpins. These were the first prosecutions under the bylaw recently passed by the City Council, and, out of consideration for the feelings of the offenders, the cases were heard at the Children's Court. In each instance a fine of 5s, with costs, was inflicted.

NOTES

Mr. Geddes, of Woollahra, has arranged to import from England a harlequin Great Dane bitch. It was mentioned recently that Mr. Geddes had secured from Melbourne the unbeaten harlequin Queen of Sheba.

The Scottish Terrier Club and the Australian Scotch Collie Club will hold shows of their respective breeds on New Year's Day at the Highland Gathering, at the Agricultural Society's Grounds. There will be eight classes for Scottish terriers, and 15 for collies. The prizes given by each club will be 20s, 10s, 5s, and, in addition, numerous specials will be offered for competition.

Early this year Mr. P. A. Lamb, of Rooty Hill, sold to an Adelaide greyhound fancier that speedy greyhound, Leap Frog.

Pomeranians are on the up-grade in several of the States. Lately, Mr. E. Phelps, of Adelaide, imported a miniature black specimen of the breed.

Mr. J. Elliott, of Melbourne, reports that his grand Commonwealth champion, the field spaniel Union Jack (imp.), has been retired from the judging ring. The final appearance of this wonderful winner was made recently at Ballarat, when his record was brought up to 203 first prizes, specials, and trophies. Mr. Elliott has been fortunate enough to breed in Union Bobby (a son of the old champion) a young dog worthy of his sire.

The Kennel Club committee met last night, when the subject of the proposed reorganisation of the club was again under consideration.

At the last show of the English Kennel Club the sum of £7300 was distributed in prizes. There were 48 judges, all of whom, but one, were amateurs.

A country buyer in this State has secured from Mr. A. A. Hill, of Paradise, South Australia, two white Pomeranian puppies.

Rio, a Yorkshire terrier, by ch. Crown King (imp.), ex Lady Carrington, bred by the late Mr. R. Copland, of Sydney, has gone to Dr. T. K. Hamilton, of Adelaide.

Mr. W. T. Wright, of Melbourne, has announced his retirement from the dog and poultry judging rings, in which he has officiated for the last 20 years.

Mr. F. W. Marshall, founder of the South Australian Bulldog Club, will leave Adelaide early next year for England, where he has received a business appointment. His departure will be a great loss to the local fancy, as he has done splendid work, both for dogs and poultry. Mr. Marshall has been made an honorary life member of the club.

In Victoria, as in this State, there are two clubs in the interest of bulldogs. The one latest formed is that of the Victorian Bulldog Society, which will hold a show on the 7th prox., at the Continental Gardens, near Prince's Bridge, Melbourne. Fourteen classes are provided. Two English judges will officiate, Mr. J. Lindley taking the dogs, and Mr. J. Redman the bitches.

At the breaking up of Mr. Watson's bulldog kennels, Palmerston, New Zealand, Mr. H. Lamb, of Mosman, purchased the prize-winning bitch Bellona. The local breeders seem to regret that this bitch left New Zealand, for they made several offers to buy her back. Mr. E. L. D'Estranges, of Nelson, cabled an offer to buy Bellona at a good price, the result was that she was shipped back to the Dominion last week, by Mr. Lamb.

Miss A. Mackay writes: In the "Kennel Notes," I see that the hon. sec. of the Kennel Club of New South Wales stated that all specialist clubs had been invited to the recent conference. The Cattledog and Sheepdog Club of New South Wales received no invitation to the conference either by letter or otherwise so far as I am aware.

FOX TERRIER CLUB OF N.S.W.

A meeting of the members of the Fox Terrier Club was held at the Custom House Hotel on Thursday. Messrs. L. Marrett, H. Cole, J. Fitzsimons, A. G. Thomas, W. H. Kilpatrick, H. Howe, H. Bartlett and A. Doyle were elected members, and two nominations were received. The cups won during the year were presented, J. Campbell Wood taking the Hortern Cup; R. J. Wilson and J. C. Wood tied for the Wilson Cup, R. Comley won the Dewar Cup, J. Glenn the Fox Terrier Club's Novice Dog Cup, R. Comley and J. Maude tied for the Fox Terrier Bitch Cup, and J. Glenn and R. Musgrave tied for the Kennel Club Cup.

The general classification for the Club's shows for the current year was decided upon, including additional classes for wirehairs, which it is the club's special desire to foster.

It was decided to hold a show on Anniversary Day, all details, including appointment of judge, etc., to be arranged at the meeting on the 5th prox.

An instructive lecture was delivered by Mr. Maude, who demonstrated his points with two fox terriers brought to the meeting for that purpose.

H.M.S. FANTOME.

PROPOSED SURVEY OF THE HARBOUR.

H.M.S. Fantome has just completed a five months' survey of the Australian coastline. She left Sydney in May last, with the object of rectifying certain hydrographical errors on the Australian coastline. According to the report of the cruiser, the vessel proceeded to Thursday Island, and located the position of a hitherto wrongly reported island in the approach to Darwin. The island was found to be five miles out of the position given. Later on the Fantome went to King Sound, and Buccaneer Archipelago was thoroughly surveyed, and a safe channel between Adele Island and the mainland was planned. The Fantome also located the reef mentioned by shipmasters in the past off Ashburton (W.A.). This reef is covered with only 12ft of water. The Fantome is now returning to Sydney to make a survey of Sydney Harbour on a large scale. This survey will be made in view of the prospective increase in the size of oversea vessels trading here.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS OF THE UNIVERSITY BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Certain conjectural statistics of mine as to the cost to the University of the remission of fees were quoted and challenged in the Assembly last night. As Mr. Carmichael truly said, I am professor of literature, and not of mathematics but the proper authority in his comments on the bill has abstained from exercising his natural functions; and, after all, it needs no more knowledge of mathematics to work out a simple sum in arithmetic than apparently it needs of university affairs to draught a University Bill.

There can be no doubt, to anyone who takes the trouble to go through the calculations, that my figures are substantially correct. In the first place, they agree with the audited accounts of the University. Last year, with 207 matriculants, the revenue from fees amounted to over £19,900, less some £2000 paid to lecturers, chiefly in the Medical School; but as these lecturers would have to be paid somehow, the total sum represents what the University at present counts on obtaining. This year 203 matriculated students began their degree courses, whose fees in their various faculties by the time they graduate would, if they all paid, amount to about £4653 in the Faculty of Arts, £1350 in law, £13,376 in medicine, £852 in science, £3120 in engineering, over £23,300 in all. The discrepancy between the income in 1911 and this sum arises from the fact that even at present very many have their fees remitted. It is indisputable that an annual entry of about 200 matriculants means to the University an annual average income of about £20,000, if they complete their curriculum, as most of them do. This is the case, if the proportion of undergraduates in the different faculties remain as it now is. In point of fact this is very unlikely. Already the current is setting towards the professional schools, and with the remission of fees it will receive new impetus. But the professional courses are the most costly to provide, and largely-increased demands will be made on the University chest, precisely at the time when it has to depend on the additional grant of £10,000 instead of the £20,000 from fees.

Mr. Carmichael's figures in no way contravene this. They show that in three years from the passing of the bill the University stands to gain. No one ever disputed that. But immediately thereafter it will begin to lose, and will lose more heavily with every year till the scheme is in full operation. From that date on the annual deficit will be £10,000, more or less.

It does not seem sound finance to pass measures which will eventually involve such loss of revenue without at the same time providing by statute for an equivalent.

I am, etc.,
M. W. MACCALLUM.

The University, Nov. 26.

NURSERIES THE WORLD OVER are made brighter and happier by the occasional use of California Syrup of Figs as a gentle, pleasant, and effective laxative remedy for the little ones, who take it readily as a "treat." Its action is so mild, yet so thorough, that it is as if Nature were simply acting in her normal, healthy way. Once the desired result is attained, and the system cleansed and corrected, its use may be discontinued, with the full assurance that the liver, kidneys, and bowels have been permanently benefited or strengthened. Of chemists. When purchasing be sure to emphasise the word "California." The genuine alone bears the name and trade mark of the California Fig Syrup Co.—Advt.

OUR SAW BENCH SOON CUTS A BIG STACK OF FIREWOOD, and allows you to get on with other jobs, which you couldn't do if you had to peg away all day with a crosscut saw. By saving time you save money. The Bench soon pays for itself.
Lots of other sawing jobs, besides firewood, can be undertaken, too. This is an up-to-date bench, and quite the best value on the market.
Travelling Table is made from angle and sheet iron. Cannot shrink. Can neither tilt nor cant when placing heavy logs on the bench.
The trouble with ordinary benches—that of wood-stays shrinking—has been overcome by providing heavy bearings, which can be taken up if required.

REFUSED SPECIFICATIONS.
AN APPEAL SUSTAINED.

Reserved judgment was delivered in the case of William Thomas Lee, of Martin-place, Sydney, as assignee for Oscar Wright, of Thompson-street, Drummoyne, the actual inventor of the device, who appealed against the action of the Commissioner of Patents for refusing to accept specifications for a new method of burning charcoal, the ground of refusal being that the method was merely a working direction for the manipulation of a draught in a charcoal retort. The appellant claimed that the subject matter was a patentable invention, and that the Commissioner should have accepted the application.

Mr. Flannery, instructed by Mr. B. A. M'Bride, for the appellant, and Mr. H. E. Manning, instructed by the Solicitor for the Commonwealth, for the respondent.

The claim, his Honor said, was for a new method of process of burning charcoal. According to the facts as they appeared, the manufacture of charcoal, whether absolutely in the open air, or in a meiler or a kiln, had always been conducted with the assistance of a draught of air from below. It had been considered by all who had practised the art that the undercurrent of air was indispensable to the success of the operation. Means had been adopted to control the draught, and the latest prior device was Commonwealth patent No. 15,551, in 1909. That patent was for an improved kiln or retort, the improvements consisting of a plurality of top vents to regulate more efficiently and simply the upward draught, and a system of radial earth channels under the kiln and extending to the atmosphere for the purpose of controlling and regulating the admission of air from below. That kiln had a bottom vent which could be opened or closed at will, and on that fact the Commissioner had based his rejection, taking the view that application No. 2021 was nothing more than a working direction to close that vent.

The substance of the matter, however, was quite otherwise, said his Honor. Even if that vent were closed the radial earth channels admitted the currents of air from below until the whole operation of burning was over, and then they were closed together with the top vents to allow the retort and the material therein to cool off. The essence of the operation up to the present application was that, for the purpose and during the operation of burning, some admission of air from below was essential. One defect always existed, viz., that as the combustion of the wood commenced in the lower portion of the stack, and proceeded gradually upwards, the carbon, after it had reached the stage of true charcoal in its best form, was constantly, while in a glowing state, subjected to the action of the oxygen rising upwards to feed the flame of the newly-ignited wood above, and the result of the constant contact of the oxygen with the glowing charcoal was to reduce some of the latter to ash, which meant so much loss of useful product. That, though, of course, well known, was apparently considered inseparable from the operation, because it was never imagined that the cause of the defect—the upward draught—could be altogether dispensed with. Such a course never occurred to the mind of anyone until at last Oscar Wright discovered that the upward draught was not indispensable and that, by entirely excluding it, a better result could be obtained, because all the advantages of the former system remained, and that defect of conversion of good commercial charcoal to ash would be obviated. The idea was revolutionary. The elimination of what was before considered indispensable was found to be an advantage, by curing what was previously understood to be an incurable, though serious, defect.

As a matter of fact, his Honor said, he could not doubt that there was considerable originality and ingenuity in the conception, as applied to the manufacture of charcoal. In other words, there was an undoubted exercise of the inventive faculty. Then, having conceived the idea, Wright proceeded to show how it could be carried out—simply by having no lower vent at all, or entrance for air, for the purpose of carbonization. There was, in fact, a door, or vent at the bottom, but it was used only for the purpose of igniting the charge, and then it was closed and kept closed during the whole operation. The Commissioner took the view that closing the bottom vent was a mere working direction for the manipulation of the draught. But, according to the facts, it was something quite different. It did not manipulate the draught; it abolished it. It was not a working direction, because it was entirely contrary to the prior system of working, and no operator previously could have considered it within the limits of practical charcoal burning to cut off entirely the access of the lower air. In those circumstances, it appeared to his Honor that the applicant's specification should not have been refused for the reason given by the Commissioner. The appeal was, therefore, allowed, and the decision of the Court was that the application and specification should be accepted.

PROCEEDINGS FOR PROHIBITION.

Three applications to have made absolute an order nisi, for prohibition, granted on May 16, this year, directing the president of the Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration, and the Merchant Service Guild, to show cause why prohibition should not be issued to the president and the guild, to restrain them from proceeding with a certain plaint, brought by the guild against the applicants, amongst others, were consolidated. The cases were continued from the previous day.

For the applicants in the first case (Allen Taylor and Co., Ltd., and others), Messrs. Knox, K.C., and Kelynack, instructed by Messrs. R. S. Dunhill and E. De Y. Scroggie, appeared. Mr. Glynn, of South Australia, instructed by Mr. G. M'Ewin, for the applicants in the second case, the Gulf Steamship Company, Ltd.; and Mr. Curlewis, instructed by Messrs. Abbott and Allen, agents for Messrs. Ewing, Hodgson, and Seagar, for William Holyman and Sons, Ltd., and other applicants in Tasmania, in the third case. Mr. Beeby and Mr. Crawford, instructed by Sullivan Bros., appeared for the Merchant Service Guild, respondents; and Mr. Wise, K.C., and Mr. Flannery, instructed by the Commonwealth Crown Solicitor, for the Commonwealth Attorney-General, who had been granted leave to intervene.

It was shown that the whole of the respondents to the plaint were not applicants, but all the applicants in the present proceedings were respondents. The grounds relied upon in support of the motion for prohibition were that there was no dispute, and no industrial dispute; that there was no industrial dispute extending beyond the limits of one State; that there was no single dispute, the alleged dispute consisting of several disputes which—or some of which—were not between the same parties. Appellants contended that there was no jurisdiction when a particular trade was territorial—that is, confined within the limits of a particular State—and that there must be some connection between the respondents, between themselves, beyond the connection, if any, which might arise from the fact that they were carrying on a similar class of business, and were consequently likely to employ the same class of operatives. A further ground taken denied that the Court had jurisdiction to grant leave of absence on full pay. The Crown successfully applied for leave to intervene on certain points of law.

The case was not concluded.

SUPREME COURT.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury of four.)

RECORD WITHDRAWN.
Bourke v Daily Telegraph Newspaper Company, Limited.

On the application of Mr. W. A. Walker, who appeared for the plaintiff (Mr. Sheridan for the defendant consenting), the record in this case was withdrawn, plaintiff not being ready to proceed.

CLAIM FOR RESUMPTION.
Lanceley v Minister for Works.

Mr. Rolin, K.C., and Mr. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. Fitzhardinge, Son, and Houston, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Blacket, K.C., and Mr. W. A. Walker, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. J. V. Tillett), for the defendant. This was an action brought by Edward Robert Lanceley against the Minister for Public Works (nominal defendant for the Government) for the purpose of determining the value of about two acres of land in the vicinity of the St. Leonards Railway Station, North Sydney, resumed by the Government for the purpose of extending the Royal North Sydney Hospital. Plaintiff's case was that the land in question was opposite the station named, with a frontage to Lane Cove-road, and at the back, about 200 or 300 yards away, there was a large brick-making works. In 1909 plaintiff bought the property for £2250, and he was now claiming a very much larger sum, owing, as he contended, to the fact that the increase of population in the locality and its possibilities for residential and business purposes in the immediate future had rendered the land much more valuable since he purchased.

The plaintiff's case was concluded and that of defendant opened. The jury then went out to inspect the land, and the case stands part heard.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson.)
Crown Prosecutor: Mr. H. Harris.

FRENCH SAILORS CHARGED.

Francis Lemateiot and Allain Stephen, two French seamen, were charged with assaulting Francois Le Page, and robbing him of 14s in money, on October 31, at Balmain.

Mr. Fanker appeared for both accused.

The evidence for the prosecution was that the three men had been drinking together, and that after Le Page left the accused to go to his ship, he was assaulted and robbed while crossing the Pyrmont Bridge. He had no doubt about the identification of the two accused.

The defence was that it was a case of mistaken identity.

After further evidence the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. Both accused were discharged.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Scholes.)
Crown Prosecutor, Mr. J. H. Mason.

ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.

James Mahoney, about 35 years of age, was charged with assaulting George Weeden and robbing him of a watch, chain, two bunches of keys, a purse, and 5s in money, at the Haymarket, Sydney, on September 24.

Mr. P. K. White appeared for the defence.

The evidence of prosecutor was that, when in a lane at 11 p.m., he was thrown to the ground and rendered unconscious. His pockets were rifled. He recognised the accused the next night, and gave him in charge.

The defence set up an alibi. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

Fourteen previous convictions, dating from August, 1885, were recorded against the prisoner. His Honor said he thought documents ought to be prepared to enable him to declare the prisoner an habitual criminal. He would not be doing his duty, he thought, to allow him to be at large again. He then sentenced him to five years' penal servitude in Goulburn Gaol.

A request by the prisoner that he should be allowed to petition for a remission of part of the sentence was refused by his Honor.

STEALING AND RECEIVING.

Anie Smith, a young widow, and Patrick Donohue, her brother, were charged with stealing from Alexander Skene, at Redfern, on November 4, a handkerchief and money to the amount of £5 14s 3d.

Mr. J. C. J. Ryan appeared for both accused.

The prosecution set out that a £5 note, identified as the property of the prosecutor, was found in the possession of the male accused.

For the defence, Donohue went into the box and said he did not know how the £5 note got into his possession. He had not seen it before it was shown to him after his arrest. Smith made a statement from the dock, in which she said the prosecutor had given her the money in mistake for a £1 note. When she discovered the mistake she tried to find Skene, but could not.

His Honor directed the jury that there was no evidence of actual stealing against Donohue.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty of stealing against Annie Smith, and of guilty of receiving against Patrick Donohue. Donohue was recommended to mercy on account of his previous good conduct.

His Honor sentenced Annie Smith to six months' imprisonment in the Long Bay Reformatory, and Donohue was sentenced to six months, but was liberated as a first offender upon finding a surety in £20 to be of good behaviour for twelve months.

THE WOLLONGONG ESCAPEE.

Cecil Derwent Wordle was charged with a serious offence against a girl 14 years of age, to which he pleaded not guilty. He was also charged with escaping from the gaol at Wollongong. He pleaded not guilty.

At the request of accused, his trial on both charges was ordered to stand over till next sessions. Bail was not applied for.

ALLEGED FRAUDS.

SOUTH AFRICAN CASE.

EXTRADITION APPLIED FOR.

Norman Ebenezer McKay appeared before Mr. Smithers at the Central Police Court yesterday, consequent upon information supplied by Detective-Sergeant Tuns, of the Criminal Investigation Department, South Africa, who produced depositions charging McKay with falsity, forgery, and fraud.

Detective Bradley stated in evidence that on January 21 he charged the accused at the Central Police Station, by virtue of a warrant (produced), for the crimes of forgery, falsity, and theft, committed at Durban on or about May 8 last. McKay replied:—"I am the person named in the warrant. I was in Durban on May 8." Detective Malone had found a cheque-book, out of which a number of cheques had been drawn on the Standard Bank of South Africa. Witness also produced the cheques, bearing the same numbers as those on the butts.

Detective-Sergeant Tuffs, besides tendering the South African charge depositions, produced, with other documents, deposit slips purporting to have been issued by the Government Savings Bank of New South Wales. He said that the warrant was applied for by the Standard Bank of South Africa on June 7.

Richard Percy Breden, manager of the Government Savings Bank, Moore-street, said that his bank issued no such documents as the deposit slips produced. So far as he could ascertain there was no deposit at the bank in the name of Norman Ebenezer McKay. Nor were there such managers as Bowman and Bagley, whose signatures appeared on the deposit slips. An embossed stamp imprinted on one of the slips was not identical with any used by his bank.

In reply to the accused, witness said that it was not within the power of the Treasury to emboss documents of the Savings Bank, or to issue vouchers on it.

The magistrate committed McKay to 15 days' detention in Darlinghurst Gaol. "During that time," he said to him, "you may apply for a writ of habeas corpus at the Supreme Court, to test the legality of these proceedings. If, however, you do not choose to take such a course, you will, at the end of the period of 15 days, be extradited to South Africa."

McKay: If I waive the right to appeal can I be sent away by the first available boat?

The Magistrate: That is a matter that rests entirely with you.

POLICE COURTS.

MAGISTRATE ON APPEALS.

Before Mr. Smithers, at the Central Police Court yesterday, Joseph Geoghegan, 27, was charged with having stolen a watch-chain and sovereign-purse, valued at 10s, at Sydney, on November 17.

In sentencing the accused to six months' hard labour, the magistrate remarked that it was a most despicable thing to rob a drunken man.

"I give notice of appeal," said the accused.

"Very well," replied the magistrate. "It's quite a mechanical thing now to appeal in this way," he added.

EXCESS OF EXPLOSIVES.

Two firms were proceeded against in the Water Summons Court yesterday for committing a breach of the Explosives Act.

Mr. Bathgate appeared for the prosecution.

F. Lassetter and Co., Ltd., were proceeded against for having more than the licensed quantity of gunpowder stored at a magazine at 103 York-street. Mr. Brown, for the defence, said excess powder was put in one magazine by mistake. Defendants pleaded guilty. The license was for 100lb, and there were 165½lb found. A fine of £2, with 6s costs, was imposed. It was the first time the firm had been proceeded against.

Dalgety and Co. were proceeded against in respect of their premises at Parbury-lane, Dawes Point. Mr. Clifford Minter, of Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., pleaded guilty on behalf of the defendants. It was stated that 25lb of explosive was found outside the receptacle provided for storage. It was the first offence. A fine of £2, with 6s costs, was imposed.

ALLEGED FORGERY.

In the Water Court yesterday, before Mr. Clarke, S.M., Thomas Taylor, or Percy Frost, 19, was charged with having forged and uttered a cheque for £7 5s, purporting to be drawn on the Gosford branch of the Commercial Bank of Australia in the name of C. O. Smith. There was a second charge of having forged a cheque for £5 15s. On both charges the defendant was committed for trial.

150 MILES MOTOR CYCLE HANDICAP. WON BY A 2¾-H.P. NEW HUDSON.

The West Australian Motor Cycle Club recently held a contest something like the well-known English Tourist Trophy Race, similar roads being chosen.

The course was from Perth to York, Northam, Lloyd's Crossing, via Midland Junction, and when fifteen competitors faced the starter the weather was perfect. A splendid race resulted, the winner being Mr. Lewis, who rode a 2¾-h.p. New Hudson in 4 hours 29 min. 56 secs.

This proves that the New Hudson is specially designed to the requirements of Australian roads—its sturdy build, its powerful engine, with ample clearance, its extra strong wheels and heavy tyres, Bosch Magneto, B. and B. Carburettor, extra large padded saddle, combined with the wonderful Armstrong 3 speed gear and free engine clutch, fit it for the most strenuous work. For power, speed, and reliability this combination equals, and even surpasses, the unwieldy 6-h.p. or 7-h.p. machine, and has none of its disadvantages—expensive upkeep, tyre wear, and waste of petrol. Call and examine it, or write for Free Catalogue.

THE BRASIER CAR ONCE MORE JUSTIFIES HER CLAIM TO THE TITLE OF QUEEN OF THE ROAD.

being the ONLY CAR carrying 5 people, and FULL TOURING EQUIPMENT to go through the recent 3 DAYS' strenuous TRIAL (Nov. 21 to 23) from SYDNEY to ORANGE, ORANGE to YASS, and YASS to SYDNEY, under the auspices of the Automobile Club of Australia, without LOSING A SINGLE POINT for RELIABILITY; and notwithstanding the HEAVY LOAD, our 16-H.P. CAR made the remarkable RECORD of 26 MILES to the GALLON for the full journey, obtaining the highest points, and WINNING THE TEST for PETROL CONSUMPTION.

The Car was fitted with the STANDARD BRASIER CARBURETTER, NO EXTRA AIR DEVICE being fitted.

It is worthy of note that although a regular starter in ALL these CONTESTS for the past SIX YEARS, the BRASIER CARS have never lost a SINGLE POINT for RELIABILITY.

PALMER CORD TYRES

THE FRICTIONLESS TYRES.

The efficiency of the cord construction in Palmer Cord Tyres prevents internal friction—which in a canvas tyre retards speed, wastes engine power, and generates heat sufficient to eventually ruin the tyre.

PALMER CORD TYRES

have a base of rubber cords embedded in vulcanised rubber. There is consequently no sawing or rubbing action to generate heat.

Go right into this matter of tyre-economy—let us post you the interesting booklet.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

NORTHERN TERRITORY PROBLEMS.

The Northern Territory is yet a distant hill, but not, it must be confessed, a very green one, to many with the spirit of the pioneers who already find the southern States too small for the expansion of their ambitions and energies. These prospective pioneers are only awaiting some call such as a mining discovery to rush to the Territory, heedless of cautions, warnings, and predictions of disaster, and the Territory might then become one of the most prolific States of the Commonwealth. For it must be apparent that such is the Territory's inevitable destiny. It is the gate, as yet closed, to the east, with its teeming millions, who need meat and bread. The scratching of the surface has revealed the existence of mineral wealth. The building of railways and systematic working of the known permanent fields will take with it a population that must be fed, and agriculture must follow. Once the miners are attracted new fields will be found and opened, and new agricultural districts put under the plough as a natural sequence. Then, the land yielding in abundance, outlets for export will be needed and provided.

To precede this inevitable development, and to forestall failure, the Commonwealth Government is conducting agricultural experiments to test the possibilities of the Territory. The land, in an agricultural sense, is at present practically unknown, and it is better that the disappointments and failures should be met and overcome by the Government than by the struggling pioneers. The first essential is to know what the Territory can, and what it cannot, grow. The regular annual rainfall, while in one sense a magnificent asset, is in another a decided drawback. It upsets all the methods of cultivation arrived at in the southern States after years of experiment and experience. The farmers' calendars, carefully elaborated, are of very little use in the new country. The first duty being faced by the Department of Agriculture is to place the months properly in their agricultural positions. This is work that can only be done by extensive, systematic sowings, such as would be beyond the farmer. There is excellent wheat land in the Territory, but it is asking too much that the varieties now cultivated in the south should be successful as commercial crops under the changed climatic conditions. New wheats will have to be bred that will ripen before the opening of the rainy season of October to March.

Encouraging results have been obtained from sowings of seed wheat imported from India, and probably quicker definite results will be obtained by further experiments with Indian wheats than with Australian. Tobacco will grow well in the Territory—there is an abundance of suitable land—but there again the Dpartment of Agriculture will have to adapt varieties to suit the climate. And right through the piece, from fruit trees to vegetables, from cereals to cotton, the Director of Agriculture and his officers will find their work cut out testing 20 varieties where in the south they would be experimenting with one, and at least a couple of years must pass before they can safely advise new settlers which plants to plant with any reasonable assurance of a harvest.

Notwithstanding the reputation of the Territory as a cattle-breeding country, the casual rule-of-thumb methods which have been in vogue, because the cheapest, on the great holdings, are not the methods which will help to develop and make a new State of the north. Little account has been taken of the great stock losses at the end of the dry season, when the dried grass has no more sustenance in it than a pocket of nails, because the country has been held and worked so cheaply that the losses have not been felt. But new days and smaller holdings will demand that some effort be made to conserve fodder to tide over the dry months, which done will treble the carrying capacity of the land. So far attempts to convert the rich early growth of grass into hay and ensilage have not been over-successful, because the moisture during the rainy season causes mildew and rot. No doubt these difficulties will be overcome by a system of partial drying before compressing.

It seems obvious that the new land will not be settled from the coastal areas to the back country, as has been the case in the southern States. The country on which the first successes will be made are on the tablelands, hundreds of miles away from the coast. The coastal areas present too many difficult problems, chief of which are malaria and insect pests, to be combated, while good land awaits development further back. One may expect, then, that the old order of settlement preceding railways must be reversed in the new country if success is to be achieved. The Transcontinental railway will be found an urgent necessity before any large scheme of settlement can be put into operation, while some endeavour must also be made to cheapen the present exorbitant steamship fares and freights, which alone at the outset stifle the enterprise of many who would try their luck in the new land.

The difficulties which are now being faced, however, are giving breathing time to the Federal Government to get its house in order. It will be as well if the Government has a year or two to prepare for the expansion which will inevitably follow the first important mineral discovery, when the problems which now worry the advance guard will be trampled beneath the eager feet of the main army of pioneers.

ITEMS.

Milk testing is now being taught in the State schools of Tasmania.

The inspectors in Eastern Riverina report a decrease in the rabbits, due to the attack by fumigation and the placing of jam baits near the warrens.

The Corowa grape season promises well. The district has raised a large area of tomatoes this year. So far the crop has been very favourable.

The disease known as "take-all" has so attacked the paddocks at Yolla, Tasmania, that there is not a blade of grass left in large areas.

Potatoes under irrigation in Victoria have yielded returns worth £100 per acre this season.

South Australian farmers have experienced a record season for potatoes so far as prices are concerned. From two districts—Mount Gambier and Glencoe—the output of 4170 tons sold at £80,000.

What is claimed by the produce inspector, Mr. Trigg, to be a record crop of potatoes was raised in a garden plot at Warrnambool. The ground was 40 feet by 16. Some 336 sets were sown, and the tubers yielded a return of £8 10s. The variety grown was Up-to-date, planted in July.

The Prime Minister in New Zealand has promised to give financial assistance to fruit-growers for purpose of erecting canneries and cool stores.

It is estimated that during the past few years no less than 20,000 stud sheep have gone from Australia to South Africa. Wool-buyers now in Australia say that the wool in South Africa has greatly improved in recent years.

A considerable quantity of ensilage is being stacked at the Wagga State farm. Local farmers are displaying increased interest in the conservation of fodder. The officials state that better results in feeding lambs have been obtained from ensilage than from hay.

Owing to the low state of the Darling River thousands of bales of wool must remain along the banks till the water rises. Old steamboat men declare that they have never seen the river in such a dangerous condition owing to snags. It is stated in South Australia that that State has been continuously at work snagging on the Lower Murray, while both New South Wales and Victoria have neglected the Darling.

HOW WEEDS ARE DISTRIBUTED.

Mr. T. Milnes, of Bradford, Yorkshire, who had read Mr. Fred. Turner's article on the "prickly poppy" of Mexico in the "Sydney Morning Herald" of September 14 last, has forwarded to Mr. Turner a newspaper clipping containing a precis of the report of the American Consul on the distribution of weeds. That part of the report relating to Australia reads as follows:—"The American Consul in Bradford remarks in a report that Australian burrs have been found in Kent, and the explanation is believed to be that the dust from a Bradford wool-combing establishment has been sold for fertilising purposes to farmers, and, having been spread upon the land, the seed has germinated. The Consul goes on to state that a botanical observer reported that on the Bradford sewerage works at Frizinghall he had picked no fewer than 160 species of plants, either foreign to the country altogether or plants which, although British, do not occur naturally in the Bradford district. Among them were several species of medick, or burr, of Australian origin, the 'thorn apple,' several species of amaranthus, and the 'prickly poppy' of Mexico."

TIMBER WASTE.

INPORTANT INTERSTATE CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE.—The conference of representatives of the various Forestry Departments throughout Australia has been concluded in Melbourne. Mr. Hay (N.S.W.) brought forward the question of the many difficulties in connection with the sale and export of timbers, which now arise, owing to the difficulty of properly identifying them. The conference decided to impress upon the forestry departments of the several States, the necessity of publishing in the form of bulletins, authoritative descriptions of all the physical features of all the chief hardwoods growing in their State, and to assist the export trade and the public, by every means in their power, to obtain all timbers, which they may require true to specification and name.

Mr. Hay also contributed a paper on the question of economisation of waste material, with a view of properly utilising a large proportion of the waste which occurs in the forests in connection with the conversion of timber, and of ascertaining what by-products of commercial value can be obtained from such waste.

The conference decided that, as the Government of New South Wales is about to undertake extensive and exhaustive tests as to the suitability of certain Australian timbers, for the production of wood pulp, members attending from the other States should in their individual capacity recommend that New South Wales also be asked to test certain timbers and waste material from their State.

FROZEN MEAT.

A QUIET MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 25.

The opening of English and Welsh ports to Irish cattle, after foot and mouth disease prohibition, has caused, in places, an over-supply of beef. The authorities, for a time, do not favour the export of Irish sheep; they wished to allow of the surplus cattle being shipped, as food is running short. There have been, too, heavy supplies of South American chilled beef, with plenty of English and Dutch mutton. Frozen beef has suffered; but, as sales of frozen sheep and lambs have not been pressed, they have not fallen so much in value. New Zealand mutton supplies will be short until the new season, and prices last week declined. Australian mutton is short, and but small quantities have been dealt in. There has been a moderate supply of South American mutton. Frozen lambs are quiet, and are meeting with competition from Scotch and Irish lamb. A few Australians have been sold at 4½d to 5d per lb. Chilled beef has been in plentiful supply, and prices of frozen have declined. Uruguay has sent 7816 quarters of frozen beef.

Both in London and the provinces the market has been quiet, frozen beef being in the most unsatisfactory position of all. For the last week frozen mutton and lamb have practically remained unchanged, but the last few days frozen beef has fallen away very much owing to heavy supplies and to low prices ruling for chilled. Australian frozen beef has dropped to 1s 7d and to 2s 3d for hinds. New Zealand beef is about 1s 8d fores and 2s 3d to 2s 4d hinds, River Plate beef being 1s 8d fores and 2s 3d hinds. New Zealand mutton is very short, and prices to-day are the same as they were a week ago, viz., prime 4½d to 4¾d, secondary 4¼d, and ewes 3½d to 4d per lb. Australian mutton, small, stands at 4d nominal, a shade less than a fortnight ago. South American, large, mutton, is at 3½d to 4½d. During the last few days there has been slightly better inquiry for frozen lamb, but this has hardly been sufficient to affect prices. Canterbury lambs are making 5s 9d to 5s 10d for under 42, and 5s 5d for over 42. Secondary descriptions are 5s 6d to 5s 7d.

MEETINGS OF FARMERS.

PARKES.—At the annual meeting of the P. and A. Association, the balance-sheet, which was adopted, showed that although, owing to the drought in the early part of the year, the receipts from entries were £30 less than last year, this was more than compensated for by the increased amounts received from the gates and privileges, both of which were records. The total amount paid away in prize money was £421.

SHEARING.

GOONDIWINDI (Q.).—At Welltown station, which cut out last week about 50,000 sheep were put through in eight weeks, with 24 men on the board. Ballingarry also finished last week, 13,000 being shorn. Shearing is now practically completed in this district, with the exception of a few growers who adhere to late shearing.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BREWARRINA.—There is still a quantity of dry feed in the district. Kangaroos and emu have become very scarce. Some months ago the protection on kangaroos was raised for a short period, and recently the protection on emus was also raised. During these two periods an enormous number of both kangaroos and emus were shot, or killed by dogs. The skins find a ready market in Sydney. If the kangaroos and emus are not protected all the year round there will be none left in the district shortly.

BOMBALA.—On Saturday 150 points of rain fell in Bombala in a few hours. Since shearing commenced, rain has fallen every few days, and the work is being very much delayed in consequence. The country generally, however, looks splendid.

BOWRAVILLE.—Phillip Lamph, a farmer at South Arm, Nambucca, has introduced wheat into the district with fair success. He is following out farming on scientific lines, having built the first silo on the river. The wheat grown is the same as that in the Maitland district. With the wheat he planted field peas. It is contended that this combination will make splendid chaff. At present almost all the chaff used in the district is imported, but Mr. Lamph intends growing his own in future. The land on which the wheat is grown produced a good yield of corn this year. This he used for ensilage purposes.

DUBBO.—Mr. H. Stockings, of The Oaks, Old Balladoran, has cut 65 tons of hay from 50 acres of wheat. The balance of his 260-acre crop he will strip, and if something unforeseen does not occur, he hopes to strip an average of 12 bushels of wheat off his 210 remaining acres of crop. He hopes to start harvesting this week. The land was all summer fallowed. He started ploughing after Christmas, finishing in the middle of April, and concluding seeding operation by May 2. He admitted that he was fortunate in getting chance showers in the summer and autumn, which others missed. He hopes to increase his cleared area to 440 acres, which will enable him to fallow 140 acres each year, the short fallow being too uncertain.

GERMANTON.—The harvest prospects in this district are at the present time looking remarkably bright with regard to the yields of both hay and wheat. The late rains have been of great value to the growth of the crops, and it is generally acknowledged that it will make a difference of one or two bushels to the acre in the yield of the wheat. Hay harvesting is now becoming general all through the district, and the yield per acre is far beyond expectations. Some of the farms are averaging over two tons to the acre, especially where the land was fallowed. There will also be a marked improvement on the yield of the late-sown crops. The grass lands have also benefited greatly and there will be no scarcity of feed for some time to come. The dams and tanks on all holdings have now got a fair supply of water.

MOLONG.—Fine, dry weather, is now prevailing, with a cool breeze. Harvesting is going on all round the district. Federation wheat is taking the lead in yield in most portions of the district, most of the crops being from 3ft 6in in height, and full-headed. In the majority of cases a 20-bushel yield is assured.

PEAK HILL.—Harvesting has started on Mungery settlement area. W. Freckllngton's crop is giving six bags, and C. Freckllngton's (on shares with W. J. Williams) between eight and nine bags. Kitsey's is going eight bags, and Scolars' six bags (Steinweidel). The crops all through the district where a start has been made are going better than anticipated. Wilkinson, on Mungery, who came from Victoria, states that he has never had anything there to equal his crop on Mungery. A. Crouch, close to Peak Hill, has taken off 250 tons of hay. He topped the market with it three days running in Sydney.

WENTWORTH.—At the montly meeting of the Curlwaa Fruit-Growers' Association, a communication was read from the Agricultural Department, to the effect that the department was willing for the settlers to rent the common, provided they paid the Wentworth Council rent. The offer was accepted. The department also wrote that, with reference to concreting the irrigation channels, the work would be proceeded with as soon as money was available. The settlers were also informed that, with reference to cutting posts, etc., on the forest reserve, the consent of the council as lessees, would have to be secured. A sub-committee was appointed to secure a limestone quarry site, with a view to having it surveyed and reserved for the settlers on the irrigation area.

YOUNG.—The season is turning out splendidly, and the outlook could hardly be better. Since the advent of warm weather, accompanied by good showers, the grass has made good growth, and there is every prospect of good summer feed. The crops were also looking excellent, and promise a yield above the average. Cherry-picking is progressing steadily. The sample is hardly up to the average, owing to the absence of rain when the fruit was forming, but the crop, on the whole, is fairly satisfactory. On the low lands the frost affected the yield more or less seriously, and, in isolated cases, hardly any crop will be picked. A large portion of the apricot crop was also destroyed by the late frosts, but the remainder is of good sample and promises a fair yield. Apples have set light crops this season, while peaches promise to be very good and plentiful.

NEWCASTLE.

PAY FOR SMALL COAL

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The evidence of the Colliery Employees' Federation for their claim for payment for small coal was concluded at to-day's meeting of the Joint Conciliation Committee. The proprietors announced that they hoped to be in a position to begin to place their evidence before the committee on Friday next.

Mr. Teece, a representative of the employees, referred to certain work at Abermain Colliery, which the manager held was cut through, but which the men claimed was winning work. The miners were now working under protest pending a settlement by the joint committee.

A comprehensive agreement for working tops at Neath Colliery was drawn up, and ratified by the committee.

NEWCASTLE QUARTER SESSIONS.

John Ternent was charged at the Quarter Sessions this morning with breaking and entering a dwelling-house at Kurri Kurri and stealing a watch and other articles therein. Accused pleaded guilty. Judge Fitzhardinge remanded him for sentence. Ternent was also charged with breaking and entering a dwelling on March 23, at Singleton, and stealing. He pleaded guilty, and was remanded for sentence. Albert Watson, who pleaded guilty to several charges of stealing, and James Ross, who pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing one horse and saddle and bridle, were remanded for sentence. Frank Nietainen, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of maliciously wounding at Muswellbrook, on October 20, was acquitted. Frank Burns pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny and receiving a stolen watch chain and finger ring. He was acquitted on the larceny charge, and found guilty of receiving, and sentenced to six months' hard labour in Maitland Gaol.

DRY SCALES CAME OVER BABY'S HEAD.

Eton-street, Hampstead, Ashburton, New Zealand:—"When my baby was about six weeks old, her head all came out in a rash. It was the same two or three mornings, and then her cheeks and eyebrows got red and itchy, and she could not sleep. Her cheeks were cracked looking and were bright red in the morning, and dry scales came over her head at the top and on her eyebrows. I was told it would go away after teething. I tried ointment, but it did no good.

"I had seen the Cuticura Remedies advertised frequently, and resolved to try them. I got a sample tin of the Cuticura Ointment and used it as directed. It had a wonderful effect and did a lot of good from the very first. I have put it on her face, and the red inflammation has gone out of it in two hours. I cannot say exactly how long the eczema lasted, but I used the sample tin and a little more out of another I bought, and baby has had no return of the symptoms, and is now ten months old." (Signed) Mrs. Letitia Clemens, April, 1912.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. M, Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," Herald Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Granville. The prices quoted are per pair. Muscovy drakes are always several shillings per pair dearer than ducks, due to their greater size. Suburban-bred poultry at all times secures a better price than supplies from inland, owing to the fact that the fowls are better bred and better fed.

Beginner. Langshans, Orpingtons, Wyandottes, and Plymouth Rocks are termed "the generally useful" breeds. They are good layers, and possess better meat qualities than the Mediterranean breeds.

Anxious. A bird in the condition you mention should be at once destroyed, and the carcase burned. It is a case of diphtheritic roup, and any attempts at a cure might only be the means of spreading the disease, as it is most contagious.

Victorian. There is no fear of the business being overdone. The great demand of the large city and suburban population will prevent a slump in prices.

W.W.—The food you mention is only used as a substitute for bran. Good sound wheat is the best evening feed, with maize occasionally.

The tenth annual meeting of the Parramatta and District Poultry Club will be held in the School of Arts, Parramatta, on Tuesday evening, December 3. The election of officers for the ensuing year will be the principal business.

The egg market at the end of last week was a bit irregular. Some of the big houses made extensive clearing at 12½d, those carrying smaller stocks securing 1/1. The Northern River breeders have never experienced such good prices in the plentiful time as of late, the one-time price of /6 and /7 per dozen in September and October being a thing of the past. The late current rate has been /10 for fair sorts.

At a meeting of poultry breeders held in the Sackville School of Arts on Friday evening, the lecturer was questioned about the prospects of the bran and pollard market. Mr. Bradshaw said he had no expert knowledge of this subject, but anticipating such a query he had consulted "the street" the day previously. The unanimous opinion of those in the trade was that while wheat might probably drop a few pence per bushel, there was no hope of any decline in the price of by-products for a considerable time. The bulk of the mills had closed for Christmas, which ordinarily meant a hardening of price.

The weekly report of the Premier Poultry Co-operative Society contains the following paragraph:—"As is ever the case at this season of the year, geese are in demand, but really it is not too much to say that the art of feeding geese is apparently lost. Turkeys are in keenest demand, and in every case very high figures are netted. Of late we have read something about ostrich-farming being a coming industry, and if every one is not embarking in it, what about a real turkey or geese farm?"

Those who purpose having the biggest turkey available for their Christmas dinner will, without question, be obliged to pay a stiff price for it. At last Thursday's sale 27/ to 40/ were current rates for large ones, an average of over 1/ per lb live weight. So that when the goods are plucked, trussed, and the offal removed, and a profit allowed for to the poulterer, fully 1/6 per lb live weight must be charged. The foxes, the poison cart, and the export trade have all contributed to the excessive rates.

Of the many breeds and varieties of fowls introduced into England within the past half-century, Leghorns have remained the most popular. In Australia the quantities of these kept on the utility farms are perhaps equal to all the other breeds combined. It is not generally known that Mr. Tegetmeier, whose death was recorded in last Thursday's "Herald," imported the first trio of this breed into England in 1869. A drawing of this imported trio was made for the "Illustrated London News" at the time, and except that the male bird's tail is higher than the now accepted type, the bird would fairly represent the laying type now so plentiful in Australia.

While the quality of the Northern Rivers poultry has of late years very much improved, the old system of forwarding in most unsuitable coops continues, except with a few consignors. If instead of three dozen mixed fowls being forwarded in one coop, the birds were graded, and forwarded in separate coops, the prices received would be distinctly better, and the death-rate would be less.

A cable in Thursday's issue of the "Herald" announced the death of Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier, F.Z.S., at the great age of 96 years. From his earliest days he was associated with the poultry business in England, before the arrival of the Cochin in 1847. Mr. Tegetmeier, in his earlier years, was responsible for quite a number of poultry works, including a most comprehensive one published in 1867, and illustrated in colours by the late Harrison Weir. He also contributed the poultry article for the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and was the editor of the poultry department of the English "Field" for nearly half a century.

Although a frequent judge in the sixties and seventies at the Royal Agricultural and other shows, the views of Mr. Tegetmeier within the past 30 years underwent great changes. In his last work, published in 1892, he says: "It is with regret I have seen the steadily increasing tendency of poultry shows to encourage mere fancy varieties, and to ignore altogether the profitable value of the birds exhibited. This has gone on to such an extent that I do not hesitate to affirm, as the result of my experience of half a century, that no one breed of fowls has been taken in hand by the fancier that has not been seriously depreciated as a useful variety of poultry. The economic value of many breeds has been entirely lost."

Now is the time, as the weather is getting warmer, for all poultry-keepers to look out for injurious insects, especially that scourge to poultry breeders—the red mite. This terrible insect, once it gets a chance to breed and spread, will work great havoc among the fowls. The best way to keep these red mites down or to exterminate them is to paint all the cracks and crevices with kerosene, the ends and under parts of the roosts to receive particular attention. It is as well to give a second application of kerosene after an interval of a few hours. If this is done regularly, and the houses kept well lime-washed, there will be no trouble with the red mite or other vermin. Where only a small number of fowls are kept they can occasionally be given a dusting with some reliable insect powder, particularly the sitting hens and their nests, also the laying boxes. If more attention were paid to these important facts, there would be fewer mopy, ailing fowls and complaints of lack of eggs among small poultry-keepers. Hens will not lay or sit if they are constantly worried with pests. Perfect cleanliness, with a liberal use of insect powder, lime-wash, and kerosene go a long way to ensuring more eggs, healthy fowls, and stronger chickens.

AERATED WATERS BOARD.

DUBBO, Tuesday.

The Aerated Waters Board sat in Dubbo for the purpose of taking evidence as to the rates of wages and working conditions in connection with the aerated waters trade in this district.

Alexander Hodges, a bottler, in the employ of John Hives and Son, cordial manufacturers, stated that £2 5s a week would be a fair wage for packing, working in the syrup room, siphoning, etc. A fair wage for an apprentice of 16 years of age was £1 a week.

F. J. Butler thought that nine hours a day was a fair time for five days, and six hours on Saturday for carters. The wage should be £2 10s a week for driving one or two horses. He was asking for 53½ hours a week.

William Francis Clifford said that 48 hours all round was a fair thing for all hands. He had been paid 1s 6d an hour for overtime. A man who was competent to take charge of the machinery was worth £3 a week. A general hand should get £2 10s. Youths under 21 and over 18 should get £2 5s, and under 18 years, 30s a week. Girls under 21 should be paid 35s a week, and an adult woman should receive £2 5s a week.

Henry Neil Hives, cordial factory proprietor, Dubbo, said that £3 was a fair wage for a man in charge of the machinery, £2 16s was a fair thing for a bottler, and £2 5s for a bottle washer. A young man under 21, say, 19 years of age, was worth 30s a week. Work on holidays should be paid for at the rate of time and a half. The wages of a carter for one horse should be £2 10s, and 2s 6d extra with two horses. He had sold out or closed his branch factories, because some of the hotels had installed machinery for making their own aerated waters. He did not believe in preference to unionists.

James Osborne, cordial manufacturer, stated that he saw no necessity for preference to unionists.

This concluded the evidence.

STRIKE AT TOWNSVILLE.

TOWNSVILLE (Q.), Tuesday.

A strike took place yesterday amongst the employees on the new railway station buildings. Bricklayers' labourers, who are receiving 9s 6d a day, demanded an increase of 1s per day. The bricklayers and a number of general labourers downed tools in support of the demand. Twenty-one men have left the works, only the carpenters and a few general labourers being left on the job.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

SAWMILL EMPLOYEES.

The building trades group No. 9 board (Mr. F. A. A. Russell, chairman), which is dealing with the wages and conditions of saw-mill employees in the country, will sit in Sydney (Denman Chambers) on Monday next, at 10 a.m., to take evidence. When the Sydney evidence is completed the board will go to Goulburn, and on return will sit again at Sydney to hear the addresses of advocates. It is expected that the award will be available at the middle of next month.

UNITED LABOURERS.

The Warringah Shire Council recently passed a resolution setting out that in December, January, February, and March, the day labour workmen should be allowed to complete the 48 hours between Monday and Friday inclusive, so that they might have the whole of Saturday off. However much this change might please the employees it is opposed by the union. At Monday night's meeting of the United Labourers' Protective Society the secretary was instructed to point out to the council that this was an infringement of the eight-hour principle and also of the awards. All awards dealing with labourers provide for 8½ hours per day, for five days in the week, and 4½ hours on Saturday. Ninety-two new members were admitted to the U.L.P. Society on Monday, making a total of 5300.

STOREMEN AND PACKERS.

The taking of evidence before the Wages Board (Mr. N. Seal, chairman), dealing with the wages and conditions of storemen and packers, is just about completed. It is expected that the award will be announced in the course of the next few days.

PRESSERS' UNION.

The Pressers' Union has succeeded in coming to a satisfactory settlement with the State Clothing Factory regarding working hours. The employees now get the three-quarters of an hour off for lunch, without any deduction being made in their pay at the week-end. At Monday night's meeting the secretary (Mr. M. J. Reddy) reported having interviewed the Industrial Department respecting those private employers who were not adhering to the terms of the award, and he stated that the department had agreed to prosecute those who were deducting 1¼ hours per week from employees.

It was decided, consequent upon the date for the half-yearly meeting falling on the Monday before Christmas, to have this meeting a fortnight earlier.

Considerable comment was made upon the recent remarks of Mr. Justice Heydon as to the wage question, and the cost of living, and the hope was expressed that the Labour Council's committee would recommend some way out of the difficulty.

A PIONEER UNIONIST.

Mr. William Gillespie, one of the founders of the United Labourers' Protective Society, which was established in 1861, was, on Monday night, elected a life member of this union.

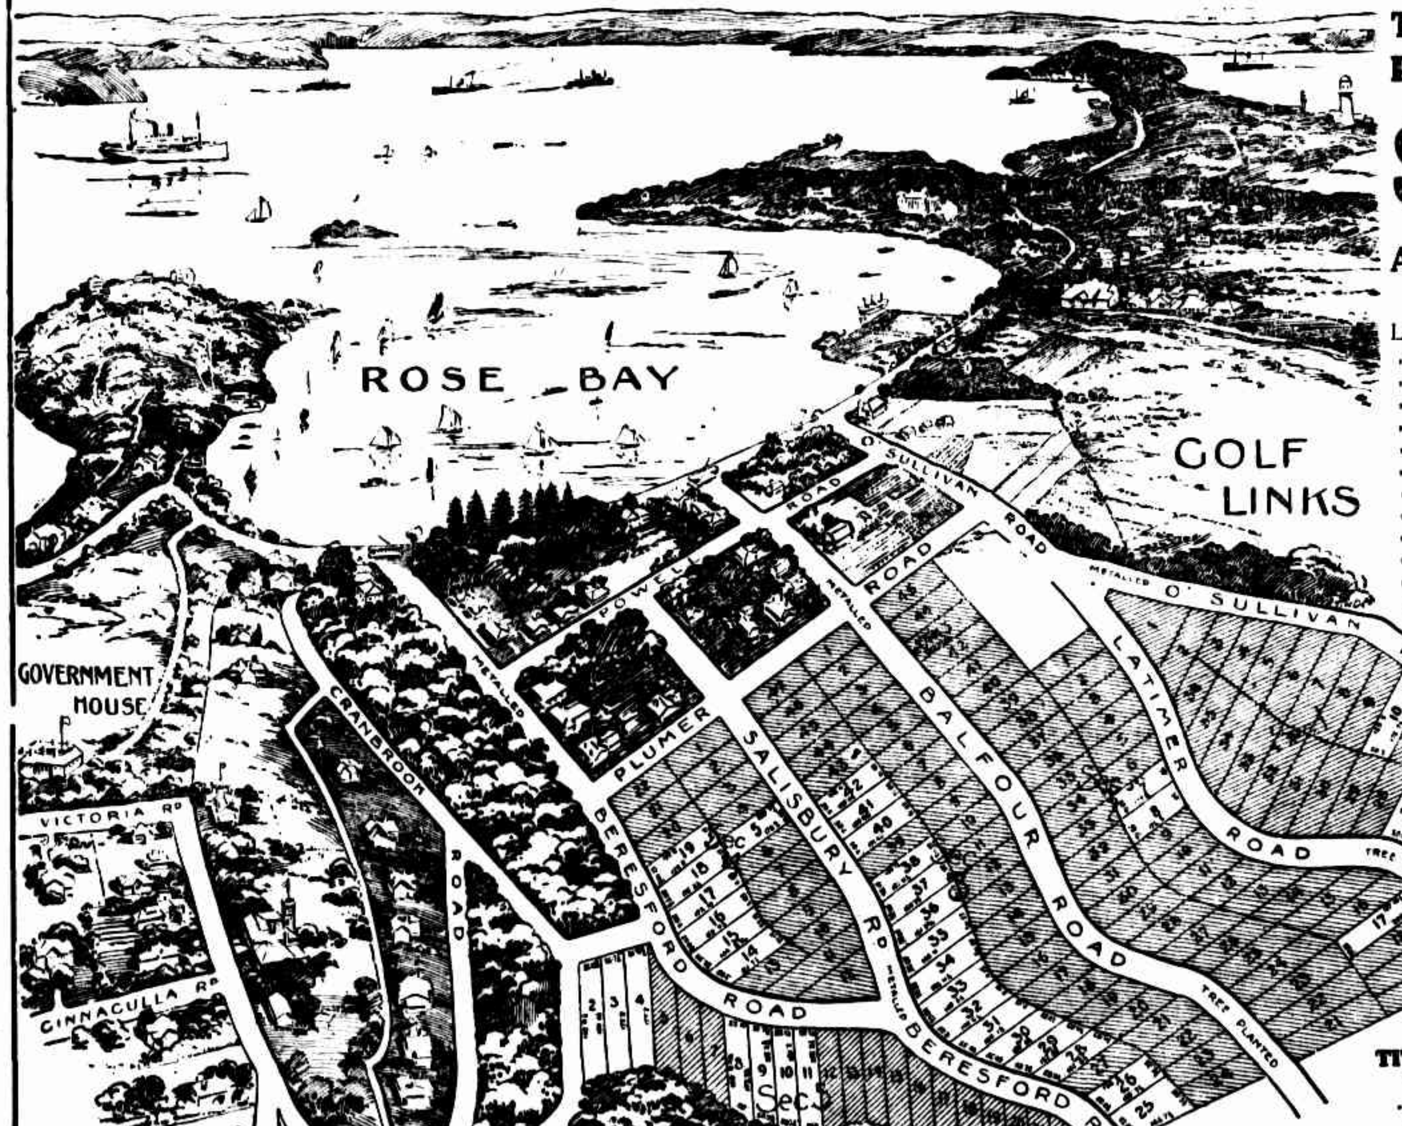

He is one of the oldest trade unionists in New South Wales. He came to this country in 1851, being then 18 years of age. He was one of the originators, too, of the eight-hour movement, and has attended the celebrations for the past 30 years. In the early days the masons and carpenters used to celebrate Eight-hour Day with a dinner. Mr. Gillespie's mind is still fresh in connection with the first demonstration in 1871. It took the form of a combined procession in the city and an excursion to Balmoral Beach.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN MINERS.

KALGOORLIE, Monday.

A ballot of workers engaged in the mining industry to decide whether the offer of the Chamber of Mines of a rise of 6d per day in the minimum rate for surface workers should be accepted was taken last week, the miners participating having a total strength of slightly over 4000 men. Considerable interest was taken in the ballot. Approximately three-fourths of the men exercised their right to vote. The scrutiny took place on Sunday at a meeting of the combined unions committee, in the workers' hall, Boulder, when Mr. W. Openshaw presided over a full attendance of delegates. The secretary, Mr. G. M'Leod, stated subsequently that the ballot had resulted as follows:—No, 2395; yes, 610; informal, 21; total, 3026. The question of the next step to be taken was then considered, and after a sitting which lasted till nearly 5.30 p.m., it was decided to convey the result of the ballot to the Chamber of Mines, and to request that body to again meet the combined committee to discuss terms for the settlement of the dispute.

SOUTH AFRICANS ENTERTAINED.

NEWPORT RECEIVE THEIR MASCOT.

The South African Rugby team were entertained by the Newport Athletic Club after their defeat by Newport on October 24, and there was a remarkable gathering of old internationals, including Arthur Gould, A. Boucher, T. W. Pearson, F. H. Dauncey, H. Packer, G. Boots, W. Hodges, C. M. Pritchard, and others. Testimony was paid to the splendid sporting spirit shown by the South Africans, and Mr. Millar, in responding to the toast, spoke of the pleasant character of the game, declared that they had no excuse to make, as they were beaten by the better side on the day's play, and handed to Walter Martin their mascot, a springbok's head.

The annual subscription to the Sydney Cricket Ground is now due, as advertised, and a member receives, in addition to his own medal, two tickets for ladies, giving admittance to the special reserve on all occasions.

THE TURF.

ALTERATIONS AT RANDWICK.

The increasing popularity of horseracing at Randwick has accentuated the necessity for more extensive seating accommodation for visitors, and the solution of the problem, which for some time past has seriously engaged the attention of the A.J.C. committee, has been brought about by Messrs. Robertson and Marks, architects, furnishing that body with plans for the reconstruction of the present grandstand into a double-decker, and for the extension of the official stand to double its present capacity. The plans have met with the approval of the governing body, and it has been decided to call for tenders for the work, which will be carried out in the interval between the forthcoming autumn and spring meetings. The conversion of the present grandstand into a double-decker means the removal of all the top hamper, including the pillars in front, on which the roof rests; while the new superstructure will be carried on reinforced steel pillars, 40ft apart, and placed 20ft back from the front alignment. This arrangement gives a clear space of 20ft along the front of the stand; while the pillars, which are placed such long distances apart, will cause very little interference with the outlook from the space behind them. Each of these pillars supports a cantilever principal, and on these the top deck and seating accommodation will be constructed. Access to the upper deck is gained by four grand stairways, and from the back of the lower floor a couple of flying gangways across the carriage drive at the rear of the structure lead to the lawn beyond. The framing throughout will be of steel, and the rear wall of the building will be relieved with ornate facings. When completed, the building will accommodate upwards of 8000 persons.

The extension of the official stand will be carried 136ft eastwards on similar lines to the present structure. The space on the ground floor will be utilised for increased lavatory and cloakroom accommodation, scratching room, and telegraph room, while the upper portion, besides furnishing seating accommodation for 1000 person, will include spacious apartments for the metropolitan and provincial press, large dining saloons, etc., while a section of the seating accommodation will be placed at the disposal of trainers, as the site of the stand which they now use will be included in the extension. A grand stairway and a smaller one give access to the upper story.

An up-to-date semaphore is to be erected on the flat, and it is intended to provide a supplementary water supply, utilising the underground flow by pumping it into a cistern placed in an elevated position. The steeplechase track will be improved by removing about eight feet from the crown of the hill at the back of the racecourse, thus making a much easier grade across, while preserving its unique cross-country features.

NOTES.

It has now been definitely decided that Lady Medallist, who went amiss during the recent Victorian Spring racing campaign, will not race again, and she will go to the stud next season. During her brief career Lady Medallist, who was purchased for 90 guineas as a yearling by Mr. J. B. Reid, of New Zealand, won over £10,000 in stakes. It is intended to send her to Wallace.

J. Piggott, the Californian jockey, who revolutionised race riding on the Russian turf as Tod Sloan did in England, is dead. Piggott went to Moscow ten years ago (says an exchange) when 18 years of age to ride for the Lazareff stud (the principal racing stable in Russia) at a retainer of £2400 a year. He had an unprecedented record of successes before taking to drink, owing to which the Lazareff stable eventually dispensed with his services. Last season Piggott tried to pull himself together, but unsuccessfully, and finally ended his life by taking poison.

A couple of New Zealand horses who figured at the A.J.C. Spring Meeting changed hands recently. Vice-Admiral, the hero of the C.J.C. Spring Meeting of 1911, was sold by auction for 500 guineas. His new owner is Mr. F. H. Pyne, and the bay son of Multiform is to be trained by M. Hobbs at Riccarton. At the same sale Allegory was sold for 350 guineas, but Teviotdale and Canute were passed in.

The Sydney Cup winner Vavasor is still in evidence in India. On the opening day of the Poona meeting he won the Trial Plate from the ex-New Zealander Soultline, who was conceding the son of Grafton 11lb.

Messrs. W. G. and G. L. Stead's gelding Bon Reve, by Boniform from Dreamer, by Mostyn, who figured on the list for the A.J.C. Derby, but did not fulfil his classic engagement, has put up an unbroken record since his return to New Zealand by winning the Braemar Welter Handicap at the Ashburton Spring Meeting, the Wanganui Guineas, the New Zealand Derby, the Stead Memorial Cup at Canterbury, and dead-heated in the Stewards' Handicap. Bon Reve was escorted home in the Stead Memorial Gold Cup by the Boniform colt Bon Ton, also owned by Messrs. Stead.

The death is reported from Melbourne of the brood mare Salvia, by Maltster from Gaillardia, by Trenton from Paresseuse, by Yattendon. She was owned by the Victorian sportsman who races as "S. A. Rawdon."

Riding honours at the recent New Zealand Cup meeting fell to Luke Wilson, who piloted seven winners. R. Berry gained second place with four winners; W. D. Young rode three, while C. Emerson and B. Deeley (both of whom were over in Sydney at the recent Spring Meeting) rode two winners each.

The South Australian-bred horse Tiercel, by Pistol (imp.) from Olga Nethersole, was shipped to India last week. Tiercel was purchased as a yearling by the South Australian sportsman, Mr. R. M. Hawker, for 250 guineas, and the gelding was credited with 10 wins before he sold the son of Pistol last season to Mr. H. West, whose colours he carried successfully on two occasions.

The many friends of the veteran South Coast sportsman, Mr. Mat Donaldson, will be sorry to hear of his death, which occurred last week.

The most attractive event in a race meeting the other day at Califreuille, in the Department of Orne, France, was a flat race for women jockeys on hunters over a distance of nine furlongs. This event, the first of its kind in France, brought out a field of six of the best-known women in the district, and there was a large attendance of the neighbouring gentry to see the race. Those who entered were the Comtesse D'Ildeville, Baronne La Caze, Mme. Felix Pitt, Mme. Garin, Mme. Jeanne de La Palme, and Mme. Bonnefonds. Mme. de la Palme, on her thoroughbred Boulangere, led from the start, and keeping close to the rails, made the pace all the way. Starting home she was challenged by Mme. Bonnefonds, and a spirited finish was the result. The starter gallantly dispensed with the formality of weighing-in.

"Le Jockey" (Paris) announces that a sale of the yearlings from the Haras Cirque was held in Chili on August 20, when a dozen animals were disposed of for 103,000 piastres, which is almost equivalent to £4600.

The world's horse jumping record was broken recently at a horse show held at Vittel. The Australian Biskra and the thoroughbred Montjoie both cleared two metres 36 cms. (approximately 7ft 8in), thereby beating the officially recognised record, hitherto held by the horse Conspirateur.

There were 103 yearlings entered for this year's German yearling sales, the highest number on record. Only 50, however, were sold, owing to the rather high reserves placed on several lots. The best price was £900, paid for Caesar, a colt by St. Malcolm from Congratulation. This colt was bred by Mr. W. Sulzberger, the owner of St. Malclou. Eight other yearlings from the same breeder were disposed of at prices ranging from £800 to £200.

Golden Point and Scouser are to be sent to Bacchus Marsh for a spell.

A few days prior to Prince Palatine winning the Jockey Club Stakes of £8000 at Newmarket (Eng.), his owner, Mr. T. Pilkington, refused £50,000 for that great son of Persimmon.

The Kogarah trainer R. Adcock sustained a severe loss in the death of Waikano, who died as the result of an attack of strangles. Waikano had proved useful at country meetings, and gave promise of winning a more important event.

Life disqualifications were imposed by the Western Australian Turf Club on James Kelly, Donald Fullarton, and Pelham Burnie for the alleged ringing-in of the horse known as Jack the Ripper at the Greenbushes race meeting. It is alleged that the horse is identical with a well-known performer on the unregistered courses in this State, and that he ran at other registered country meetings under the name of Alf.

Mr. O'Brien's champion two-year-old colt Beragoon is to be kept in training for the A.J.C. December Stakes.

Nangar has broken down, and is not likely to race again.

T. Donoghue, private trainer for Mr. Hunter White, has the following horses in hand:—Aegis, by Skopos (imp.)—Athena; b f, 3yrs, by Tartan—Georgic; and a br g, 4yrs, by Skopos (imp.)—Brown Pearl. The Georgic filly is said to be one of the finest youngsters seen for many a day. Georgic is by Clan Stuart from Mirzapore, by Coltness from Mirza, and a full-sister to the defunct sire Pharamond, a good performer in his day. Georgic won a good race in England, and on being brought back and put to the stud missed several seasons.

The New Zealand sporting writers are unanimous in the opinion that Bierlot is one of the smartest fillies that have been produced in the Dominion of recent years. Bierlot, who was bred by Mr. W. Walters, is by Soult—Elf, by Dreadnought from Elflock, by Nordenfeldt from Elfin, by Musket from Sylvia, by Fisherman from Juliet (imp.), by Touchstone—a remarkably stout pedigree. As a two-year-old she only showed moderate form, but this season she has an unbroken record.

BOWLING.

THE CHRISTMAS CARNIVAL.

A letter from Mr. G. M. Munro, secretary of the Victorian Bowling Association, is just to hand, bearing news that everything points to a most successful gathering in connection with the first Australian carnival. Entries are coming in steadily, but a rush is bound to set in just before closing day, December 15. Elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of interstate visitors are in hand, chief of which up to the present are: December 23, reception; December 27, theatre party; December 30, moonlight trip down the bay; January 3, smoke night. On all other evenings the various clubs will entertain visitors on the greens, and play under electric light.

In reference to the champion rink event, which will be played on January 1 and 2, with the finals on January 3, Mr. Munro writes that the carnival committee has decided that as far as Victoria is concerned rinks shall be composed of members of one club, but that other States may do as they like when they come over. Only the names of the skippers are required with nominations.

This event is bound to be keenly contested, carrying as it does the highest honours of the most popular form of bowling emulation. It is known that Victorian rinks have been in train for some weeks past, and that local talent will set a very high standard in opposition to visiting skill as far as combination and intimacy with each other's play is concerned. It behoves N.S.W. players, therefore, to form their rinks at the earliest possible moment, and make the best use of opportunities for practice in the interval. Where opposing rinks are encountered in which each position is filled by a specialist, and the four work together with the machine-like precision born of long practice, it is rather ambitious for a casual four to enter the lists with hopes of success.

Some likely looking teams on paper have been formed, and should worthily uphold the credit of New South Wales. Among others, the following are mentioned:—

Arnott, Chapman, Yeo, Moses.
Spence, Lawson, Cox, Harrison.
Moore, Davis, Colquhoun, Walters.
Donaldson, T. Anderson, Marks, P. Anderson.
Mackenzie, Dean, Bromwich, Taylor.
Hogue, Bell, Hickey, Thorne.

The official practice last Wednesday afforded one gratifying indication, if it served no other purpose. It is at least evident that interest in the Victorian excursion this year is at a high pitch, for, with two exceptions, the whole of the 24 listed to play attended. The form was fairly good all round, Chapman, Hope, Donaldson, Cox, Lawson, Thorne, Yeo, and Taylor showing some excellent work in their respective positions. The Mosman green was delightful to play over. This afternoon a practically new set of candidates will show their paces at Ashfield when at least two pairs of eyes will view proceedings with critical intent. Mr. P. B. Colquhoun, the third selector, will be absent in Victoria for a few days, acting as referee in the Davis Cup lawn tennis contests, but it is understood that the four rinks will be definitely chosen to-night or to-morrow. Exactly what purpose one practice can produce either to players or selectors, it is not easy to see, except it be to confirm prior reputations by a study of one afternoon's play, always a risky thing at any sport. Newcastle nominations are expected to be in for consideration by to-day, and the selectors are in the somewhat unusual position of having an embarrassment of riches to handle, which can scarcely fail to produce a strong N.S.W. side.

GENERAL NOTES.

If a reliable line may be taken from the results of the last two Saturdays, the Kuringgai team will require to be seriously reckoned with in the pennant. A victory over Mosman's full strength on the enemy's territory last Saturday week was followed by the administration of a crushing defeat to Warringah on Saturday. The president will require to be well represented at Warrawee on Saturday, when he pays his last official visit for some months.

Waverley have timed the decision of President Lamrock's trophy nicely, as the final game will be played next Saturday, thus clearing the way for the first round of the pennant competitions on December 7. The semi-finals on Saturday last produced two interesting struggles, when Hartley, E. Collins, D. Collins, and Clubb, beat Mullany, Parsons, Parker, and Hope; while Davall Hosking, Cook, and Martin won narrowly from James, Ward, Harden, and Fitzgerald. It is a distinct loss to Waverley that the veteran Martin, who defeated a strong rink under Cox in this event in the preceding round, cannot find time to play regularly in the pennant matches. Though his rink is understood to be conceding Clubb's a liberal handicap, popular opinion gives Martin's four a good chance for the ultimate possession of the trophy.

Bowlers should note that entries for the State championships will close positively on Saturday next, and aspirants to the season's honours, whether in the singles, pairs, or rinks, should at once acquaint their club secretaries of their intentions. The competitions are likely to prove of exceptional interest, and the pennant committee will, no doubt, prove equal to disposing of all the features objected to last season.

The Petersham Club "welcome home" to their returned members, Messrs. Searl, Strong, Holmes, and Yeo will take place in the local Town Hall this evening.

J. Hanigan has been compelled to retire from his post in the City Club pennant team owing to an affection of the eyes, and it is not improbable that the reconstructed rink will read Whitehouse, Ross, Widerstrom, Thorne.

J. Bromwich will visit Melbourne for the carnival, but did not nominate for the representative team owing to an oversight. He is too solid and reliable a player to be numbered among the unavailables. Owing to illness in his family, H. Thorpe's name is not among the proposed starters, but should the trouble happily improve, it is not unlikely that he will participate in one or other of the events at the carnival.

Immediately the personnel of the team is announced, a meeting of those going to Victoria will be held for the purpose of electing a manager, and making preliminary arrangements. A number will travel by sea in preference to rail, and it is more than probable that the new 13,000-ton Orient liner Orama, which will leave at noon on Saturday, December 21, will carry some bowling passengers.

R. B. Scott, whose enthusiasm induced him to write an interesting treatise on the game, has thrown in his lot with Mosman, a fact which cannot fail to be of benefit to an already powerful club, and of corresponding loss to his old St. Leonard's allies.

S. J. Stephens, Waverley's hard-working secretary, has commenced a well-earned respite for two months, during which he proposes to leave the busy haunts of bowlers far behind. W. L. Cohen will resume in the interval the duties with which he has such an old acquaintance.

Parramatta will rely on the same four proved captains; indeed, the teams throughout do not depart much from last season's contingent. Coates skipped in one only of the three pennant matches which the club took part in last summer, but will appear regularly this year in the old position.

Griffiths, McGee, and Osgood are again in charge of Marrickville's rinks, but a new captain, in Woodford, has been chosen. The name of veteran Renwick has disappeared from the list, and his loss will be felt. In last year's competition games he met with one defeat only.

Aspinall, Wallis, Newman, and McPherson are not new to the posts of skip at Hunter's Hill, and it is hoped that the coming season has a larger share of success in store for the modest little river body. Last year in the four pennant matches, only two rink wins were recorded, as against 14 losses, though McPherson was particularly unfortunate in the matter of narrow defeats.

THE BLACKPOOL TOURNAMENT.

The great annual professional tournament on the Talbot green at Blackpool has been brought to an exciting close for the fortieth successive year. The number of entries was limited to 1000, as in the two preceding years, and the prize-money totalled £468. It took six weeks to decide the event, playing every day, and enormous attendances witnessed the several stages, culminating in a record gallery on the final day, despite the advanced admission charges. Hundreds were unable to gain entry on October 10, when beautiful weather favoured the final heats. Speculation was very heavy throughout, and some remarkable victories were recorded. For instance, in the third round, Fred Threlfall, famous as a footballer for Manchester City and Fulham, and winner of the event last year, was eight when his opponent stood at 16, but Threlfall reached the requisite 21 without his opponent scoring again. Another celebrated player in W. H. Law, who was successful three years ago, won his third heat by three after his opponent led 15 to 4. Favourite after favourite went down, till the final was left to Birchall and Wilson, and a magnificent contest resulted. The former was most fancied, and scores were level at 4, 5, 7, 9, 10, 13, and 17, from which point Birchall drew out and won amid a scene of intense excitement. The winner is only 26 years of age, and hails from North Ashton, a mining village near Wigan. He is one of the most promising of the younger professional school, and though he reached the last 16 for several years, he had decided not to enter this year's tournament, but to stick to his trade as a cabinet-maker. His father, however, sent in his name, and Birchall played a great game from the start, though not supported to win anything like so much money as on previous occasions. The first prize was £50 and the champion cup.

The following item comes from Forfarshire:—"Bowls really must be an all-absorbing pastime. A local novice tarried so long on the green the other evening that he not only forgot all about his tea, but also 'disremembered' to milk 'Crummie' until gently reminded of his remissness by his better half. Then he hied to the byre, some little distance away, so chockful of 'bias' and 'draw' and 'too narrow' and a 'little wide,' that he forgot to take the milk-pail with him. As the shades of night were falling fast, in his emergency he milked the coo' on the ground. What the 'missus' said the next morning when she proceeded to the dairy for some cream has not been recorded."

BILLIARDS.

YOUTH IN BILLIARDS.

Youth is having a greater opportunity in London billiards this season than ever before in the history of the game. For years the budding player was looked on as being an interloper to the preserves of the few who formed a sort of billiard "ring" to enter which was a most difficult matter. By sheer force of point-compiling George Gray broke down the barrier, and proved that youth, as well as age, should be served. When Gray went to London an attempt was made to isolate him. None of the first-rank players would meet him, except under certain conditions which he would not think of accepting. As a result, he opened against a third-rate player, and by sheer merit placed himself in the position of being able to dictate conditions, instead of having to accept them.

Lindrum, another young Australian, followed Gray, and the "ring" was broken. Consequently, this year the nomination for the big London tournament contains the names of three debutants in W. Smith, T. Newman, and A. E. Peall, who were in the lower division last season. So youth has to be thankful to Gray for its uplifting. A. E. Peall is a son of W. J. Peall, famous as the world's greatest spot-stroke player, and furnishes another instance of the heredity of skill in pastimes, as instanced by the Gregorys in cricket, and the Cavills in swimming. With a start, Smith defeated George Gray twice last year, and a few months back had a stubborn contest with T. Newman, whom he defeated by a small margin of points. Newman is a protege of John Roberts, and is considered to be one of the best of the very young English billiardists. The doings of the trio against such matured players as Inman, Reece, and Diggle will be watched with interest during the next few months.

Another attempt is being made by the leading professionals in England to induce the Billiard Control Club to in some way limit the sequences of losing hazards. The skill of George Gray, Lindrum, and Smith on that particular stroke has somewhat scared the "first flighters," but it is improbable that the controllers of the B.C.C. will agree to limitations. It is said that both the patron (Lord Lonsdale) and the president (Lord Chief Justice Alverstone) are averse to the proposal, for the reason that losing hazards play is the method by which ninety-nine out of every hundred players compile the majority of points, and that it would be unwise to alter the rules in the interest of about half a dozen players.

One proposal is to have two sets of rules—one for professionals and another for amateurs, but such a scheme would lead to confusion, for to make any game a great success it is necessary that the rules governing it should be universal. Hence there does not appear to be much hope of "silencing" the red ball expert. As Smith has made a 600 break with ivory balls from the red ball, the contention that big breaks can only be made by the wider angle thrown by the composition ball does not hold good, and either Lindrum or Gray may yet secure the much-coveted title of "champion," even if the bar to the use of composition balls in that event is not removed.

Lindrum's defeat of Williams, Reece, and Inman in conjunction with the first-named's victories over Reece and Inman, recently in Australia, have caused English critics to regret that the Australian champion was not seen at his best during the few months he played there last season, when his form, except on a couple of occasions, bordered on the mediocre. The desire is expressed that he should again visit England and rehabilitate his reputation as one of the world's best billiardists. This the Australian has expressed his intention of doing, and should he pay that close attention to his profession that the best billiards demand, few who have watched him in his purple moments will have any fear about him being able to hold his own with the best players that the world can produce.

GOLF.

CLUB COMPETITIONS.

UNIVERSITY V. HUNTER'S HILL.

The exceedingly heavy thunderstorm which broke over Sydney at noon on Saturday, and the prospects of still more rain during the afternoon, kept many golfers away from the courses, most of which had an unusually deserted appearance. The promise of more rain was amply fulfilled during the afternoon, for at about 4 o'clock there was a further heavy fall of rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning, which quickly drenched those unfortunate enough to be exposed to it, and on some links made conditions very unpleasant.

The most interesting event was a match between the University Club and Hunter's Hill, played at Hunter's Hill. The University Club enjoys the distinction of being probably the most economically managed golf club in the world, for all expenses are met on a membership subscription of half-a-crown, the payment of which, moreover, entitles the member to play in the club championship. With rates of subscription floating higher and higher in other clubs, it is refreshing to hear of a club which can make ends meet on a modest subscription such as this. The explanation, of course, is that the University Club does not possess a course of its own to maintain, and is therefore dependent for the few matches it plays on the courtesy of other clubs, which, it must be said, is always readily and gladly extended. Among its members the University Club numbers many of our leading players, and it is to be hoped that further matches will be arranged.

The club was not by any means fully represented on Saturday, but managed to defeat Hunter's Hill by 5½-29 to 4½-12 after a good match, a result largely due to the excellent showing of the first three men. Gordon Craig in particular achieved a brilliant victory over C. L. Mackenzie, who, though not now quite up to the form which a year or so ago made him apparently invincible on his own links, is nevertheless a very tough proposition for a stranger to the course. Craig, however, played one of his best games, and, though Mackenzie was 1 up at the turn, having taken 37 to that point as against 38 by Craig, the latter improved the second time round the nine-hole course, and, coming back in 36, an average of fours, won the match by 3 up and 2 to play, eventually finishing 4 up. Craig's figures home were:—3, 4, 5, 3, 4, 3, 4, 5, 5=36.

H. W. McLeland (U.) and R. D. Fitzgerald (H.H.) had a good match, though the golf was not particularly good for the first nine holes, at the completion of which Fitzgerald was 2 up. McLelland then took a hand, and by good golf won the next six holes straight with 4, 4, 5, 3, 3, 4, and secured the match by 4 up and 3. Fitzgerald won the 17th with a well-played 3, and the 16th and 18th holes being halved, McLelland won 3 up. His round was approximately 79—41 out and 38 home.

W. A. Windeyer (U.) won the first five holes against H. R. Lysaght, and maintained his advantage throughout. He was 6 up at the 17th, but Lysaght won the last hole. After losing heavily at the start, Lysaght stuck closely to his club-mate opponent. Most of the other matches were closely contested, and one, that between J. A. Thompson (U.) and G. Phillips (H.H.), finished all square. The former went away with a rush, and was 4 up at the 10th, but Phillips then won the next five holes, and eventually stood dormy one, when Thompson saved the match by holing a 7ft putt at the 18th to win the hole.

Continuous match play was the programme at Manly, and an opportunity was taken to play off several ties which had occurred lately.

For the second trophy in the open mixed foursomes A. G. Symington and Miss Leslie, with a card of 92—14=78, had a comfortable win against D. G. Ferrier and Mrs. Aitken, 92—7=86. The winners played very well, while the losers did not perform quite up to their reputations. A long-standing engagement was that between W. R. Opie (3) and W. D. Yonge (8), who tied in a bogey handicap played on Eight-hour Day. Opie played brilliantly, and, going round in approximately 77, had no difficulty in winning.

Keith Smith, one of Manly's most promising colts, sprang a surprise upon everyone by going round in 79 against P. F. S. Spence. The pair tied in a stroke handicap held on November 9, and in a previous attempt to play off another tie occurred. There was no tie on the third occasion, however, for Spence, who is on scratch, could not himself do better than 79; and, as he was conceding 8 strokes, Smith won by that margin. Spence played good golf, and his round of 79 is one of which any scratch player would feel pleased, but Smith came right out of his shell with his best round to date. He is a young player, little more than a boy, with a nice style, and should with application go very far. His score was compiled as follows:—

Out 4, 6, 2, 5, 7, 4, 4, 5, 4=41
In 3, 5, 2, 3, 6, 4, 4, 3, 7=38

About the only blemish on his card was the 7 at the last hole, at which stage, however, he had the match well in hand.

Miss Duret, the State lady champion, playing at Manly a few days ago, gave a taste of her quality by going round in 82, an excellent performance. Her figures were:—

Out 5, 6, 3, 5, 6, 5, 3, 4, 3=40
In 4, 6, 5, 3, 7, 3, 5, 4, 5=42

The entry at Rose Bay for handicap foursomes was not a large one. The links were in excellent condition, and were not affected by the heavy rain which fell during the afternoon. J. S. Marks and W. S. Laidley proved the winners, with a good card of 80 from scratch, and were closely followed by W. S. Hinder and W. T. Macpherson with 88—7=81. We hear that H. A. Howden during the week completed a round of the links in 74, going out in the splendid figures of 33, and returning in 41.

Captain Tower scored a most meritorious win at Concord in a bogey handicap, returning a card of 5 up, with a handicap of 12. Captain Tower has only been playing about 18 months, but is one of the keenest golfers playing at Concord. He plays a careful game, and sticks closely to the fairway, wisely not trying for distance. On Saturday he was round in 88, which is easily his best performance. E. C. V. Broughton (17) was second with 2 up. C. A. Fraser and E. F. Littlejohn met in the final of the knock-out tournament. Both men have had anything but easy passages into the final, most of their matches having been keenly contested ones, and the final proved no exception, as Fraser, after a neck-and-neck struggle, just managed to win on the last green. They were all square at the turn, and after give-and-take play Littlejohn stood 1 up at the sixteenth—a very comfortable position, as he was due to receive a stroke at the eighteenth. However, Fraser won the seventeenth, making it all square, and Littlejohn, getting into the rough from the tee at the next hole, Fraser was able to score a very popular win. Fraser has been playing very well lately, and quite deserved his success.

E. T. Jones recorded his best performance so far at Dobroyde, going round in 97—22=75, and winning the stroke competition from C. Davidson, whose card was 88—10=78. Next Saturday Dobroyde will hold a stroke competition, open to all amateurs, and a good gathering is expected. There will be two trophies for the handicap event, and a special one for the best gross score. It is hoped that a number of the better players will enter, and that a new record for the course will be established. The present record stands to the credit of G. B. Thomas with 80, but the view has already been expressed in this column that it is not likely to last long, as the course is on the short side, and is improving every week. Those who have not played there for some time will be surprised to see the marked improvement in greens and fairways, especially the former. That it is at present in good order is evidenced by the fact that Johnston, the club professional, in a practice round on Saturday, recorded an excellent score of 73, compiled as follows:—

Out 5, 3, 3, 4, 4, 3, 4, 4, 5=35
In 4, 4, 5, 5, 3, 4, 4, 5, 4=38
—73

W. P. Maschwitz demonstrated his present fine form at Killara by returning a card of 1 up, with a handicap of 1. He has been playing very well, having improved his game very considerably during the last few months. He might now well join the ranks of the scratch players. G. Hird (6), the personification of steadiness, tied with him with a good card. In the "B" grade S. H. Shepherd (16), who has been knocking at the door for some time, was easily first with an excellent card of 3 up, and qualified for a reduction in handicap. He will, however, probably be heard from again.

The cards returned at Drummoyne were not particularly good, 3 down winning the bogey handicap. A triangular tie occurred, W. Epps (7), G. Solomon (9), and A. Laird (15), being bracketed for the first place.

Putting greens are unknown on the Western line beyond Leura—that is to say, grass ones. Sand usually takes the place of turf, and country players are considerably handicapped when in Sydney by having to adapt themselves to the new conditions.

Dr. C. B. Howse, of Orange, has just taken a wise step in laying down a private putting green in his garden, which is probably the only grass green west of the Mountains. It is a large green, about the size of a croquet lawn, and there is ample room for 10 holes. It plays splendidly, and, doubtless, when they come to Sydney for next country week Dr. Howse and his Orange friends will feel the benefit of the practice they are now able to obtain.

ATHLETICS.

THE STATE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

CLUB NOTES.

At the monthly meeting of the council of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association, to be held on Friday night, the delegates will be called upon to give their decision upon a motion relating to the track championships of the State. For many years a system has been in vogue of giving out championships to clubs and other bodies controlling athletic meetings. This arrangement led to the events which drew the greatest number of entries being eagerly sought as attractions to sports carnivals, while other items, although interesting to the onlooker, would not command a large nomination, and these were consequently overlooked. The events which have been neglected are the field games and jumping, no championship of New South Wales in these branches having been contested for along period, and although a competitor in any of these events may stand out vastly superior to all others, he is not permitted to be styled the champion of the State, not having competed for the title.

The unfairness of ignoring all events outside of the running, walking, and hurdling sections was realised, and at the annual meeting of the association a new regulation was submitted that all State championships should be carried out at a meeting controlled by the A.A.A. The proposition was agreed to, the majority of the delegates considering that the idea was one in the best interests of amateur athletics, for New South Wales had stood apart from other States in the conduct of championships, and the decision of the annual meeting brought the association into line with similar organisations in other parts of the world. It was proposed that the first meeting should be held early next year, but without attempting to give the venture a trial for one year, at least one delegate seems to apprehend failure, for notice has been given to rescind the motion passed at the annual meeting. This will be discussed on Friday. The sole reason assigned is that there is a possibility of a financial loss. The notice of motion stands in the name of the hon. treasurer, who might be pardoned for his watchfulness over the funds of the association, but it has yet to be proved that the gathering cannot be conducted without money being lost over the venture. However, the general body of athletes strongly favour the idea of a championship meeting, when all events may be contested as at the "Dunn" shield, and it does not appear probable that the attempt to rescind the rule now in force will receive much support.

The opportunity will also be provided for delegates to decide whether the proposed visit of American athletes shall become a reality. The sum required for a tour of New Zealand, Tasmania, Victoria, and New South Wales will be about £350, and of this amount this State will be called up to guarantee about £100. Already the New Zealand A.A.A. is making a strong effort to advance the project. This body has cabled to San Francisco, requesting Mr. W. Unmack to arrange for a team of four men and a manager, and it is therefore almost certain that the representatives of the United States will at least reach the Dominion, and it is also likely that New South Wales will agree to the proposal, while the other States support the idea, recognising that the visit of the team will do much good to the sport here. The men expected are George Horine, holder of the world's record for the running high jump; Forrest Smithson, who has covered 110 metres (120.2 yards) over 3ft 6in hurdles in 15s.; W. M'Clure, half, one, and two miles runner, and Ira Courtney, a sprinter with some fine performances to his credit. All these athletes represented their country at the last Olympic Games in Stockholm.

Here is the chance for the N.S.W.A.A.A. to undertake two propositions which may be worked in unison. Present indications favour the retention of the rule relating to the championship meeting, and there is nothing to prevent the American athletes competing in the events, which are open to any amateur, irrespective of what country he represents, therefore, the members of the council may see fit to support New Zealand in bringing about the visit, and arrange for the State championships to be carried out while the Americans are in Sydney. This will obviate the necessity of providing special prizes for the international contest, and the need for holding two meetings will be dispensed with. The association should make every endeavour to bring about such a gathering, and the public may confidently be expected to support it, being provided with not only the championships of the State, but interesting contests between the representatives of the United States and New South Wales. The opportunity has arisen of bringing to this country a team of world-famous athletes, which may not again occur for many years, and it is to be hoped that the more energetic members of the A.A.A. will urge on the matter without waiting to consider the unlikely prospects of sustaining a loss, for the meeting has only to be thoroughly worked up to meet all expenses in connection therewith, with a good possibility of showing a profit.

The club meeting at the Sydney Sports Ground last Wednesday night was the most successful yet held on that popular arena. Seven clubs carried out a programme of 19 events, and in all of the sprint races exceptionally good fields were witnessed. Interest was added to the gathering by the promotion of an open half-mile handicap by the East Sydney A.A.C. About 40 runners took part, but the race might well have been decided in heats, as the back-markers found it impossible to reach a forward position. The limit men, J. H. McKinnon (East Sydney), and R. A. Anson (South Sydney), were in receipt of 70 yards start, and maintained their lead throughout, the East Sydney secretary winning by six yards, in 2m 1-5s. W. Barker won the Leichhardt Harriers' 220 yards championship by a yard, from J. Dicks, in 25⅘s. F. C. Madeley sustained his form by winning the South Sydney Harriers' 440 yards handicap, from scratch in 54s. R. J. Hill again secured a double victory, gaining the Botany Harriers' 100 yards handicap, off 8 yards, and from the 21-yards mark won the furlong race.

The amateur athletic meetings at the Sydney Sports Ground have now been definitely fixed for every Wednesday night during the summer months. To-night the Botany, East Sydney, Newtown, Redfern, and South Sydney Harriers will carry out a combined programme of events.

Members of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association have been well provided for in the Highland Gathering sports to be held at the Show Ground on New Year's Day. The programme comprises seven handicap events, a one mile relay race, for teams of four men, 100 yards, and 880 yards scratch races, and two divisions of wrestling.

SWIMMING.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP DATES.

AUSTRALIANS AND ENGLISH CHAMPIONSHIPS.

A. W. Barry, of the Sydney Club, has again demonstrated his right to a place amongst Australia's fastest swimmers. Following on his remarkably consistent swimming in the club handicaps, 50 yards to 100 metres, since the commencement of the season, which in certain circles had been received with a certain amount of incredulity, the officials of the progressive premier club determined to give him an opportunity of proving his capabilities, and arranged for an attempt by him on the existing 100 yards Australian record established by W. Longworth at the Domain Baths on January 6 last. The attempt was made over the straight Domain course on Saturday in the presence of a large crowd of enthusiasts, and was timed by the association timekeepers, Messrs. Roberts, Kerr, and Westhoff. The young aspirant to record honours was called on to give 3s start to that greatly-improved swimmer, F. Cummins, and 19s to another clubmate, N. Foott. Some misunderstanding at the start caused Barry to leave the board rather late, in spite of which all three timekeepers agreed in clocking him to swim 57 3-5s for the 100 yards, only 4-5s outside the record.

The most satisfactory feature of the swim was the tremendous dash exhibited by Barry in the last 10 yards, which enabled him to just defeat the A.S.A. handicapper. Cummins swam exceedingly well in accomplishing 61 1-5s, and is within measurable distance of "breaking the minute." Both men swam again, but not under record conditions, in their club's 100 yards handicap later in the afternoon, Barry being credited with 57s and Cummins with 62s. The club champion again swam with judgment, and finished with plenty of strength and dash. In spite of his failure to break record on Saturday, Barry must still be regarded as the most likely of the younger swimmers to extend the Australian champion in the State sprint championship.

The premier club seems to have conquered the inertia which marked the commencement of the season, and under the guidance of Mr. G. T. Hill and a band of young and enthusiastic workers, has now every prospect of a successful season. Entries have improved, and the standard of swimming is better. In addition to Barry and Cummins' fine performances, good times were credited to H. Boardman, brother of the Olympic swimmer (62 1-5s), F. Ryan (64 1-5s), and C. Thomas and L. Duff (66 2-5s), all over a straight course. The last-named is only 16 years old, and has a crawl kick which our returned swimmers state is exactly similar to that of the Olympic champion, Kahanamoku. With the wealth of sprint material available, the premiers are looking forward with confidence to their meeting with Manly next Saturday at Manly. The chief events of the interclub contest will be the usual mile teams' race, with 17 men, each swimming 100 yards, a diving competition, and a four-oared race. Hardwick and Boardman will swim for Sydney, and it is unfortunate that Manly will be deprived of the services of Solomons, Hay, and Riddington, who will leave for New Zealand early on the same day.

It is strange that the powerful Rose Bay Club has never taken part in an interclub contest. The talent at their disposal is evidenced every Saturday. Last week-end E. Wickham again displayed his consistency by swimming 220 yards under adverse conditions in 2m 23 1-5s, while good times were also established by Haynes and Tasman Jones. In diving the club would be almost invincible, while in breast stroke and water polo it would be strongly represented.

The most important business at the A.S.A. council meeting last week was the fixing of dates for the annual State championships and the appointment of a committee to control same. The championship dates were fixed for January 11, 15, and 18, and the committee appointed to control details were the hon. secretary, hon. treasurer, and Mr. A. C. W. Hill (chairman of the executive committee). Mosman, whose date clashed with the last State championship date has altered it to January 25. At the same meeting the council decided to accept the annual Kieran Memorial race for schoolboys, which this year will consist of a 440 yards scratch race.

The carnivals will be tests for the selection of a team to represent the State in the Australian championships. There is some confusion regarding the dates for these championships this season. Under the interstate agreement, the events are to be held by Tasmania and Victoria, with the former holding the 220, 880, and 1760 yards free style, and 100 breast stroke at the first series, and the latter the remaining four championships on dates, the first of which must be not more than a week later than the last of the Tasmanian carnivals. Twenty-one days must also cover the whole of the championships. The local body, however, has received notice from the Victorian body that it has chosen January 25 and 27 for its dates, and from the Tasmanian body that the events under its auspices will be held between February 7 and 11. It will be noticed that not only is the order fixed for holding the championships reversed, but more than a week elapses between the two series, which also occupy considerably more time than 21 days. Again, the rule requiring three months' notice has not been complied with by either association. The executive of the local association will deal with the matter next week.

Other matters dealt with at the council meeting included the vexed question of water polo trophies, which, after vigorous discussion, was settled by a compromise, which, seemingly, met the wishes of all concerned. The association also decided to control the first of the President's Cup handicaps, and this event (over 880 yards) will be held on December 9 and 11.

A report from the committee appointed to arrange for a welcome home to the Olympic team was also received, from which it appeared that the dinner set down for Wednesday next promises to be a very successful function. The date is fixed so as to ensure the presence of Messrs. Healy and Boardman, who have already reached Australian shores. Writing to Mr. A. C. W. Hill from Adelaide, Cecil Healy states that the voyage from Capetown to Adelaide occupied twenty-three days, during which they encountered two or three bad storms. They were met at Adelaide by the secretary of the South Australian A.S.A., who never loses an opportunity of welcoming swimmers as they pass through. The Australians were also entertained at Capetown by the president and members of the South African governing body, which had made arrangements for a two months' tour in Africa by the Sydney swimmers. Owing to difficulty in arranging for their passage to be broken, the invitation had to be declined. Healy and Boardman, however, gave an exhibition of the "crawl" stroke to a large gathering. At Adelaide, too, the popular East Sydney swimmer found an opportunity of showing the rudiments of the stroke, and had a promising young South Australian swimmer under his tuition during his stay there. Healy's services in teaching the "crawl" stroke are acknowledged freely on the continent of Europe, and his enthusiasm for the sport is shown in the same manner wherever he may be.

On Saturday next the Sydney Club will entertain four club members who were at Stockholm, viz., Messrs. H. Hardwick, L. Boardman, A. C. W. Hill and C. H. Helsham.

The question of the amateur status of the Victorian swimmer, F. de Beaurepaire, is again being raised. At the last council meeting of the Victorian association the representative of Melbourne, the most powerful club in the southern city, moved that Beaurepaire be allowed to take part in competition under the association's auspices. Pending receipt of a report from the delegates to the International Swimming Federation, the matter was held over until next meeting.

The revival of the Beaurepaire question recalls that Englishman J. G. Hatfield has recently been endeavouring to lower some of the world's records standing in the Australian's name. Early in August he reduced Beaurepaire's 7m 2 1-5s for 500 metres by 5 2-5s, but he has since failed in attempts on the 300 yards and 300 metres records established by the Victorian on the same night (August 9, 1910) at Exeter. The latest attempt was made on October 14, when the Middlesborough swimmer failed by 3s to equal the record of 3m 30s for 300 yards.

Miss Vera Neave, the well-known English girl swimmer, has also been attempting records, but with better success. The only ladies' record distances recognised by the International Federation are the 100 yards, 100 metres, 200 yards, and 300 metres, while the English A.S.A. recognise records only over 100 and 300 yards for ladies, although the institution of a 220 yards championship this season will probably mean another record distance. Miss Neave, however, is in the habit of swimming other than record distances, and claiming her performances as world's records. Thus she has swum 220 yards in 3m 21s, and on October 14 lowered this time to 3m 11 2-5s. She made eight turns. This time, however, is certainly not a world's record, as in the last Australian championship Miss Fanny Durack swam two laps of the Municipal Baths in the Domain in 2m 58s.

The Australian lady champion will shortly resume active swimming after resting for a short period from the strain of the two successive brilliant seasons, culminating in the world's championship at Stockholm. Miss Durack has accepted an invitation from the Queensland branch of the Royal Life Saving Society to appear at its gala about December 5. The world's champion, with her Olympic companion, Miss Wylie, holds the highest award in the power of the Royal Life Saving Society, so that her appearance at its gala will be of added interest. Her Queensland hosts have asked her to attempt one of the world's records for ladies, but the champion has not yet made up her mind. English files mention that Miss Durack's English record of 71 4-5s for 100 yards at Manchester on July 29 has been passed by the A.S.A.

The fact that a visit from Australian swimmers to Europe has passed without one of them competing in a single English championship has created some discussion in swimming circles in England, where it is alleged that they were under instructions from the Australian Union not to compete as a protest against the non-acceptance of the standing invitation for a swimmer to visit Australia. It is further stated that no more Australians will compete in English championships until a visit takes place. As Australian swimmers have in past years furnished the greatest attraction in the English blue ribbon events, the allegation has created some alarm amongst the affiliated clubs, and especially amongst the disappointed clubs of last season. As a matter of fact the Australian Union gave no such instructions, and the abstention on the part of the swimmers was due partly to their own feeling in the matter, and partly to force of circumstances in the illness of Longworth and the desire of the swimmers not to indulge in strenuous swimming after the Olympic Games. At the same time, swimming officials in Australia seem to think that the days are past when visits to Europe by Australians should be yearly happenings, and that in future the quadrennial Olympiads will be the aim of Australian swimmers. It is very unlikely that Australians will again compete in English championships, except perhaps, during the years of Olympic Games. In this they are merely adopting the attitude of the English A.S.A., which has always alleged as the reason of its refusal to return the visits that the Olympic Games fulfil all needs for international competition.

WATER POLO.

AN INTERNATIONAL GAME.

The opening of the water polo season in Sydney during the week draws attention to the position of the game in international sport. Of comparatively recent origin, the earliest reference which can be found to the game is a resolution passed in 1870 at a meeting of the London Swimming Association, that a committee be appointed to draw up a set of laws for the game of "football in the water." The game gradually became popular, especially in Scotland, until by the end of 1880 some of the English clubs had taken it up, but it was, however, merely used as a sort of comic interlude. No goals were used, and in order to score, the ball had to be placed on the end of the baths.

In 1884 the Swimming Association of Great Britain was asked to recognise the game and legislate for it, and after at first declining, in 1885 passed a set of official laws. In 1888 a committee was appointed to revise the rules of water polo, and in the same year the first championship was held. After this the game was adopted warmly by almost every swimming club in the United Kingdom, and the London Water Polo League began to arrange for inter-county fixtures, which led to the founding of leagues in other parts of the Kingdom. In 1890 the first international match was played between England and Scotland, and was won by the Scots by 4 goals to nil. Two years later the International Board was formed.

In England, Ireland, and Scotland now the game is most popular, and no gala is considered complete without a match. Club and county championships and an international championship are conducted yearly, and large guarantees are given for matches. From England the game has spread to the Continent, where it is especially strong in Belgium and Sweden. Touring teams from the Continent frequently visit England, and engage with success English club teams, although the A.S.A. are averse to international matches, and have recently refused to enter into an agreement with France for such contests. In Canada, too, the game is very popular, and Hongkong possesses its own Water Polo League. In Australasia, the game is played all over New Zealand and in three States of the Commonwealth, but has had several ups and downs since its introduction by Cavill, sen. In New Zealand the inter provincial matches arouse the greatest interest. The game has also found a place in the programme of the Olympic games.

The rules of the game are founded on those of Association football, and in Australia differ slightly from the English rules, which have been adopted by the International Federation, mainly in the matter of starting. The game itself calls for great stamina and strength in the water, and while capable of being played very scientifically, offers innumerable opportunities for foul play. Australians have never had the opportunity of taking part in international water polo, and our representative swimmers at the recent Olympic Games felt some curiosity as to comparing Australian play with the standard of play in the Olympic competition.

The teams were entered from Great Britain, Belgium, France, Sweden, Hungary, and Austria, and it was quickly seen that the issue lay between Great Britain, Belgium, and Sweden. The British team had won easily in 1908, and were anticipating another easy victory, although fear as to the coldness of the water led to the selection of big and heavy men not in condition. As a consequence, the British team found themselves in danger of being outplayed by their fast opponents, and in their most important matches played a very rough and foul game, and won mainly through their reputation overawing the foreign referees. Outside of Hill at back, and Radmilovic at centre-forward, the team showed nothing to make the Australians think the competitors were superior to the best Australian team. With comparatively slow forwards and heavy phlegmatic backs, they depended more on closely watching the man than on anything else. The quick-moving, alert, and speedy Australian should bewilder a team such as this. The team most nearly approaching the Australian ideal was Sweden, whose forwards were very fast and quick, and the halves also possessed moderate speed and cool judgment. The goalkeeper was exceptionally good. In the opinion of many spectators, this team should have won the competition, and were deprived of victory by weak refereeing. As it was, they were placed second, with Belgium third. This last team consisted of vigorous, bustling players, with Gregoire as the star forward and scorer. The remaining teams were comparative novices, but played with great dash and energy. Halfback play was generally weak, and forward play selfish. On a consideration of the form of all the teams, the Australians were convinced that a team selected from Sydney players would have had a good chance of annexing the world's championship. The distance to be travelled, of course, prohibits any such idea, but it is a pity that Australians cannot measure themselves against international teams in this fine, health-giving pastime, as in other sports.

RAIN-SPOILT PITCHES AGAIN.

SPECIAL FEATURES OF SATURDAY'S PLAY.

Saturday's play in the grade competitions was again spoilt by the rain which fell in torrential fashion a couple of hours before play was due to start. Practically all the pitches had already received their final polish for the afternoon, and consequently owing to the half saturation they sustained they tended to hold the water and were very slow to dry. At the University oval, for instance, where North Sydney and the students were in opposition, the beautifully prepared pitch was the wettest spot on the whole enclosure. On the whole the metropolitan grounds suffered more from what was merely a local storm than those situated in the suburban areas, and at Chatswood, Birchgrove and Petersham good progress was made with the contests, so that all these promise definite results next Saturday. Two of the three matches, those in which Waverley and Balmain are engaged, are fraught with special interest, because of the forward position of these two teams in the competition tables, whilst the other, the Redfern-Petersham engagement, also commands notice, because a definite result may mean a great deal to the premiership prospects of Redfern. As a result of Saturday's play all three matches are in a very interesting state, which, if present indications are realised, should bring two at least of the teams nearer to the leaders, North Sydney and University.

DAVIS DOES WELL FOR WAVERLEY.

The close of play, for instance, brought Waverley to a position upon which the team may well be complimented. Sent to the wickets after losing the toss and notwithstanding a most disheartening start (Thomas, Pite, Newton and Mackinlay all being dismissed with only 15 runs on the books) the seasiders continued to put together the eminently respectable total of 147 runs. To H. Davis belongs the chief credit for the splendid recovery, although Carter (17), Beveridge (16), and Mulligan (12) all rendered useful assistance. Davis played a splendid innings—it was the highest of the afternoon in First Grade. The special feature of his batting, perhaps, was the way he made use of the natural advantage his left-handedness gave him against the type of break bowling with which he was opposed; he was enabled, on that account, to hit with the break practically all the time when opposed by Macartney and Shortland. His success on this occasion reminds us somewhat of the way Joe Darling used to hit Wilfrid Rhodes about while his right-handed comrades could do practically nothing with the Yorkshireman on a sticky pitch; it emphasises, of course, the value of left-handed batting in a team under such circumstances. The commendable part about Davis' display is that he hit the bowling to some purpose, three times lifting the ball clear of the fence with surprising power, and making seven boundaries besides. He had a bit of luck in being missed in the slips, and he was often in difficulties with particular balls, but his success in spite of these things serves to emphasise the plucky and enterprising nature of his play. A big proportion of his runs were made off Shortland, whose four wickets at 21 runs apiece were, under the circumstances, rather expensive. In view of the success achieved by Bowden in the previous match against batsmen of higher reputations than those of Waverley under somewhat similar conditions of wicket (6 wickets for 22 runs) it must seem very surprising that he was given no chance with the ball on Saturday.

SEASIDERS IN GOOD POSITION.

The success of Waverley did not end with the batting of the side. Even allowing for defects in the pitch, a total of 147 seemed well within the reach of a team including the three internationals, V. Trumper, C. G. Macartney, and F. A. Iredale. Lloyd and Shea however, bowled so effectively, and especially the former (5 for 22), that eight wickets were down at one time for 65 runs, and but for a praiseworthy rally by F. Bowden and G. Jordan, whose unfinished partnership for the ninth wicket realised 24 useful runs, Waverley would undoubtedly have pocketed a two-point first innings lead. The present position is that Gordon requires 59 runs with two wickets to fall—a position with interesting possibilities.

C. G. MACARTNEY'S REAPPEARANCE.

Apart from the match interest this game was specially interesting because of the return to the field of C. G. Macartney, his first appearance since his brilliant achievements in the old country. As usual, he figured very largely in the game, and got through a deal of very useful work for his side. With the ball he captured five for 44, sending them along with the same old persistent good length and well-known pertinacity; with the bat, though obviously a bit short of practice, he shaped well enough in making 16, the top score for the side. The conditions were not exactly the sort to show off his brilliant batmanship to advantage; still it was a big blow to the hopes of Gordon when Shea found a way to his sticks. It is worthy of note, perhaps, that this is the second match in succession in which Gordon having won the toss sent their opponents in first, and then failed to profit anything by batting second.

THE LEFT-HANDERS' HARVEST.

The success of left-handed bowlers was a prominent feature of Saturday's cricket. All the best results in the first-grade competition fell to left-handers. For Balmain against Paddington, L. Wall captured six for 68, whilst, as already mentioned, C. G. Macartney secured five for 44, and S. Lloyd five for 22 at Chatswood for their respective sides. In addition, W. Makin's four for 41 against Petersham, and B. Stafford's two for eight, merit more than a line of recognition in this connection. Other left-handers secured wickets also, and, as a matter of fact, more than half the wickets that fell in grade cricket belong to the credit of left-handed bowling. It is not often that our left-handers have such a harvest. As a rule, our wickets do not make for the left-handers' success, and they do not encourage the development of left-handed skill to anything like the same degree as they do that of other types of bowling. Hence, it is a very interesting circumstance to find that we have left-handers, despite the developmental disabilities, capable of asserting themselves under congenial conditions.

NORTH SYDNEY MISSES AN OPPORTUNITY.

One of the best bits of batting on Saturday was that of C. J. Tozer for the University team against North Sydney. Owing to the wet state of the wicket play was not commenced till 4.35, which fact, together with the loss of the toss, placed 'Varsity in rather an awkward position. There was ample time for the side to lose a number of wickets, if not all, without, perhaps, having a chance of getting at their opponents under the same conditions, and on the other hand, owing to the heavy condition of the ground in general, there was practically no chance for the students to assume a position of advantage. Under the circumstances 'Varsity could hardly have done better than they did, and to Tozer in particular is the team chiefly indebted for the satisfactory position. In the event of a rain-spoilt pitch next Saturday, 'Varsity would be in a winning position, whilst if the wicket rolls out hard and true, they can shape their tactics for a draw, or possible win, just as they choose.

SKILFUL PLAY BY C. J. TOZER.

In either case the match is on the whole in a peculiarly interesting position—thanks to Tozer. The wicket was never difficult. The ball cut through pretty straight, none of the bowlers, not even Dr. Hordern, being able to turn the ball the least bit; it was by no means a pleasant or comfortable wicket to bat upon; but apart from its strangeness to the experience of the batsmen, it distinctly favoured the bat as against the ball. It was entirely unsuited to Dr. Hordern, but the North Sydney captain made the fullest use of the "Bosie" expert's length to keep down the scoring. 'Varsity set themselves to play with caution, and this they did very satisfactorily. Tozer made some nice shots on the off-side, and took full advantage of anything loose, but the great feature of his innings was the restraint and defence that he showed. He reached forward to Dr. Hordern all the time, a fact which showed how little the international bowler was turning the ball. These things, notwithstanding Tozer's batting, was very skilful; it tided over a very critical time, and it carried out the 'Varsity captain's instruction to the letter, earning thus the beat of praise—a good innings for the side.

Dr. O'HARA'S ENTHUSIASM—AND EXAMPLE.

Dr. O'Hara's country team is becoming quite an institution, its annual visits to the city are attracting more and more popular attention, as well as official notice. As shown by the statistics published recently the team had a very successful tour in the metropolitan area, only two matches being lost, whilst several of the members embraced the opportunity to demonstrate their skill on city grounds. These facts, no doubt, will receive due appreciation at the hands of that progressive body, the Country Cricket Committee of the New South Wales Cricket Association, in whose charge rests the difficult problem of doing the best for, and getting the best out of, our country cricket. The disabilities under which country cricket labours are, of course, well known, but few have tackled the matter in the same practical, generous, and enthusiastic spirit as Dr. O'Hara, who has an able lieutenant in his brother, Mr. J. Still O'Hara. The genial medico has been a boon to country cricketers. He has given many the opportunity of seeing the game played on the city grounds, and the advantage to themselves of playing thereon in opposition to many of the leading exponents of the day. His team is not a haphazard combination, nor does it represent any particular district. It is in fact made up, after the most thorough investigation, not only into the cricketing ability of the men, but also into their characters as men, from the whole length and breadth of New South Wales. Dr. O'Hara's method of satisfying himself, not only of the merit of their averages and performances, but that the members of his combination may be depended upon to behave as good cricketers and sportsmen should at all times, is a method commendable to our cricketing authorities in general, and more particularly to those who are responsible for the representation and the good fame of Australia abroad, as well as at home.

THE BRISBANE MATCH.

Rain played a big part in the interstate match between New South Wales and Queensland at Brisbane, which was won easily by the visitors, and it is not surprising, therefore, to find the success achieved by the left-handed bowlers one of the leading features of the match. On Saturday both sides had an innings, the Queenslanders, presumably, having the worst of the wicket, as they were sent in to bat first. In 13 overs Massie captured three wickets for 24 runs for New South Wales, but this was bettered by Queensland's left-hander, when the visitors batted, for W. Rowe, a medium-paced lefthander, with a nice, natural spin, took six wickets for 15 runs in the course of 7.2 overs. Rowe, it may be mentioned, was the fourth bowler tried, and that his success surprised his comrades somewhat is evidenced from the fact that in the second innings he was deputed to commence the bowling. Massie, in the second innings, secured five for 36, three of his victims being clean bowled.

MASSIE'S METHODS.

The University bowler's success is very gratifying. He has everything in his favour for the making of a great bowler. He enjoys the tall man's natural advantage of being able to make the ball get up rather straight from even the most carefully prepared pitches; he spins the ball well from the leg side, and he swings across the wicket "with his arm" at will. He has a nice action, with a "snappy" finish, which accounts somewhat for his surprising pace from the pitch, and he bowls at a sufficiently fast pace to give his swinging "yorker" an excellent chance of eluding the bat, and also to make his bowling very hostile on a "kicking" wicket. In short he has all the physical attributes that go to make for exceptional success on English wickets and marked utility on our own pitches, and it is hoped that he will have the opportunity and be able to spare the time to reap the full statistical reward of his inherent and more than embro skill.

FAST BOWLING ON SLOW PITCHES.

To many the success of fast-bowler Scott in Brisbane may come somewhat as a surprise, in the circumstances. In the first innings, as fifth bowler tried, he secured two wickets for 18 runs, and in the second five for 31 runs. Fast bowlers as a rule do not get much show on soft or rain-spoilt pitches. This is not so much because they are ineffective in the matter of taking wickets as because other types of bowling can get the same results at a relatively cheaper cost in runs. The idea that a fast bowler cannot get wickets under such conditions is a fallacy that is often carried too far in all classes of cricket, and it is often very bad tactics, as is often done, to keep a fast bowler who can maintain a reasonably decent length chasing about the outfield while bowlers who, theoretically, should be suited to the conditions are not meeting with success. We look forward to the Petersham express getting a thorough and extended trial this season.

FORTHCOMING IMPORTANT MATCHES.

The programme of cricket matches for this season at the Sydney Cricket Ground is a very full one, and includes fixtures as follow:—N.S.W. Colts v Victorian Colts, on December 24, against South Australia on January 10, the annual contest against the Victorian team on January 24, and with Queensland on February 24. Country teams will also be playing on January 18 and 24, and in February and March.

In answer to two correspondents (R. Joyce and F.P.I.) we may state that the following are the record attendances at the Sydney Cricket Ground:—

June 21, 1897.—Jubilee public schools' gathering, 42,000; August 26, 1908: American Fleet week, schools' gathering, 58,000; February 26, 1898: Cricket, 5th test, against A. E. Stoddart's team, 36,000; February 1, 1902: Cricket, England v Australia, A. C. MacLaren's team, 30,000; December 12, 1903; Cricket, 1st test, Warner's team, 36,000.

Notable attendances at Rugby Union football have occurred, returning a gross gate receipt of nearly £6000 for three matches in one week, when no fewer than 119,588 people witnessed these games. The sustained interest was remarkable, and the particulars are worth recording:

Sat., July 13, 1907, N. Zealand v Australia	51,092
Wed., July 17, 1907, N. Zealand v N. S. W.	20,419
Sat., July 20, 1907, N. Zealand v Australia	48,077
Total	119,588

A match held by the Rugby League on June 22, 1911 (Coronation Day), was witnessed by over 46,000, and the gate receipts were a record for the league, beating all previous takings.

ANGLING.

TROUT ITEMS.

Now and then news comes along that one, or, maybe, a couple of anglers have captured 20 or even more trout apiece. At first sight this may appear good news, but a little thought will show the effect such indiscriminate slaughter has upon rivers not yet abundantly supplied with trout. What is even worse, many of these fish are, as a rule, barely of legal size. A true sportsman only kills what fish he actually requires, and returns the remainder to their native element to grow larger, and to afford better sport later on.

It has cost the Government and private individuals a large amount of money and labour to acclimatise these grand sporting fish in our streams, hence it is not as though the angler were angling in salt water, where fish come and go in their appointed times, and where it is necessary to make the best of them when they are about. The pleasure of trout fishing lies, not in the mere filling of the creel, but rather in the exquisite sensation one feels when pitting his skill and gossamer tackle against the cunning and fighting capabilities of his finny opponent. It therefore behoves every angler to keep only such fish as are really necessary for the table, and not to become as our American cousins phrase it, a mere "fish hog." There are a number of sportsmen, however, who invariably return all trout to the river which weigh less than a pound, and not infrequently they keep nothing weighing under two pounds, and it will probably not be long before the Fisheries Department will be compelled to step in and limit each angler's daily catch, and to reserve certain portions of the rivers for a time. This is now a common procedure in other parts of the world, and, as a result, rivers far more fished than ours remain well supplied with trout.

It is a fact that in New Zealand large catches are in some parts encouraged, owing to the abundance of fish, the difficulty of keeping them free from disease, and the scarcity of natural feed. Were the same state of things in existence here, no one would cavil at the number of trout captured.

It is only in recent years that it has been actually ascertained that the use of the slime with which fish are covered is to protect them against the fungoid growths so often found on freshwater fish. Knowing this, anglers should, before returning trout to the water, wet their hands prior to catching hold of the fish, in order not to remove nature's protection, which will certainly happen if the hand is dry. Another thing to be careful of is not to squeeze the fish in such a manner as to break the air bladder, for if this be done the trout will no longer be of use to the fly fisher, as it will become a bottom feeder and a cannibal.

The closing of the rivers against perch fishing from June until the end of October has borne good fruit, and Mr. Stead, who has been investigating the result amongst these fish in the Hunter River, found numbers of fry from three to six weeks old. The female fish were either spent, or nearly so. Anglers fishing the Paterson River during the past week have captured quite a number of two-pounders and many dozens of sprats, a small fish about the size of a large sardine, much prized as a table delicacy. Mr. Stead secured a number of perch, or Australian bass, from six weeks to twelve months old, and liberated 150 at Waterfall.

Salt-water fishing is daily improving, and by Christmas time, when so many people will be out camping, should be at its best. Large numbers of whiting, also flathead, and occasionally big jewfish, are being taken at Woy Woy. This season should be the best experienced in the Hawkesbury for a number of years, and even now big catches of flathead, jewfish, and black-bream are being made. That there are still a few schnapper cruising about in Port Jackson was demonstrated by Mr. W. J. Plunkett landing a 10-pounder at Watson's Bay. Near North Head large schools of small kingfish up to 10lb weight have been affording rodmen a splendid time.

LAWN TENNIS.

THE VICTORIAN CHAMPIONSHIPS.

A DAVIS CUP TRIAL.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.)

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Victorian championship this year attracted an array of talent never previously assembled at any State tournament. The cause of this was, of course, the presence of the Englishmen, and the chance of combining tournament attractions with a view of the Davis Cup match itself a few days afterwards. So it came about that New Zealand, Queensland, New South Wales, and South Australia were represented at the meeting. From the majority of these there were several competitors, and players of class they were, too, such as Ollivier, of Christchurch, the champion of New Zealand; Taylor, champion of South Australia; and St. John, of Queensland. New South Wales had a host of her leading lights, including A. B. Jones, H. Rice, G. W. Wright, and M. H. Marsh. Many tournament committees would consider themselves fortunate to have one or two of these as visiting stars for their meeting, so there is no wonder that, with them all together, and the four Englishmen to crown all, this year's meeting has broken records. They had about 16 courts going continually, an overflow from the main courts to some on the cricket area being necessary.

If the number of competitors engaged constituted a record, so must also that of spectators, especially on Saturday last, for they filled the seating accommodation, large as it is, on the main court. In addition, there was always some contest and usually many on the less prominent courts, which drew a large following. It was an impartial crowd, too, the applause being quite as hearty for the visiting Englishmen in their match with Brookes and Dunlop in the final of the doubles championship as for the Australian pair, and for Marsh and Mrs. Beatty, of New South Wales, as for Campbell and Miss Stewart, the local pair, when they met in the final of the mixed doubles championship; in fact, the most hearty and spontaneous outbursts of applause of the day were earned by Mrs. Beatty whenever she brought off a winning smash.

Whatever may be the result of the Davis Cup match the members of the English team, playing in their individual capacities, have done extremely well in the tournament. Two of them, Parke and Lowe, fought out the final of the singles championship, and Parke and Beamish in partnership reached the final of the doubles, in which they were defeated by Brookes and Dunlop.

N. E. BROOKES (Vic.),
Captain of the Australasian Lawn Tennis Team.

Parke is the man who has taken the fancy of the majority of the southern judges, and certainly on Saturday he delighted the spectators. As a contest, his match with Lowe was of little interest, as the latter did not appear to try very seriously to win. He had defeated Marsh in the morning, and was possibly a little tired. At all events, he made only a few spasmodic spurts, and if he had retired before the finish it would have caused little surprise. Parke was quite the opposite, being full of vim during the rests and between them, and he wasted no time. He is sure to take the popular fancy throughout the coming tour. It is hard to judge his singles play by such a match, as he was so seldom pressed, and so his defensive game was not disclosed, but on the attack he certainly is most attractive. He played the all-round game, not rushing in on his service, but going forward whenever an opportunity came, and it usually did so before long, as the result of his fine drives. A few base-line exchanges usually found Lowe dropping one a little short, and then Parke would drive for one corner or the other and come in; he seldom used the ball down the centre to follow up. Once in position, he volleyed with delightful crispness in excellent style, with the head of the racket well up in the approved style, and he concealed his direction well.

It was a pity that Lowe did not get going in earnest, for occasional shots were so very fine that one wished to see more of them. The majority of these were back-handed "all or nothing" shots when hard pressed. Lowe gets on to these without any preliminary swing, and the ball shoots down the line or across court at surprising speed. All the Englishmen seen on Saturday—Parke, Lowe, and Beamish—appear strong on the back-hand. There seems to be a kind of family likeness in the back-hand shots of these players, and it is hard to think of any Australian who makes his in similar fashion. At all events the shot takes the eye, and is effective.

There was a flutter of excitement when Parke and Beamish went into court with Brookes and Dunlop for the final of the Victorian doubles championship, as this was the first trial of strength of the Davis Cup contestants in direct opposition. The test proved satisfactory to Australasians, so far as it went, as the home players won three sets straight. The fascination of Brookes' game is as intense as ever. He was in magnificent form, both in this match, and in the preceding round (played earlier in the afternoon) in which the pair disposed of Heath and Lycett, who won the title last year. He won all his service games, seldom losing more than a point in any of them. But it is the manner in which he will convert a losing position into a winning one which shows Brookes at his best. He had some opportunities of showing this phase of his skill on Saturday. The boldness, approaching audacity, with which Brookes stands in for the services of his opponents was very marked on Saturday. The court was slow after rain, and enabled him to get in closer even than usual, so that he frequently made his return almost immediately after the ball had crossed the service line, sweeping it down low at the feet of the server as he came in. Parke once jumped across from his position at the net when Beamish was serving, and snapped up Brookes' return in a manner reminiscent of Gaden. There was great applause; he had caught Brookes napping for a wonder, but he did not attempt it again.

Parke played very finely all through the doubles match, but Beamish was obviously below form. He is tall and slightly built, and of much darker complexion than the majority of Englishmen, and, like all the others of the team, his shots are made with an ease and freedom which take the eye. Had Beamish been in trim a more reliable line as to the meeting of the pairs in the Davis Cup, if they do meet, as is fully expected, would have been afforded. At all events, it provided no cause for alarm on the part of Australasia's supporters.

The stands round the Davis Cup court are now almost completed, and they provide a vast structure. If all the seats be filled, the sight will be something out of the common. The court itself is looking well, and should play similarly. There is abundant space for the run out, even for Parke, who repeatedly bumped into the boards at the end of the shorter court used on Saturday. However, it did not appear to disconcert him. No doubt when he played for the Irish International Rugby football team he received worse knocks than that.

GENIUS OF CRICKET.

(BY Dr. L. O. S. POIDEVIN.)

The problems and possibilities of a cricket ball associated with curve, spin, break, flight, and impact, are endless. Individual performances of one sort or another are constantly providing opportunities for the discussion of this or that phase of the matter, and so it happens that, although "the pitch has been freely cut up," in this respect the underlying fact, viz., the peculiar fascination of the game, usually escapes unnoticed and unexplained. That this fascination is a reality cannot be disputed for a moment, and it is a very interesting reality. Reflect for one moment upon the universality of the game, which, so far as the British Empire is concerned, knows no geographical limits and very few as regards age or social standing. Why does the game of cricket fascinate so? It is not an idle or puerile theme; there is more than enough in it to employ the best powers of thought of the really close thinker. Doubtless there are individuals very little responsive to the fascination of cricket and ball problems and practices, just as there are people who are colour-blind, or deaf to tone, or dead to the sympathetic appeal of dumb animals. But they are quite exceptional who have never experienced the fascination of a cricket ball or some other kind of ball that can be tossed about from hand to hand or have motion imparted to it by an implement of some sort.

It is safe enough to assume that from the very earliest ages a ball has been just as it is now, a favourite toy with children and a means of recreation to athletes of both sexes. There is abundant evidence, for example, of the existence of balls made of leather, and some also of wood, 4000 years ago, and although I do not wish just now to inquire into the paleontology of our summer pastime, it may be conceded, perhaps, that cricket, as we know it to-day, whether or not as an exercise of skill has reached or passed the zenith of its developments, and is but one of the many specialised developments of the same primeval spirit traceable through all the ages. Cricket must be played, I believe, if we want to extract from it every drop of its fascination, but the genius of the game makes it appeal hardly less strongly to the watcher in the pavilion, provided the watcher has played the game at some time—and few have not—and has kept a corner of his heart for the spirit of the game to make a home for itself.

To me it seems that the unique fascination of cricket is explicable largely on two grounds. To state these grounds, succinctly is not easy, partly because they overlap to so considerable an extent. The basis of the first is physical, with the mind controlling—that is to say, the innumerable problems and possibilities of action where you have a combination of men, a ball, a bat, and a stretch of turf. Think of the many different ways that a ball can be delivered, each way having it own definite object and its own result! For every kind of delivery there is a corresponding stroke of the bat or, indeed, several to the Trumpers and Spooners and MacLarens and Ranjis of the game; and moreover, as men differ in capacity and temperament, the same delivery will be dealt with differently, according to the various capacities and temperaments of the batsmen, not forgetting, of course, the needs of the occasion.

Take, for example and in illustration, a number of boy beginners at the game, and watch the different styles they will probably represent in their own way. Individual tendencies soon manifest themselves; you will see that one boy inclines to be cautious and wary. Another will assume an unquestionably daring and aggressive attitude towards the same bowling, whilst a third presents signs of adopting an attitude and style of midway between his two schoolfellows. In the natural tendencies of these three youngsters you have typified the steady batsman, the hitter, and the sound, yet forcing player. Each may in turn become a specialist in his way. It is a great and acknowledged part of the art of bowling to ascertain and contend with the idiosyncrasies of batsmen; and as they are but the reflection of the man himself, we are obviously dealing with—not an idle summer game—but a serious study of human nature. Accordingly, it should be possible to form a very fairly accurate idea of a cricketer's temperament as a man, simply by watching him as bowler and batsman and fieldsman. Doubtless there are some of the subtler shades of character that would not be revealed; but the cardinal colours of character should gain recognition. Attention, perhaps, is mostly focussed by the spectator upon batsman and bowler, but to some the most attractive branch of cricket is fielding. Syd. Gregory saving 50 runs between point and mid-off is to them a more pleasing sight than Gregory making 100 runs, and it is surely an exhilarating sight to see a set of expert fieldsmen—such as some of the international sides we can recall—eagerly watching every ball, anticipating every stroke, on their toes all the time, and moving to the ball with celerity and charming grace of movement.

The basis of the second ground is mental with the physical in attendance. My first ground had to do with the illimitable variations of mechanical skill, and, of course, the charm of achievement consequent thereon, as they effect both the player and the spectator; my second ground has to do with the more purely mental effects produced by the idea of "the side" or "the country." In no game, perhaps, of which I have any experience, is the "esprit de corps" so essential and so finely developed as in cricket. What a gratifying feeling it is to be one of eleven keen, intelligent men, each one performing perfectly his part in the accomplishment of a successful effort to get out for 140 a side which ought to make 280 runs? To the spectator, too, who knows and is devoted to his side, that is one of the finest sights in the game; to him a cricket match may be something more than a mere striving for victory between two elevens. When he sees his country or his county in the field, the eleven men are eleven friends, and they are even more than that—they are eleven friends striving for the honour of the country in which he was born, and to which he is bound by the strongest ties. Is not this country, State, or county feeling a natural development of the old tribal instinct?

No doubt, all games depend on this feeling for "the side" in some measure, but part of the genius of cricket is that its characteristics make it the game above all others in which there is the fullest room for the development of the feeling. Its comparative leisureliness and deliberations are an aid to this. There is time to conceive a deliberate plan of action, or change of front, and to carry it out. And yet, on the other side of the shield, there is room for the full play of individuality, and, I think, this combination is indeed part of the genius of cricket—the combination between the expression of the individual, plus and governed by the interests of the side.

If we were to listen to the voice of the croaker, masquerading as a reformer, and introduce such drastic changes, as, for example, "Spofforth's maiden over suggestion," we might or might not succeed in brightening the game, and, perhaps, in making it more exciting to a certain class of spectator, but we would kill its peculiar charm, and there is always the danger in these suggested reforms of reducing it so nearly to the likeness of other games, that the question "What is the genius of cricket?" would not need to be asked. This is pre-eminently the age of hurry and ostentation; but, while the order of the day is change, the genius of cricket keeps it not only alive, but unspoiled.

SAILING.

OCEAN RACES.

THE JANUARY REGATTAS.

AUSTRALIAN'S CHAMPIONSHIP.

The yachts of the Royal Prince Alfred Yacht Club will be divided into two classes next Saturday for the first ocean race of the club's programme of this season. Both classes will sail the same course, which will be from the starting line off Fort Denison, round a mark five miles to windward or leeward, outside South Reef, and back to the finishing line in Farm Cove. Under favourable weather conditions these races are always full of interest, as a beat dead to windward in open waters is undoubtedly the best test of the qualities of both yacht and skipper.

A. B. JONES (N.S.W.),
Member of the Australasian Lawn Tennis Team.

The regatta committees are now actively engaged making arrangements for the successful carrying out of the three January events. The first will be the seventh annual Pittwater Regatta on the first Saturday in the new year, followed a fortnight later by that of Manly, for the ninth year in succession. Anniversary Day this year falling on a Sunday, the National Regatta held in connection with it since 1837 will take place on the Monday. Attractive programmes of events, including sailing, rowing, and motor-boat races, have been issued by the Pittwater and Manly committees, and the subcommittees of the Aniversary fixture are busy with the details of its programme.

The initial contest for the Fairfax cup should long be remembered by those who followed as well as those who took part in the race. Many on the club steamer remarked that they would not have missed it for anything. The duel between Thelma and Sayonara, with Whitewings and Yeulba close by, off the wind from Bradley's Head to Manly, was an exhilarating sight. Crossing the Heads Thelma's skipper out-manoeuvred Mr. Ross by hoisting his spinnaker, but not breaking it out, and thus being able to luff up under Sayonara's stern, and obtain the weather position. Approaching the Manly buoy Sayonara, being the overtaking boat, should have given Thelma room to make the rounding mark, and had she done so the latter would in all probability have been the winner of the race, as four or five minutes were lost owing to the south-west squall striking the yachts and forcing them to the eastward of the mark, which made it necessary for Thelma to jibe twice in order to round with the mark on her starboard hand.

Whitewings was fortunate in not sustaining damage from contact with the club steamer, which was compelled to remain stationary, as the heavy rain shut out all the yachts from view, and Whitewings was not seen until almost alongside.

Culwulla III. was fortunate in having hauled a wind some time before the squall came, and, seeing it coming as she was standing in to Dobroyde, her skipper put his helm down so as to meet the blow away from the shore. After the storm had passed and the atmosphere cleared, those on board discovered that instead of pointing for North Head the yacht was tearing through the water towards Smedley's Point, and that she had made a lot of leeway, thus losing some minutes of her lead.

The working handicaps were adhered to in the Port Jackson Skiff Club's race on Saturday, and almost immediately after the start the southerly came. This gave the limit boats a great advantage over the back-markers, and it looked as if Greta must win easily. The breeze was patchy at the top end of the harbour, and several of the boats opened up a good lead from the rest of the fleet. Greta was the first to round the Watson's Bay pile light, but she carried only four hands, and, with her big sail, found the going too hard. Ensign headed the fleet at the Shark Island light, followed by Planet.

R. W. HEATH (Vic.),
Member of the Australasian Lawn Tennis Team.

There were two accidents on the work to this light. The Phillips, which was sailing well in the fresh breeze, carried away her mast, and the Austral lost her bumpkin through a collision with one of the "eighteens." It was thought that Ensign would keep her lead, but shortly after passing the Quay she was displaced by the Planet. Lark, which was third at the island, finished in that place, followed by Assegai and Ena. The finishing times were:—Planet, 5h 12m 30s; Ensign, 5h 12m 56s; Lark, 5h 13m 46s; Assegai, 5h 14m 50s; and Ena, 5h 15m 5s.

The unexpected happened in the Flying Squadron's 18ft Championship race on Saturday, and Australian, the winner, was the only one of the three scratch boats in handicap races to get amongst the prizes. It was something in the nature of a paradox to see such boats as Eunice, Pastime, and Mona filling second, third, and fourth places, as they invariably receive liberal starts, and only in the previous race, over the same course, were allotted 6m, 7½m, and 4½m respectively.

This state of affairs was, of course, principally due to the fact that the majority of the boats were light handed when the southerly breeze, which gave place to the light conditions that prevailed just before the start, freshened into a spiteful blow, and settled the chances of some of their number. Nimrod was amongst these, but Kismet, which is always on the "mark of honour" with Australian and Nimrod, would have got the third or fourth prize had she not carried away her bumpkin working from Taylor Bay to Shark Island.

Kismet showed to advantage early in the race, but she had no chance with Australian on the wind. The latter carried her big sails surprisingly well, and although repeatedly flattened out by the hard breeze, seemed to go to windward in fine style, and also sailed a great boat off the wind. It was just the day to bring out the best qualities of the crews, and in this respect Chris. Webb and his men excelled themselves. According to Australian's owner, three of her heaviest hands were dropped before the start, so that in this respect she was in much the same predicament as the others which carried big sails. Her owner (Mr. W. M. Ford) has every reason to be proud of the new boat's splendid win, and her performances to date show that she is a champion in every sense of the word.

Eunice's fine showing was mainly due to the fact that she carried her second sails, and was nicely suited when the breeze was at its worst, but also because she was well handled by W. Duncan, jun., skipper of the Botany 14-footer Rene. A first and a second in a championship is the boat's record for her last two races, and only goes to show what can be done by her when in good hands. J. Smith did very well to bring Pastime home third, for she carried a big sail, yet seemed to relish the breeze.

Scot sailed prominently on th. work from the Sow and Pigs to Shark Island, but was eventually beaten for sixth place by Donnelly, a few seconds only separating them. Quibree was the only other boat to finish.

The protest entered by the representative of Blanche against Kismet for interference in the Flying Squadron's last handicap has been upheld.

Mr. F. D. Sewell, commodore, Perth Flying Squadron, was entertained at a launch picnic at "Carrie's," Middle Harbour, when the occasion was taken by the Interstate 18ft Committee to present him with a handsome rose bowl. Messrs. V. Riva, R. Allen, and J. T. Lennon were in their best form, and did much towards the success of the outing.

It is now certain that two boats will represent Western Australia at the Interstate 18ft Carnival here in January. The committee has received a telegram from Mr. Jas. Bolt, secretary, Perth Flying Squadron, as follows:—"Eurus won final test. Westana also coming across. Boats leave mail steamer, December 31."

A new 18-footer has just been built at Port Macquarie for Mr. F. Newton, inspector of fisheries there. She is described as a shapely craft, and J. G. Carter has been approached with regard to fitting her out with sails. It is reported that it is the intention of her owner to send her to Sydney for the interstate races in January.

The prizes won in the Flying Squadron's championship last Saturday are to be presented at a smoke concert at the Oxford Hall, Liverpool-street, Hyde Park, to-morrow evening.

The committee of the Middle Harbour Regatta, to be held on January 1, have adopted the following sailing programme:—Handicap open to all Middle Harbour and Mosman sailing clubs' boats; 6ft dingies, morning and afternoon; 16ft skiffs, under Sydney Skiff Club's rules; 18ft boats, "best and best"; 24ft and under, one extra, skiffs excluded, 16ft skiffs under Port Jackson Skiff Club's rules. The Newcastle Regatta is also a fixture for the same day.

CYCLING.

THE SIX-DAYS' RACE.

The general topic of conversation in cycling circles during the last few days has been the second Sydney six-days' bicycle race, which will start on the Sydney Cricket Ground on December 30. No doubt, mainly due to the huge success of the first race last January, the promoters are very confident that the venture will prove successful, and state that only bad weather will spoil the attendances. The league's president states that up to date all the arrangements are working smoothly. The final list of the teams is not yet available, but so far it is a question of sorting out, and therefore the final selection will be held over until the last moment. However, it is stated that several strong Australian teams are assured. No doubt more European teams would have entered had it not been for transport troubles, but the promoters could not foresee such happenings. At the same time several oversea teams will compete, and it will be an international contest, run on its merits. Mr. O'Brien states that the type of riders who will be selected for this year's race are the men who show to advantage in this class of racing, and can easily wear down the brilliant sprinter. A hard-run race from the first pistol fire is expected, as the class of men to compete glory in a solid rush round, and when they get warmed up every effort will be made to secure a break. It is also expected that the changes will be made more frequently than in the first race. It must also be remembered that the Australian riders have gained a lot from their experiences of last January, and will start the race better equipped to meet the international teams on December 30 than they were before. Mr. O'Brien states that great interest is being taken abroad in the Sydney "six-days" and that he is in receipt of communications from oversea promoters asking him to arrange terms with the winning team to compete in the leading six-day events in America and Europe.

A. W. DUNLOP (Vic.),
Member of the Australasian Lawn Tennis Team.

NOTES.

Leon Meredith says he has finished with track work. One or two lesser lights intend abandoning racing. Some prominent riders will probably favour cash racing. E. W. Schneider, the Australian, left for Paris last week with the object of attacking Oscar Egg's world's unpaced record of 26 miles 466 yards, and in the meantime he will turn his attention to human tandem-paced racing as a pro. This class of racing should suit Schneider better than sprinting, as he is an undoubted stayer and possesses speed.

W. J. Bailey has been offered engagements by a well-known Paris track manager, and one of England's road riders is already negotiating with a view of an early appearance in Paris.

MOTORING.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AUSTRALIA.

The monthly meeting of the Automobile Club of Australia will be held to-morrow at 8 p.m. The main business is the reports of the committees, generally of most interest to members. At the conclusion of the monthly meeting the annual meeting will be held. The hon. secretary's annual report and the hon. treasurer's report and the financial statement will be presented to members, and the meeting will be closed with the election of officers and committee for the ensuing year.

At present matters in connection with the A.C.A. are very quiet, and those members who took part as drivers, observers, and passengers in the recent three days' reliability trial have reason to be quiet, as they have just emerged from a trying experience, the rough roads and intense heat on Friday testing the human frame to the utmost. It must be understood that these trials are not races or speed contests, but are conducted purely for reliability and efficiency. The first car into a control is not necessarily the winner; in fact, it may be last on the list when the final results are declared. It was a close tussle for first place between H. Knight Eaton (Arrol Johnston) and Jules Maillard (Brasier); and, although the winner is popular, much sympathy was felt with Mr. Maillard, who has competed in every club contest, and so far has not been able to score a win, although always well up in the placings.

So far as the hill-climb was concerned, Mr. Les. W. Pye, with his Vauxhall, kept up his winning form, although the "Arrol Johnston" and "Crossley" ran him close last Saturday. At the same time, if he continues to annex the hill-climbs in this way, one may be tempted to write under the list of competitors before the results are out:—"Winner, L. W. Pye."

NOTES.

The "London Sportsman" gives an interesting account of a splendid performance achieved at Brooklands on a 12-16 Sunbeam, driven by Dario Resta and R. F. L. Crossman, breaking the 900-mile, 12 and 13 hour, and 1000 miles world's records. The same car broke four and five hour world's records previously. Starting at 5.30 a.m., a steady pace of about 79 miles per hour was maintained, eight minutes being lost in the third hour through a broken spring and short-circuiting; at 7½ hours the car had fallen 17 minutes behind record. At eight hours the score was 553 miles 784 yards. Thenceforward the speed steadily increased, creeping up at 10½ hours within six minutes of record.

The full twelve hours showed 3 miles 203 yards ahead of record time. In 13 hours it yielded 987 miles 1548 yards, and 1000 miles were covered in 13 hours 3 minutes 25 seconds, beating S. F. Edge's five-year-old record by 1 hour 45 minutes 50 seconds. The average speed was 76.102 miles per hour.

Particulars are to hand from America of the two big annual long-distance motor-car events, the "Vanderbilt Cup" and the American Grand Prix, both of which were this year held at Milwaukee. The former event, over a course of 299½ miles, was won by Ralph de Palma, on a "Mercedes" car, his time being 4 hours 20 mins. 31 secs. De Palma, who is one the most popular drivers in America, won by the small margin of 43 secs. The Grand Prix would also have probably fallen to De Palma, only for a smash up in the last lap, when he had overtaken the leader. The event was won by C. Bragg, on a "Fiat." The course of 409.9 miles was negotiated in the good time of 350 mins., or 5 hrs. 59 mins. 22½ secs. A novel feature of the eight miles road circuit, over which both these contests were held, was the "breastworks" of baled hay which were staked on the outside of all bad corners, and they proved effective, too, for in several cases, drivers taking turns "all out" crashed into the hay, without sustaining any serious damage to limb or machine. Tremendous crowds witnessed both races.

A copy of the September number of the "Austral Advocate" is to hand from Dalgety and Co., Ltd. It has a number of illustrations and articles that should be of interest to all motorists.

The details of the record motor drive between Sydney and Brisbane on a 12-h.p. Continental-shod Talbot are now to hand. The first report stated that Mr. Dodwell drove the car, but it appears that it was driven by Mr. W. Joss, accompanied by Mr. J. Adams. The detailed report states:—"The car left Sydney G.P.O. on Tuesday, November 12, at 6 p.m., the start being formally certified by postal officials. A schedule of 35 hours had been arranged, which provided for an average speed of 20 miles an hour, including stops, but the car proved itself capable of exceeding the average considerably, for the first wire was received from Tamworth (266 miles) at 4.15 p.m., which distance had been negotiated in 10¼ hours. The time of arrival at Armidale was 7.30 p.m., showing that 366 miles had been disposed of in 13½ hours. At this stage 20 minutes were lost in replenishing the petrol tank. All through the night the car continued its meteoric rush, traversing the granite country from Tenterfield across the border into Warwick, and arriving at that centre at 6.35 a.m. on Wednesday, with 546 miles in the rear, the time occupied being 24 hours 35 minutes. After leaving Warwick heavy rains were encountered, making the roads slippery and unsafe, the car at times being bogged up to the footboards, and its progress sometimes reduced to the rate of two miles per hour. Toowoomba was reached at 10.55 a.m., and after five minutes' delay the motorist started on the last stage of the long drive, but his progress was again retarded by the muddy condition of the road. Approaching Rosewood, the party encountered floods, which necessitated a detour via Marburg and Ipswich, passing through the latter town at 5.50 p.m. It was anticipated that Brisbane would be reached by 4.30 p.m. on Thursday, as the roads between Athens and Brisbane were known to be in good order. However, a jam in the gears occurred near Goodna, as they were being changed rapidly. Under ordinary circumstances the trouble would have been easily adjusted, but a screwdriver blade fell out of its handle, and was deposited at the bottom of the gear-box, and the tantalising task of fishing it out of the thick grease and many wheels robbed the party of close on an hour. Brisbane was reached without further incident at 6.50 p.m., which time was certified to by the postal officials. Messrs. Joss and Adams were absolutely covered in mud, and were emphatic in condemnation of the Queensland roads."

To cover 700 miles in 36 hours 50 minutes under the above conditions is a splendid testimony as to the reliability of any type of car. Performances such as these serve to impress upon the public the value of motor transit.

THE MOTOR CYCLE CLUB OF N.S.W.

The Motor Cycle Club of New South Wales held a smoke concert last week. The prizes, amounting to 40 guineas, won at the recent motor cycle gymkhana, also various club competitions, were presented by the chairman, Mr. H. A. Browne. The secretary of the A.C.A. outlined a series of competitions for the future, including a three-day reliability trial at Easter.

The club badges of solid silver are now ready for distribution. The design is a tyre with an engine in the centre, surrounded with a kangaroo mascot, with the club colours—blue and gold.

The first competition for the Speedwell Cup, valued at seven guineas, was held last Saturday over the Hornsby Valley course. The result of the competition will be available to-day. The petrol consumption test will be held in Centennial Park on December 7.

A general meeting will be hed to-morrow (Thursday), at the Sports Club, at 8 p.m.

BOXING.

To-night's contest at the Stadium between Herb M'Coy (Victoria) and Leon Bernstein (France) should prove interesting. After a series of defeats the visiting contingent have now gained two successive victories, and are in hopes of adding another. Bernstein has undergone a most vigorous preparation with Paul Til, and is stated to be in much better condition than when he met Hock Keys a few weeks' ago, and was compelled to capitulate owing to his condition giving out, as the result of Keys' incessant battery of body blows.

The Stadium matinee to-morrow afternoon, beginning at 3 p.m., will have as its chief attraction a 10-round contest for a purse, between J. Dunleavy (sparring partner to Jack Read) and Regio (well known at the Gaiety). Three-round combatants will be found in Billy Pape v Mat Jones, Tas. Porter v Len Chapple (Eng.), B. Heath (Vic.) v Bob Harris, Roy Hollingsworth v Jack Rafton, and W. Norris v H. Humphreys. Sparring exhibitions are to be given by Poesy, Keys, Til, and Sid Sullivan.

H. Bowers, winner of the English amateur featherweight championship of 1911, has decided to become a professional.

A match will in all probability be arranged in the course of the next few days between Ercole De Balzac and Pat Bradley.

The return match between Jimmy Hill and Leon Truffier has been set down for decision at the Stadium on December 7.

Jean Posey, the former featherweight champion of France, who has the reputation of being one of the cleverest of present-day European boxers will be opposed to Hock Keys at the Stadium on Saturday night. Poesy is only 22 years of age, and will have little if anything the worse of the weights. He should therefore be able to hold his own with Keys.

Arrangements have been made by the South Sydney Harriers to carry out their second annual boxing tournament at the Stadium, commencing on February 3. The contests are open to all bona-fide amateurs, and the divisions agreed upon are:—Bantam (8st 2lb), feather (9st), light (10st), welter (10st 9lb), and middle-weight (11st 4lb).

FIXTURES.

The Stadium, to-night: Herb McCoy v Leon Bernstein, 8.30. Thursday, Nov. 28, matinee athletic display, and "Regio" v Dunleavy, 3; Saturday, Nov. 30, Hock Keys v Jean Posey, 8.30; Wednesday, Dec. 4, Paul Til v Sid Sullivan, 8.30.

ROWING.

THE BARRY-PEARCE MATCH.

Henry Pearce has a promise that Ernest Barry will race him for the world's sculling championship and the recognised stakes of £500 a side. The suggested date is July next, and the course the Thames championship. Pearce is to be allowed £100 for expenses. The sum offered will not cover the outlay, even though the challenger should go unattended by a coach or rowing companion. Barry has found R. Arnst £500 for expenses, but at the time he was not the champion, so felt called upon to make a big offer to secure a race on his own course. Durnan lost no time in accepting £100 to secure a race on the Thames, which sum could not cover his expenses. He had the assistance of a fine amateur ex-champion in L. F. Scholes, a personal friend, who was also resident in Toronto. A challenger who is prepared to go to a distant country must have at least a reasonable hope that he will not be out of pocket over the venture; but if he cannot win, well of course, he must be a loser of money. The question of expenses is quite a modern innovation, and unknown to the old timers. However, Barry wants the race, and so has done what in the circumstances may be regarded as quite as much as could be expected of him. It would pay Pearce to row Barry on the Parramatta, even though he did not win, as the gate would protect him against loss; but on the Thames the gate is a poor security.

The New South Wales Rowing Association was 34 years old last Saturday, having been formed November 23, 1878. It is a strange coincidence that Friday was the anniversary of the welcome home of the first team of Australian cricketers, and 34 years afterwards our amateur oarsmen were formally welcomed on returning to Sydney. Of the New South Wales Rowing Association the organising secretary was Henry Coles, and the treasurer Major J. W. M'Cutcheon. Among others who formed the first committee were P. J. Clark, R. A. Clark, N. Lockyer, T. F. Strange, F. B. Hall, P. Anderson, C. de B. Deloitte, W. Cope, C. C. Medcalf, and G. H. (Judge) Fitzhardinge. There were only two clubs—Sydney and Mercantile—but during the following year Glebe and North Shore clubs were formed and affiliated. With as little delay as possible the committee formulated a workable constitution, drew up boat race and other laws, and soon had control of amateur rowing, which it has not since lost.

The executive of the Rowing Association waited upon the Premier recently, and had an informal chat concerning the proposal to hold a "Henley" regatta on Long Cove Canal. Mr. M'Gowen was sympathetic, but pointed out the many difficulties in the way of the desired object. He had witnessed one of the "Henley" functions on the Yarra, and would like to see a similar carnival established here if it could reasonably be accomplished. As an outcome of the discussion, the Premier has consented to receive a deputation at noon to-day, comprising representatives of the Rowing Association, members for Ashfield and Petersham, the Mayors of Leichhardt, Petersham, Ashfield, and Drummoyne, representatives from the Harbour Foreshores Committee, Motor Boat Club, etc. Mr. Carmichael, Minister for Instruction, and member for Leichhardt, has been asked to introduce the deputation.

The request to be put forth will probably be one for the dedication to trustees of part of the reclaimed Crown land on the south-east side of the canal for the purpose of constructing an enclosure, and eventually erecting a stand for use at aquatic functions.

Mr. Alex. Thomson, manager of the Olympic crew, had, prior to his return to Sydney, practically decided to give up active participation in the management of rowing, but since his return he finds his liking for the sport so strong that he is now undecided whether to offer his services to the Rowing Association, as arranged at the time of his departure, or not. He is a member of the North Shore Club, and although not a delegate to the association, there is nothing to prevent his re-election to the position of hon. secretary.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Thomson, who has done so much for rowing, and but for whose exertions the Olympic crew would not have left these shores this year, will see his way to continue his active connection with the sport.

The hon. secretary of the association received a few days ago from the Swedish authorities certificates of merit for the members of the Olympic Eight. They are of most artistic design, and occasion was taken at the official reception to the crew on Friday last to present them.

At that function, also, opportunity was taken by the chairman (Judge Backhouse) to hand to the hon. secretary of the association the Australian flag, presented by Mr. E. S. Marks, and which was carried by the Australian launch at Henley-on-Thames. It is beautifully worked in silk, and will be displayed at the association's regatta on December 14 next.

Entries for the races of the Parramatta River Professional Club are reported to be coming in well, and a good day's racing is anticipated on December 7. A steamer will follow the events, leaving Fort Macquarie at 2.15 p.m., and calling at Abbotsford. Entries for both outrigger and pleasure skiff races also for the Spiers Point Regatta, on Boxing Day, should be made with the hon. secretary of the club (Box 320, G.P.O.).

In addition to the "Angus and Coote Challenge Shield," which is to carry with it the professional championship of N.S.W., the Parramatta River Club has received an offer from Messrs. C., W., and C. Towns, of a new wager boat and pair of racing sculls. It is intended to promote a series of races later in the season, and to add substantial prizes.

THE OLYMPIC ROWERS.

SUGGESTED CANADIAN VISIT.

Mr. Alex. Thomson, who returned by the Marama last Sunday, was somewhat reticent on being interviewed. He said he was the last man home, and no doubt all that was worth saying had already been said. He had been out of touch with what had been happening lately. Nevertheless, Mr. Thomson had some interesting information to impart.

Asked if he cared to express his opinion on the Henley race, Mr. Thomson said that he was always keen on that race. The crew only went to London on the off-chance of getting a race on the Thames. They asked to be allowed to compete at Henley, and the Royal Henley Committee met them in an exceedingly sportsmanlike way, and practically drove the proverbial coach-and-four through their rules to gratify the Australians' desire to take part in the historic race.

Mr. Thomson prefers the Australian boats to the English. For finish, weight, durability, and neatness of workmanship, George Towns' boats are, he says, superior in every way. He personally regretted that the rowers had to leave the "eight" in which they won the Grand behind. She has already won several races for her new owners, the Thames Rowing Club, who have stowed her away snugly until next Henley, when they hope to compete and win in her.

Mr. Thomson is of the opinion that there was not much difference in the two boats used in the races. The "Referee" may have been a trifle the slower of the two. There were some very heavy bow men, but the fact that they were in faster water counterbalanced the difference in this respect.

Mr. Thomson would not discuss the defeat of the Australians at Stockholm. He said, however, that he was not surprised at the result. He did not think there was any prospect of an English crew visiting Australia in the near future. But Canada possesses some very good clubs, and Mr. Thomson thought a good representative crew could be induced to come to Australia if they were approached. Vancouver possesses a good club, and is only a little over three weeks from Sydney.

Mr. Thomson concluded by saying he thought the rowers' visit abroad had proved very successful, notwithstanding their defeat at Stockholm. The visit would result in stimulating the sport throughout Australia, as well as being a big advertisement for the Commonwealth.

FOOTBALL.

RUGBY UNION.

According to English mails, the more matches played by the South Africans the less satisfied were the critics. The Springboks themselves were evidently not feeling satisfied, and for the first five matches had been changing their teams considerably. At the same time, if they failed to please the critics by their display, they had fully sustained the reputation of their predecessors for playing a good, clean, sporting game.

Against Glamorgan in their first Welsh match the form shown was not convincing, and their victory of 16 to nil was gained only by superior speed and weight. Amongst the backs knocks-on and passes forward were frequent, and the forwards were superior only in the line-out where their greater height told. In the final stages, when the Welshmen were demoralised, the team showed a dash worthy of the All Blacks, who seem to have set the standard to which all visiting teams are compared. The game, however, was won by the superior size of the forwards, as the backs were only moderate.

During the week the Africans defeated a North of England side by 17 to nil, and on Saturday achieved the ambition of the present team by defeating Scotland convincingly by 16 to nil.

HANDY TO STATION,

FRONTING GOOD WATER.

This is a wonderful opportunity for the man who has his own welfare at heart—the man who wants to get out of the rut—the man with some "go" in him.

We offer him the chance of owning his own home within a short period, and also the means of making a rattling good living meanwhile.

This is how—

is just a continuation of the best selling part of our old Homedale Estate. We allude to that part which fronts Oatley Bay, a clear, deep, and picturesque arm of the George's River. The lots we offer now for Poultry Farming Purposes have all frontages to this water, and don't forget the water is deep. You could erect your own jetty there, keep a boat, and have all kinds of fun as well, after your day's work was done.

These blocks range in size from an acre up to two acres—just nice and handy for one or two persons to look after.

Homedale Heights comprise some grand home sites as well. On the high ground overlooking the George's River, and commanding magnificent panoramic views of sea and land, are a number of nice lots averaging 66ft x 200ft, and upwards.

HURSTVILLE

As you all know, is only some twenty minutes' rail from Sydney, and is blessed with the best train service of any of our suburbs.

It is a Clean, Healthy, Go-ahead Spot. Just the place to bring up a strong, robust family—to say nothing of the ducks and the chickens.

The air back on Homedale Heights is just like that in the Mountains, crisp and bracing; but the property has the added advantage of being within an hour's journey of the Sydney markets.

This is going to be a "quick seller," so come in for your plan to-day.

IDEAL [illegible] HOME [illegible] CONDITIONS [illegible] AT HABERFIELD,
"Sydney's Garden Suburb."

The pleasant design and attractive exterior of a Haberfield Home is set off to the greatest advantage by the clever planning of the suburb. To produce a healthy and beautiful suburb was the aim never lost sight of from the earliest moment. The result is the existence of an estate where the modern science of suburb-planting is seen to perfection.

The Villas themselves are all of distinctive design, each differing from the others. The interiors are decorated, and finished with close regard to the general scheme of the structure. The appointments throughout are modern and artistic. Each building is sound, weatherproof, well ventilated, and possessed of every necessary convenience.

It is easy to own a Haberfield Home. If you have only £50 to pay as deposit we can deal with you at HABERFIELD. Our easy terms of repayment on a 5 per cent. basis will astonish you. In most cases the repayments are practically less than the property is worth on a rental basis. The balance of the purchase money is payable as rent. You arrive at absolute ownership in the smoothest and easiest way. You never feel the strain.

At £1065 we are offering a specially fine residence, in which the following features are artistically combined: A wide 6 feet entrance hall, about 30 feet in length, fitted with picture rail and deep frieze, specially imported. The majestic appearance of this as you enter from a Mosaic tiled 6ft front verandah gives the effect of a £1500 home, as well as giving light and spaciousness to the whole cottage. The three bedrooms are delightfully finished with art mantels, friezes, picture railings, artistic gas ornaments, and opening on to a 10ft lounge verandah one has ample sleeping-out accommodation. The dining and drawing rooms are beautifully fitted with bevelled glass mirrored art overmantels, imported frieze finishings, picture rails, and antique furnishings. The tiled bathroom is fitted with large porcelain enamelled bath, shower, lavatory basin, gas, etc. There are two linen presses, pantries, gas stove, and kitchen and laundry are fitted throughout with carefully studied domestic conveniences. The land is 50 x 150. We would like to show you this cottage. It is convenient to both the train and the tram.

Haberfield is reached by Abbotsford or Haberfield tram from G.P.O. in 30 minutes, or by "through" train to Summer Hill in 10 minutes.

Take tram in George-street, and alight at O'Connell street.

BELLEVUE ESTATE,

LANE COVE HEIGHTS,

AUCTION SALE, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 7.

The Heights of Lane Cove are not by any means as well known as the beautiful surroundings entitle them to. But the time is now very close at hand when the tide will set in strongly in that direction. Mr. David Fell, M.L.A., informed the Lane Cove Council at its last meeting that a tram to Greenwich Point could not be expected at present as the first thing that would be done would be to connect the Longueville tram with the Figtree Wharf. This will prove one of the most beautiful tourist routes around the metropolis, and will pay from the start, whereas now there is a loss on the Longueville tram. But there is more than that behind it. It will only be a short span to connect the Fig Tree wharf with the Gladesville tram. But why do that? Because the tram traffic on the northern side of the harbour has grown to such an enormous extent that the problem of getting the rolling stock around has become a nightmare to the department, and this route is the only solution. Now you know what is the matter. But do you know that this part is going to be a very big industrial centre, that great Paper Mills, which will employ hundreds of hands, are already in course of construction, that the Chicago Mills are in the neighbourhood, and that the largest Rubber Works in Australia are about to be erected there.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY THERE, AND THE BELLEVUE ESTATE
IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY TO BUY AT FIRST COST ON EASY TERMS.

AUCTION SALES.

AT THE TRAM TERMINUS.

COOPER'S

BELLEVUE HILL-BONDI ESTATE.

There are many home Sites in Sydney which command the magnificent harbour views for which our city is justly famous. There are others which have the advantage of being in select high-class localities—a few possess the added charm of accessibility—but there are NONE which combine ALL these features in the same degree as this one, which we offer for sale by will take place at 3 p.m. on the ground, and will mark an epoch in the land sales of this city. Already we have been inundated with inquiries about this magnificent property, which is a fair indication of the high place it holds in the estimation of buyers.

PUBLIC AUCTION,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 14.

THE SALE

THE PROPERTY

extends from the present Bellevue Hill Terminus, along the Victoria-road as far as the boundary of Mr. Mark Foy's residence, and runs right down to the O'Sullivan-road and the Golf Links. It is bounded on the other side by the Old South Head-road, and lots fronting this road command a splendid Easterly aspect.

THE LOCALITY

is recognised as being one of the most select in Sydney. Many of our leading citizens have beautiful and imposing homes adjoining the Estate—in fact, Sydney's finest homes are right here. The Governor's residence is close by, and the walks from Victoria-road to Rose Bay are most charming and picturesque. Lovers of boating, bathing, surfing, or golfing have all the facilities close at hand.

TERMS.

The terms are very easy, and should form a big inducement to purchasers. 5 per cent. deposit, balance in 60 monthly or twenty quarterly payments.

THE VIEW

is most comprehensive and impressive. On one side is the deep blue of the ocean and the golden sands of Bondi Beach with its merry groups of surfers; on the other, the sparkling waters of the harbour, dotted with the white sails of many pleasure craft—the graceful sweep of Rose Bay, with its fleet of launches, and right in front is the refreshing green of the golf links, backed by a noble expanse of verdant hills, their freshness accentuated by red roofs here and there, and forming in all a most delightful landscape.

THE TRAM SERVICE

is one of the best—fast and frequent—and keeping residents in easy touch with the city. The Extension from Bellevue Hill terminus to Bondi has been passed by the Committee of Public Works, and RUNS RIGHT THROUGH THE ESTATE, thereby enhancing the value of every lot.

THE ROADS

have been carefully laid out, and the Estate is splendidly served in this respect. Arrangements have been made to kerb, gutter, and blue metal all the roads on the property. The lots will average 50 x 150 feet, and every one will be an ideal home site.

THE QUESTION OF MONEY MAKING.

It is a mighty hard job for the average wage-earner to accumulate an independence—to sit behind a good banking account. The only way to do it is by judicious speculation, and the best investment of all is a bit of land in a progressive locality. Our Famous Easy Terms System puts this within the reach of everyone—it only means a few shillings a month put by regularly.

CONDELL PARK ESTATE, BANKSTOWN, is an investment of the "gilt-edged" variety. Right in the heart of a growing and prosperous suburb—the terminus of the Belmore Line—a locality in which we have already sold over £70,000 worth—a locality healthy, picturesque, and with prospects second to none. Every year—every month, in fact—sees values steadily on the rise. Houses, good houses, too, have sprung up all around. Sweet-smelling orchards, beautiful flower gardens, prosperous poultry runs, and cosy dwellings have transformed Bankstown into a veritable Arcadia.

BEST OF ALL, BANKSTOWN is only 13 MILES—35 MINUTES' Journey to Sydney—and has now a greatly improved train service; and CONDELL PARK is just a minute or two from the station.

OUR OPENING AUCTION SALE, SATURDAY,
DECEMBER 7th, AT 3 P.M.,
ON GROUND.

We are making this the opening sale of our season, and we feel sure that it will be a big one. All our land at Bankstown has been good, and CONDELL PARK is as good as the best.

The property will be offered on our Easy Terms of £1 down and 10/ per month for every £30 purchased.

SUBDIVISION SALE OF ONE OF KATOOMBA'S BEST-KNOWN "OLD HOME" SPOTS.
"ABBOTSFORD" House and Grounds is one of the best-known places in Katoomba, and has always been considered a picked spot. Situated in Katoomba-street, the chief residential thoroughfare, only eight minutes from the station. Commanding unrivalled views of the famed Jamieson Valley, so frequently wrapt in its soft veil of blue or white. In this gloriously picturesque valley stands that pile of mighty rocks fitly named the Ruined Castle, which assumes pleasing changes of aspect with every mood of the atmosphere or light.
To-day's choice, though extremely limited, is exceedingly wide, as, in explanation of this paradox, you now have the opportunity of buying a house or residential lot on the spot that was chosen of many in a former day.
Don't fail, then, to grasp the importance of the opportunity of our great offer. The position is ideal, the soil is rich, and clad with verdure. There are fruit trees, ornamental and indigenous shrubs and trees. The bracing climate and mountain grandeur are a great natural tonic of incalculable value.
THE HOUSE AND SUBDIVIDED GROUNDS WILL BE SOLD BY AUCTION,
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 7,
AT 2.30 P.M.
This is a preliminary announcement. Further information in future advts. and from the auctioneers. We personally conduct intending buyers over the property. Cards to inspect the Residence and Grounds, and plan of Subdivision, obtainable at our offices.

STATE SESSION.

LONG SITTINGS OF ASSEMBLY.

SPEAKER'S ESTIMATES CUT DOWN.

MAIN ROADS BILL.

The Assembly, after adjourning at 10 a.m. yesterday, at the finish of a 17 hours' sitting, resumed business at 7 in the evening. Notwithstanding the protracted sittings, there was a fair muster of members, the Opposition in particular being refreshed in spirit by the opportunity they had had in the grey morning light of saying what their opinion was of Mr. Willis's methods, and in having the assistance of a number of Government supporters in cutting down his Estimates.

The House is now looking for the conclusion of the session, and sittings that run far into the morning are the rule. Even the practice of adjourning for meals is sometimes dispensed with. To-day a fresh announcement of the Government's programme for the expiring days is expected. It appears that it is subject to frequent revision. The list given out by Mr. Holman recently seems less and less to have any sincerity at the back of it as the time goes on. There is a general feeling that if the Redistribution Commission report is brought up little else afterwards will be heard of.

The Main Roads Bill was the principal business last night.

In view of Mr. Nielsen's refusal of the Trade Commissionership of the Pacific, Mr. David Storey (Liberal) asked the Premier if it was intended to appoint anybody to the position, and, if so, would he be paid £1 a day, as Mr. Nielsen was? The reply of Mr. M'Gowen was that he could not say who would be appointed commissioner, but the salary would be identical with that paid the Trade Commissioner for the East.

Adverting to the debate on the Estimates, during which reference was freely made to the editing of "Hansard" by the Speaker, Mr. Fern (Labour) asked Mr. Willis: "Will you explain to the House just what power you have in controlling 'Hansard'?"

The Speaker: I take it that the officers employed on the Assembly side are under the Speaker. When they cease to be under the Speaker I shall cease to occupy this chair. (Opposition cheers.)

An Opposition member: Another threat to the Government.

The Treasurer (Mr. Cann) stated, in reply to Mr. Wood, who asked if he contemplated going to the London market for another £1,500,000, that he had to raise additional money before the end of the financial year, and he proposed to take the usual course for doing so.

MAIN ROADS BILL ATTACKED.

An attack was made on the Main Roads Bill by Mr. Wood. He said it was an encroachment upon the local governing principle. In proof of that he told the House that he had in his possession protests coming from almost every council and shire in the State. By the declarations of the Minister for Works in the House he had intimated that the shires and municipalities were in favour of the bill. The general contention, so far as the Government was concerned, that certain shires and municipalities were behind them, was invalid—it was improper, and bordered on the dishonest. Who were the shires, who were the municipalities who had intimated to the Minister or the Local Government Department that they were in favour of the bill?

Mr. Griffith denied that he had made the statement attributed to him. He had introduced the measure, he said, on his own initiative.

Continuing, Mr. Wood went on to speak of Bathurst's position under the proposed measure, when Mr. J. Miller (Liberal) interjected, saying: "Talk upon something you know something about."

Mr. Wood (sharply): I'll talk about something you'll not like to hear if you make remarks such as those. I'm tired of your impertinence.

The Speaker called upon Mr. Wood to apologise.

"Go on, withdraw; £500 was knocked off this morning," said Mr. Fitzpatrick, to Mr. Wood.

The Speaker: The member for Orange (Mr. Fitzpatrick) is out of order.

Mr. Wood withdrew the remark.

He went on to refer to those tourists who spent their time motoring about the State and had nothing else to do but to attack the road system of New South Wales. So lavish were these people in their abuse, he declared, that they had no time to ascertain the facts. Main roads were not constructed for the purposes of motoring alone. He admitted that the needs of the motor car had to be faced; but objected to other interests being robbed in order that this might be done. Mr. Wood went on to attack other provisions of the bill.

"How nice to be a deputy leader," said Mr. J. Miller, apropos of nothing in particular.

"There is something in being deputy leader with a party behind you; but there's nothing in being a blatant individual travelling over the country with no party behind you," retorted Mr. Wood angrily. "The only advantage he has is that he has a certain amount of printers' ink and a newspaper that prints everything he says."

The Speaker: Order. The hon. member must not address members of the House and lecture them. If he does so I shall have to deal with him.

Mr. Wood denied the roads of the State were the worst in Australia. While not wishing to attack the owners of motor cars, he did contend that if motorists wanted good roads they must not get them by robbing the shires. The only thing in favour of local government to-day was that local governing bodies had recognised the necessity of developing their districts themselves.

The endowment, Mr. Wood contended, was on a wrong basis. There was an axe-grinding section who wanted their roads sand papered, and were attacking those opposed to the bill.

Mr. Miller, who came into conflict with Mr. Wood, in the course of his speech, announced that he would vote for the second reading because, in his opinion, the bill would improve the roads generally, which were worse than they were 10 years ago.

The bill being, in Mr. McFarlane's opinion, an emphatic declaration that local government was a distinct failure, he opposed it. The constitution of the main roads board was unsatisfactory. If the Minister thought that the local government bodies had not carried out their duties he should have given notice of the repeal of the Local Government Act, and if the £250,000 were taken away from the shires they would have to increase taxation or curtail expenditure on the roads they were now maintaining.

"Sometimes it is better," said Mr. Waddell (Liberal), lapsing into poetry, and by way of warning to the Minister against going on with the bill, "to bear the ills we have than fly to others that we know not of." In his opinion the whole responsibility should be thrown upon the shires of looking after every road passing through their districts. "There can only be one result of the bill, and that is that the ratepayers of the shires throughout the State will have to pay heavier rates." He concluded by urging the Minister to withdraw the measure.

Mr. Ball (Liberal) said that if the Minister would allow the shires to carry out their functions in their own way they would be more likely to do the work better than the roads board would. The speaker's strongest objection to the measure was that the Minister proposed to practically rob the shires.

While Mr. Ball was speaking about representations that had been made to him by certain shires, the Speaker said: "We don't know anything about local bodies here. We know the members; they are here as representatives of the people."

"If this measure was passed it would be a direct reflection upon a body of men in this State," said Mr. Perry (Liberal). "If a man travels with his eyes open he will see the excellent results that have accrued from this local government system of ours."

Mr. Griffith: Hear, hear.

The Minister, added Mr. Perry, was simply having a cut at local government.

"I'm against this bill from A to Z," said Mr. Donaldson (Ind.), who regarded it as the most striking reversal of form he had seen in the House. The Minister for Works a few years ago was one of the most uncompromising opponents of anything calculated to help local authorities to repair their roads. "Let local councils look after their own roads," his motto used to be. "This bill is an impudent attempt to centralise affairs in Sydney, and is absolutely contrary to the Local Government Act," he declared.

"You don't know what you're talking about," retorted Mr. Griffiths.

Mr. Cohen: A nice way for a Minister to talk.

Mr. Donaldson affirmed a Width of Tyres Act as an effective means of keeping the roads in better order.

Mr. M. Morton (Liberal), while approving of the bill, objected to the constitution of the board. There were, he thought, to be too many Civil servants on it.

"Will we have a free hand to make an alteration in committee?" he asked the Minister.

"Certainly," was the reply.

Mr. Cohen (Liberal) said that in spite of the fact that he represented a suburban constituency, he would vote against the bill.

All the shires in Mr. Fallick's (Liberal) electorate said the bill was only demanded by those who had motor cars, and it aimed a blow at local government.

Mr. Taylor said the Minister could achieve all he wanted without establishing a main roads board.

The A.M.P. (officers' provident fund) Bill received from the Council was read a first time.

The debate was proceeding at a late hour.

The Premier stated that it was the intention of the Government to ask for a conference with the Upper House on the Gas Bill.

In reply to Mr. Henley, it was stated by the Minister for Works that out of the £1013 6s 8d which the Redbank Public School (South Mudgee) cost, £218 19s 3d was paid to the general foreman.

The Premier intimated that a Lands Boilers Inspection Bill would not be proceeded with this session.

LANDS REPORT.

The annual report of the Lands Department was tabled in the Assembly last night.

The district surveyors are making systematic inspections of Crown lands with a view to classifying areas suitable for settlement.

Under the Closer Settlement Promotion Act 524 farms have been applied for, and an area of 95,305 acres, valued at £476,561, has been finally dealt with. Under the Closer Settlement Act 1535 farms, embracing 717,121 acres, have been selected, on which 5687 persons are residing; 155,248 acres are under cultivation. Designs for dividing 10,030 additional acres of Dorrigo lands into 43 blocks are under consideration. A subdivision of about 22,000 acres of Bulga lands, in 90 blocks, is being prepared. An area of 196,150 acres of Pilliga scrub lands has been measured and made avilable as homestead farms.

In regard to lands made available for settlement, a total area of 1,527,114 acres was classified for the following forms of tenure, viz.: Homestead selections, homestead farms, suburban holdings, Crown lease, settlement lease, and additional holdings; 85,442 acres were made available under the Closer Settlement Acts, and 84,521 acres were acquired by applicants under the Promotion Act.

Lands were sold in fee simple during the year as follow:—Centennial Park, £7553; town lots, by auction, £25,589; suburban lots, £12,863; country lots, £10,858; after-auction purchases, £17,798.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

THE MITCHELL LIBRARY.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council, in answer to Mr. Fosbery, said it had been ascertained from the Principal Librarian of the Mitchell Library that the author card catalogue for all the books had been compiled. A subject catalogue of the books was also nearing completion. In all about 144,000 cards had been written. An inventory of the manuscripts, pictures, loose engravings, and miscellanea was now proceeding in all haste. The catalogues, as far as they were completed, were available to students in the reading-room. With the comparatively limited cataloguing staff, it would take some years to adequately catalogue and index the manuscripts.

A.M.P. PROVIDENT FUND.

The Australian Mutual Provident Society's Officers' Provident Fund Trustees' Enabling Bill was read the third time.

MINERS' ACCIDENT RELIEF (AMENDMENT) BILL.

This bill was recommitted. In clause 9, "Inspection by officers of board," the Vice-President of the Executive Council said that, in order to meet the objections taken by Mr. Garland, at the last sitting, he moved the omission of paragraph 16 (a) of the clause, and the substitution of the following: "The manager of each mine shall keep a list of the persons employed in or about the mine week by week, whether such persons are employed directly or by contract. And such list shall be open to inspection at all reasonable times by an officer authorised in writing by the board. Any person refusing to allow such inspection, examination, or production of such list when authorised so to do shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding £10."

The amendment was agreed to and the clause as amended carried.

In clause 10, the Expense of Committees, the Vice-President of the Executive Council, in reply to a question by Mr. Farleigh as to the increased payments proposed to be given to the committees, said that the work of the committees had increased considerably, and he believed that the increased payments would not amount to more than £130 per annum.

The clause was agreed to.

Clause 14 was passed, and in clause 15, Increase of Allowance for Children, Mr. Farleigh said he would like to know whether the fund would be sufficient to meet the increased outgoings authorised by the clause.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council said the matter was to a large extent one of finance, and would involve the fund in an extra liability of about £4000 per annum. Even if it did mean that there might be a little shortness in the fund, still the principle was such a good one that it ought to be approved by the committee on the assurance that the fund would not be permitted to run out. Owing to the increase in the necessaries of life, the previous allowance of 2s 6d per week for each child was now insufficient, and 4s or 5s was not too much to ask. The Government was too proud of the fund even to allow it to become insolvent, and if at the end of 12 months it was found that there was a need of contribution to it the Government would not fail to deal with it by legislation. Ten years ago 2s 6d would go as far as 4s or 5s at the present day.

Mr. Kater: Whose fault is that?

The Vice-President of the Executive Council: I do not know. The hon. member is not saddling me with it, I hope. I can stand a lot, but not that.

Mr. Kater: Not you personally, but the Government.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council: Members know that the increase in the cost of the necessary commodities of life is not confined to New South Wales, but has gone all over the world. (Hear, hear.)

The clause was agreed to. Clauses 16 to 18 were also passed without amendment.

Clause 19, "Wife deserted, or whose husband is insane, to have same rights as a widow," was considered to have been clumsily drafted, and it was agreed to recommit it at a later stage. It was then passed.

The bill was reported to the House with amendments.

EIGHT HOURS IN COAL MINES.

BILL REJECTED BY COUNCIL.

OVERWHELMING MAJORITY.

In the Legislative Council last night the Vice-President of the Executive Council moved the second reading of the Eight-Hours' Coal Mine Bill. It was not a new measure, he said, but it had been urgently asked for by the miners themselves. As the men would be paid only for the work they performed, and their earnings would be less under the reduced hourage, and they were anxious to get the bill passed, the position was clear to them.

Mr. Ashton asked if the Vice-President was prepared to include a clause prohibiting an increase in the hewing rate.

"They'll look after that themselves," replied Mr. Flowers, amidst laughter. He pointed out that the limitation of hours was not a new idea. Many industries were so regulated. He saw no hardship to the employes or the employer by the measure, while it would be very beneficial to the man obliged to work underground. Coal-cutting machinery was so generally employed that an hour a day would not make much difference to the industry. The men, who would be the losers by the legislation, were very anxious for the change. There were something like 1800 boys, who were now compelled to work nine and ten hours a day, which was not fair to them. He did not know why the question was one that should be submitted to the Arbitration Court or the wages boards, when a law embodying the principle could be passed.

Mr. Garland: Why special legislation for the miners that would not apply to other workers?

The Vice-President replied that special legislation for coalminers was not new. He argued that there was more work done in eight hours in Australia than was the case on the Continent of Europe in 14 hours. It did not follow that if the hours were shortened there would be an increase in the cost of production.

Mr. Hurley asked if the measure would affect men working under contract.

Mr. Flowers replied it would apply to all miners, who were mostly engaged in piece-work.

Mr. Garland said Mr. Flowers had given the House no idea of the result of the working of this measure, which embodied a very important principle. If passed it would mean that in some cases the actual work on the face of the mine could not exceed 5 to 5½ hours a day, owing to the time it took for the hewers to reach the face. It would, as a matter of fact, render some mines unprofitable. The little less pay to the miners would not count for much, but there was more than that in the proposed change to the coal-mine owners. The Legislature had appointed a Court to fix the hours of labour and rates of pay for workers, and for the House to pass this measure would be class legislation pure and simple. It was true that there was a law of this sort in Great Britain, but there was no Arbitration Court machinery there. The English Act, too, did not apply to any members excepting those engaged under ground, whereas the measure now before the House included all hands employed in and about a coalmine. In Great Britain the mines worked two or three shifts, while in this State there was only one shift. As a result of a number of shifts the work of exploiting the mine could be carried on without a break. As the mine had to be got ready for the hewers, it would be necessary to employ a staff to prepare for them, and to finish up the day, both above and below ground. He doubted if the miner in this country would long agree to a reduction in his earnings. Why at the present time there was an outcry about the cost of living. It might be said that the owners could pass the extra cost on to the public, but he thought that the public were just about tired of this passing on of the increased cost of production. So far as the foreign coal trade was concerned, the increase could not be passed on, for those buyers would refuse to buy at the increased rates. What would probably happen if the bill became law was that mines would be closed down, and a large number of men thrown out of work. If the miners worked too long the Judge at the Industrial Court had power to make a direction, if he thought the case was proved. Judge Scholes found after an inquiry that if the men worked eight hours only, bank to bank, at the Metropolitan mine, the proprietors would be obliged to close it down. If the time worked now was prejudicial to the health of the miner, he would say it would be better to close up the mines, but there was no complaint of that sort. Generally speaking, the industry was a healthy one.

Mr. Earp declared that in the collieries with which he was connected the eight hours bank-to-bank system was in vogue. But all coal seams were not the same. (Hear, hear.) If sufficient skips were provided there should be no delay or reduction in the output. The matter was one for evidence on oath, however, and a Court existed for the purpose of solving matters of this sort. He had secured information from managers of mines in the Newcastle district showing that there would be an increase in the cost by the proposal, and a consequent reduction in the rates of pay. This would apply to all the Borehole collieries. They would, in fact, eventually be closed up. It would be the last straw. This was not the first time that mines had been closed owing to the demands of the miners, and it was impossible that some of the mines, at any rate, could bear the increased cost of production which would result from the passage of the bill. How would the Government provide for the 6000 miners who would be thrown out of work by this bill? They could not do so, and the position would be like that of Balaam and his ass, as the miners who were called upon to bless the Government for the introduction of this measure would finish by cursing them. The bill was quite impracticable as far, at any rate, as the Borehole collieries were concerned, and it would bring about much more evil than good.

Dr. Beeston said he would vote against the bill, mainly because it would lead to the closing of 26 collieries. He also thought that there had been no general demand on the part of the miners in favour of the change.

Mr. Ashton said he had no doubt that if the bill was rejected one unfounded suggestion made would be that it was solely due to the want of sympathy by the House for the working miners, and sympathy for the capitalistic class. He could quite enter into the sentiments voiced by the Vice-President of the Executive Council in moving the second reading of the bill, and personally he would be delighted if he could see his way to shorten the hours of labour of workers in mines; but while there might be a strong desire in the individual mind to bring about such a change, it did not follow that such a result was easily attainable. As had already been pointed out, the insuperable difficulty in the way of giving effect to this proposal was the risk of doing great damage in many quarters. The increased cost of production would inevitably lead to the loss of a great deal of our foreign trade, and he also felt that there had been no widespread demand for the bill. He thought it possible that there were a number of miners who were not in favour of the proposed change.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council: Then they have not declared themselves.

Mr. Ashton said that if the miners unanimously asked for the bill it would not alter his opinion one iota as to its effect.

Mr. J. A. Browne said it seemed to him that the most serious objection that could be raised to the bill was that advanced recently in the case of a bill to reinstate an ex-solicitor, namely, that when certain duties were imposed upon the Courts, only in extreme cases, and where obvious injustice had been done, should Parliament be justified in interfering with the decisions of a judicial tribunal. (Hear, hear.) In this State there was an Industrial Court and wages boards, appointed to deal with various classes of industries; awards were made after the most careful inquiry, and as far as he knew no serious objection had been raised to the awards. The Industrial Court had already given decisions in connection with the coal-mining industry, and he did not know whether the Government realised that they were striking at their own Act by introducing a bill of this kind, which was crude in its character. (Hear, hear.)

The second reading of the bill was negatived by 23 votes to 4, on the following division:—Ayes: Flowers, Travers, Sinclair, Hall. Noes: Garland, Kater, Pilcher, Roberts, Dangar, Fosbery, J. A. Browne, Dr. Beeston, Robson, Gullett, Earp, Ashton, Colonel Burns, Hurley, Winchcombe, Dick, Farleigh, Kethel, T. Hughes, Moses, Hill, Colonel M'Kay, Sir Normand MacLaurin.

BURGLARS BUSY.

A thief gained entrance to the dressing-rooms at the Sydney Grammar School sports grounds on Monday afternoon by smashing a window. He made a haul of clothes, valued at about £15, besides some cricketing material.

The residence of John Rule, Sydney-street, Marrickville, was entered on the same afternoon by breaking open a back window. The whole house was ransacked, and the thief departed with a gold watch and a pin.

An option has been secured on a large building in New York, with the idea of turning it into a luxurious and expensive hotel for the use of negroes only. Owners of adjoining property have held indignation meetings, and are ready to take any steps to put a stop to the scheme.

SPEAKER'S ESTIMATES.

SALARY REDUCED.

HOT CRITICISM IN ASSEMBLY.

Another all-night sitting has to be placed to the credit or discredit of the Government, whose agreement with Mr. Speaker contained a clause that there were to be no late sittings.

However, so many of the other clauses in the famous—or notorious—agreement have gone by the board that the one about the sittings closing at 11.30 p.m. might just as well go, too. Mr. Speaker, however, kept his part of the compact. Before midnight he made his dignified exit, and left the House to wrestle with the Estimates. Most important of all were the Speaker's Estimates, which came up for criticism some hours after midnight. The members of the Opposition riddled the Estimates with scathing criticism, cut Mr. Speaker's salary down by £500, curtailed other items in his list, and incidentally turned on him a broadside of criticism, which was somewhat reminiscent of that attack which presaged his elevation to the chair.

The curious thing about the Speaker's salary was the delightful unanimity with which all sides of the House agreed that his stipend should be £1000, and not £1500. But the sitting was not entirely unanimous. Throughout the night there were several lively exchanges—one member was ejected, several men threatened with a similar fate, while the usual quota of uncomplimentary remarks were bandied about the chamber.

THE PRESIDENT'S FRIENDS.

At half past 3 in the morning Mr. Speaker's Estimates came up for consideration. The item, "Executive and Legislative" £35,323, brought a few more members into the Chamber. No objection was taken to the £5035 allocated to the Legislative Council. In fact, members voiced a desire to increase the amount to show their sympathy with the President of the Council.

Mr. Levy opened the attack by pointing out how the authority of the President had been cut down. The combined authority of the President and the Speaker was required for controlling "Hansard" staff, yet they found action taken quite illegally by the Speaker, who ignored the President. The Government knew that payments were made illegally, yet they went on day by day. The whole control of the House was taken out of the hands of the President, an arrangement was broken that had existed ever since Parliament had existed, and the Speaker allowed to do what should only be done on the authority of both. They should protest against the indignity heaped upon the President of the Council. The Government had allowed him to be flouted and his authority cut down.

THE SPEAKER'S ENEMIES.

When the amount, "Legislative Assembly £7353" appeared, several members rose to their feet. Mr. Cohen caught the Chairman's eye, and immediately moved that the Speaker's salary be reduced by £500.

Mr. Lonsdale: A thousand would be the right thing.

Mr. Cohen: For the first time the House has had a "half-timer," a Speaker who only served half time. When the salaries of Ministers were cut down, it was decided that the Speaker's salary should not be as high as the Ministers, and since then no Speaker has attempted to raise his salary. But since the present Speaker has occupied the position, there has been a reign of terror in the House to those under him. There are spies downstairs and upstairs. I move that the Speaker's salary be reduced by £500. (Hear, hear.)

This motion was carried on the voices amid ill-concealed satisfaction on the part of the Opposition. "So much for Willis," cried a member, and the House proceeded to deal with the rest of the Speaker's estimates.

THE PRUNING KNIFE.

Mr. Cohen then proposed that the salary of the Chairman of Committees (which was originally £740, and which Mr. Speaker had increased to £900) should be reduced by £160, and so remain at £740.

Mr. D. Levy, in support, said that indignities had been heaped on the staff in the last few months till the officers of the House were in a state of terror. They were entirely under the control, and at the mercy and caprice of a gentleman asserting extraordinary authority. The position could not be tolerated by decent people.

The proposal was again carried on the voices, and Mr. Cohen proposed that the amount £500, for five temporary chairmen of committees, be omitted.

The amount was again omitted on the voices.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

Further criticism was levelled at the proposal to allocate £225 to the Secretary to the Speaker. Members acknowledged the worth of the officer, but disliked the Speaker's appointing the officer as his secretary, to give him added dignity. The vote was passed. The next position to be considered was under the heading "Staff of Sergeant-at-arms," and this also came in for criticism. Mr. Fitzpatrick referred to the seething discontent among the members of the staff, and the reign of terror through men being dismissed for trivial offences. There were two detectives in the House to shadow certain members, because a certain gentleman in high place had been threatened. "I only threatened him in a half-hearted way," said Mr. Fitzpatrick. "I would not soil my hands by touching him."

Mr. Carmichael, in reply to Mr. Cohen, promised full protection of the staff, if necessary. He expected that the Speaker would have conducted his own estimates.

Mr. Cohen: You are acting as the tool of the Speaker, who insulted the President. You accept his estimates, and ignore the President of the Council.

BOWDLERISED "HANSARD."

Mr. Fitzpatrick then criticised the conduct of "Hansard," since the Speaker demanded the right to edit and disembowel the speeches of members. It was now useless, yet it pretended to be a proper report of the proceedings of Parliament. Such drastic alterations were made as to make the speeches unrecognisable.

EXIT MR. MEEHAN.

Mr. Gardiner (Labour, Newcastle) referred to the Speaker's claim, and said it was not the Speaker's duty to interfere with "Hansard." He did not want Mr. Willis to correct his mistakes.

Mr. Cohen moved the omission of the item, "one 'Hansard' clerk, £200," and was repeatedly interrupted by Mr. Meehan. Mr. Thrower, acting Chairman of Committees, called the member for the Darling to order.

Finally the Sergeant-at-Arms was requisitioned, and Mr. Meehan left the Chamber.

Mr. Cohen's remarks were punctuated by further interruption, so the chairman exclaimed that if order was not maintained, he would certainly remove three or four members. The motion for the omission of the item "'Hansard' clerk, £200," was negatived by 33 votes to 16.

PUBLIC WORKS £2126.

When this item came up, Mr. Wood criticised the action of the Government in allowing a zealous officer, Boydell, after 20 years' service, to be sent into departmental exile, and robbed of his livelihood. It was unwarranted tyranny, and an absolute disgrace to honest manhood. (Interruption.)

The whole of the Executive and Legislative Estimates were agreed to, and the House reported progress.

The Public Instruction Estimates (£1,560,242) were agreed to, and the House proceeded to discuss the Treasurer's Advance Vote.

Mr. Cohen took the Treasurer to task for what he called an unheard-of procedure, in not concluding the Estimates before going on with anything else.

Mr. Waddell did not mince his words. Many of the items he regarded as "money thrown away," or "money pitched into the sea." Under this ban were the Totalisator Commission and the subsidy to the Olympic Games. He paused a minute to pay a tribute to Mr. Nielsen; then condemned the payment of £75 towards surf-bathing as grandmother-ly humbug. Why should the Government pay for people regaling themselves in the surf?

Finally the Treasurer's Advance Vote, £67,234, riddled with unfriendly criticism, was agreed to, and so was the schedule to the Constitution Act, £39,673.

The University Bill was then read the third time, and sent on to the Council. The House then adjourned until 7 o'clock p.m.

VICTORIA'S COAL MINE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

On Saturday the State coalmine completed its third year of existence. During the three years the coal raised amounted to 1,102,839 tons. The total sum paid in wages was £420,000.

NOT A CADET.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A few weeks ago it was reported that a lad named David Dawson was accidentally shot while he was cleaning his cadet rifle. At the instance of the Minister for Defence, inquiries were instituted. The report just furnished by the Commandant of New South Wales shows that Dawson was not a cadet, and that his injuries were caused by a pea-rifle and not by the .300 service weapon.

END OF THE SESSION.

All the indications point to an early close of the session in the State Parliament. The Estimates have been pushed through in feverish haste, and are now practically complete. With notice given in the Legislative Council to suspend the Standing Orders to enable the Appropriation and Loan Bills to be passed without delay, it is clear that the Government is getting ready to go into recess at the earliest possible moment; and when the last word has been said on these necessary, if technical, measures, Parliament will, no doubt, rise. Redistribution is not to be left over, however, and the Attorney-General became irritable yesterday in the early hours when questioned on the subject. But the acting leader of the Opposition is quite justified, after all, in wondering how much or how little slaughter is to be carried out upon the Government's programme. Last night the Premier could not, or would not, say what bills were to be passed. He asked to be allowed respite until to-day, and probably even at the last moment there will be hesitancy and delay. All through the session Ministers have been unable or disinclined to commit themselves to any indication of the course of business, simply because the Premier is not master of the Cabinet; and up to the actual meeting of Parliament day by day no one has found the key to the puzzle of the Ministerial mind. Everything has been done on the spur of some unfathomed impulse. And now that the session is ending it seems almost hopeless to expect reasonable light upon the question of what measures will finally be passed. Another Speaker's crisis would send Ministers to cover like a lot of rabbits, and recess might be reached at one leap. This is practically the outlook at the present moment. The Cabinet lives from day to day, with forces moving within which threaten disruption at any juncture; and not the least of these probably is Mr. Beeby's determination to get out, and Mr. Holman's wish to get up—on to the padded shelf of the Agent-Generalship.

As to the measures which will probably pass before the Appropriation Bills are taken through their last stages, it seems fairly clear that the University Bill will have its chance. The second draft has been made to embody the Council's amendments, and to meet the Speaker's objection that a money bill has been altered in the Upper House. As the Assembly has now made these amendments its own, with the exception of one which must be allowed to remain out if the bill is to pass, the way is open for agreement. It would be a great mistake, in our opinion, for the Council to stand out after gaining so much, especially as there will be no time for further amendments. Interest, however, will concentrate upon the Gas Bill, upon which it has been announced that a conference between the two Houses is to be requested by the Government. A great deal will depend upon the temper in which crucial amendments by the Council are approached; and since Ministers are willing to confer we should imagine that they will not insist upon points which must prevent the whole measure from passing. There must be substantial concessions, if justice is to be done; and the odium of leaving the gas companies unbound, and the consumers of gas in the lurch, will certainly rest upon the Government if nothing can be accomplished because of a deadlock. For the rest we must wait for the Premier's announcement to-day. Not many bills can pass, whatever happens, and the few which may be taken will stand in curious contrast with the Government's inflated proposals. There are nearly fifty bills on the business paper, and endless promises of railways have been made in addition. At one time Ministers seemed to think their only object in life was to multiply measures. Now, their sole concern is to get into recess and devil take the hindmost. Was there ever such a stampede after so much professed determination to break the legislative record?

THE DEFENCE OF AUSTRALASIA.

The recent conference between the respective heads of the Commonwealth and of the New Zealand forces promises to bear important fruit in the near future. As the Minister for Defence hints in another column, it may pave the way to the adoption of a co-operative policy by the two countries in matters military and naval; and before long we may expect some tangible result of the conference in the shape of negotiations between the two Governments towards this end. Some such development was bound sooner or later to occur, and as to its desirability there can be no two opinions. Obviously the interests of Australia and New Zealand in this are identical, and the proposal of a co-operative system of defence presents few difficulties and nothing insuperable in the way of concrete realisation. Already in the military branch the scheme devised by Lord Kitchener applies alike to either country. Both possess a similar organisation, and a similar principle of service. Already New Zealand avails herself of the instruction provided at our Military College at Duntroon. It requires no great stretch of the imagination, and it involves no sacrifice of any existing institution to combine the land forces of both, and to make out of separate forces an Australasian army. As regards the naval aspect of the question, the position is slightly more complicated. Australia has committed herself to the policy—which we believe to be the right one—of a local unit of the British navy, stationed in these waters, and provided out of our local exchequer. New Zealand has preferred to continue upon the old lines of contribution.

This, however, need prove no obstacle in the path. We do not presume to pose as an interpreter of the motives of New Zealand in her naval policy, but it must strike the outsider that this policy may have been dictated by considerations which would have less weight under an Australasian co-operative scheme of defence. Alone, it would have been a grievous and an unnecessary burden for New Zealand to equip a fleet of any practical utility, and not unnaturally she was unwilling to embark upon so costly an enterprise. Given the opportunity of adding her resources to those of the Commonwealth, she might take a different view, especially when this would mean the more thorough and effective protection of Australasian waters. Thus it will be found that there is no great obstacle in the way of the accomplishment of the scheme. And even were there such an obstacle the advantages which would accrue are so enormous as to make it worth surmounting. Australia and New Zealand are together tucked away in a remote corner of the globe far from the civilisation to which they both belong. They are white lands under the shadow of Asia and Africa. Their future will be the same, and their enemies will be the same. Whether the bolt come from the east or from the west it will not discriminate between the two. In our eyes, perhaps, the distance separating us is great; in those of the world we are bulked together. Our interests in the Pacific are common; the necessity of keeping it British is as cogent for the one as for the other. In politics each of us may have to dree his own weird, but in defence the problems that face us are identical. Neither of us possesses a defensive organisation which is, we hope, adequate, but if it were made to supplement the other its strength would be more than redoubled. The old fable of the bundle of sticks has peculiar application to military affairs in which the difference between co-operation and independent action is the difference between success and failure. Should the development now foreshadowed ever come about it will mark the greatest step towards the security of Australasia that its history has yet seen.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

The debate on the second reading of the Constitution Alteration (Trade and Commerce) Bill was continued in the Federal House of Representatives last night, and the issue on this, the most important of the referendum proposals, may now be said to have been fairly joined. There is one aspect of this, as of all the proposed alterations of the Constitution, which cannot be too often emphasised. In moving the second reading of the bill now under discussion, Mr. Hughes based the greater part of his argument on the undoubted fact that the Commonwealth is so restricted in its powers with regard to certain matters with which it was intended to deal by the Constitution that its legislative functions in many respects cannot be effectively exercised. The Attorney-General alluded inter alia to the inability of the Federal Parliament, under a decision of the High Court, to pass a uniform companies law for the whole of Australia. Opponents of the proposals put forward by the Federal Government do not take the view that the Constitution is so sacrosanct and perfect that it cannot and should not be altered as and when changes are found to be desirable. In the example to which we have alluded there is a clear case for the extension of the powers possessed by the Commonwealth. The various returns which have to be furnished, and the different regulations with which compliance has to be made by companies in the six States, serve no useful purpose, and merely add to the expense and difficulties of commercial undertakings. Victoria has an up-to-date companies law based on recent British legislation. New South Wales is governed by legislation whose only claim to respect is a hoary antiquity. Uniformity throughout the Commonwealth would tend to assist commerce, check fraud, protect the public, and provide that publicity for which Mr. Hughes pleads as a condition precedent to useful commercial legislation.

Our complaint is that the Federal Government is not content to ask the electors to amend the Constitution in definite particulars where it is shown to be defective. It is the aim of Mr. Fisher and his colleagues to assume "power over all trade and commerce," so that "there can be no mistakes, no clashing of rival jurisdictions, no uncertainty, and no confusion." We are confident that the people of Australia are not ready to consent to alter the Constitution which they deliberately adopted twelve years ago, so as to hand over to the central Government these "tremendous powers" (as Mr. Hughes has described them) of vague, unlimited extent. We agree with Mr. Hughes that there is need for the removal of restrictions by which the Federal Arbitration Court is now hampered in its work. We may not perhaps accept Mr. Justice Higgins's picturesque description of his own Court as a "veritable Serbonian bog of technicalities," but we are quite ready to believe the truth of his suggestion, that its functions may become paralysed if its present powers are not enlarged. The proper course for the Government in such a case was to propose such amendments to the Constitution as would meet the precise difficulties involved in the present situation. Instead of doing this, however, it seeks to arm the Commonwealth with such unlimited powers with regard to industrial matters as would permit the destruction of the State Arbitration Courts and wages boards, and set no limit upon the regulation of labour conditions throughout Australia by the one Federal Arbitration Court—a fatal attempt, in any case. The electors are quite content to negotiate a set of legislative hurdles on a definite, limited course. They will, we have no doubt, resolutely decline to take a leap into the dark. They are willing to equip the Federal Government with necessary powers consistent with the needs of a progressive community. But to adapt a phrase of Milton, they will assuredly take the view that "the State shall be my governors, but not my tradesmen."

THE CITY RAILWAY.

The proposal of the Minister for Works to get on with the city railway is very welcome. There may be some ground for regret that it should have to be made the subject of a rush measure at the end of the session, and probably that feeling will call out some opposition to the proposal. But we sincerely hope that opposition, if there is to be any, will not go beyond formal protest. The city railway is the great issue after all. The fact that it is to be involved in the stress of the last days of Parliament is a detail by comparison. The only point in question seems to be whether the scheme should go through the customary process of submission to the Public Works Committee or whether it might not be made more quickly available to the city by special legislation. We are strongly of opinion that the check of the Public Works Committee is a valuable asset to the State. But its special value, after all, is in the fact that it brings to bear upon schemes more or less debatable in their detail the final arbitrament of expert investigation. The city railway scheme is emphatically not such a one. It is itself the final judgment on the matter by the highest expert skill available to the Government. It would manifestly be absurd to submit the work of Mr. Hay, an engineer brought to us from London at considerable expense, and with the complete confidence of everyone—it would manifestly be absurd now to submit his scheme to the adjudication of officers of the Public Works Department or other local experts. We should be very glad if the legal requirements of this proposed expenditure could be met by its formal submission to the Public Works Committee with a view to that body's formal concurrence in it.

If that is not possible, if, that is to say, submission to the committee means further inquiry, examination of witnesses, and all the other and apparently interminable minutiae always threatening this proposal to reform the city, then we are strongly of opinion that Mr. Griffith's suggested short bill authorising the work is the best possible course. For the time of shilly-shally on the city railway question has gone by. Most of all it should be saved from that multitudinous counsel of expert witnesses which has so often proved to be anything but wisdom. The truth is that there are too many experts, and far too many experts possessing the only workable proposals for the reorganisation of the city. It is never the same proposal, and it has been submitted and argued for years past. Under that method it will always be undergoing inquiry, or it will fall upon the fate of scores of other schemes for this and that which, having been investigated and argued, now repose neatly enough, docketed and red-taped, we have no doubt, in the archives of the Public Works Department. They will repose there, most of them, to the end of time, and it is from any approach to such fate of sepulture that we would save the city railway scheme. It is, or ought to be, the last word in a long and dreary discussion. It sets out the reasoned judgment of a highly-skilled consultant. In its essentials it is the scheme which everyone knows is the only possible safeguard of Sydney, and which everyone fully anticipated. There is no single shred of reason why it should be still further delayed. The Parliamentary position suggests that postponement of it now to the dubious leisure of next year's Legislature would hang it up indefinitely. The Public Works Committee can have no possible ground of question of it. It, or something very like it, is vitally necessary to the city. The section in view will set it substantially afoot, and, we have no slightest doubt, will so justify it in the eyes of the public that the remainder of it will be pushed on by common consent. On all grounds, therefore, it is desirable that Mr. Griffith carry out his intention of speeding it up now, to the point of actual inauguration of its great work.

THE CITY AND LABOUR.

We are now so close upon elections that will decide the fate of municipal affairs for the next three years that it seems desirable once more to press upon the voter the magnitude of the issues involved. A city election in the case of the City Council is at least as important as one for Parliament, and if Labour with its poor administration and mistaken ideals can do so much harm in the latter place it can do perhaps even more in the former. It is perfectly obvious that Labour in municipal politics tends very strongly to the Americanisation of city government, which at the best means boss and gang rule, and at the worst a wholesale system of graft and corruption, against which the "good" citizenship struggles in vain. And there are really more opportunities for refined corruption in municipal matters than in State politics, if only because the parties are the better able to remain obscure. It is therefore above all necessary to raise the status of the councils by returning only men of proved honesty and ability, and, as we pointed out, this can only be done by concentrating the Liberal forces at one point in each electorate. The chances of Labour winning a majority in the council may not be immediate, but they are not remote, and their success could hardly fail to prove a disaster, especially in a changing city such as Sydney, which leaves so many loopholes for maladministration. The other great subject—Greater Sydney—moreover would not be safe in the hands of a Labour council likely to be swamped in many directions by Liberalism were a more comprehensive body established. It is true that Greater Sydney does appear in the programme, but that there is any serious intention to push on we very much doubt. Indeed, it would seem that, instead of progress in this direction, the desire is quickly to shelve the whole thing. It seems that in the disease of municipal confusion we have to become still worse than we are before we can be driven to a cure. In that way, at least, a Labour rule might be helpful.

Most voters will by now be familiar with the main details of a programme which is merely Labour, municipalised. Whatever may be said as to adult suffrage elsewhere to attempt to apply it to the floating population of a great city is plainly futile. There, if anywhere, the person who pays should control what he is paying for, instead of having to bend blindly under mob rule. The day-labour system again is a very much worse thing in the city than in the State, and everyone can recall in this connection more than one municipal scandal in days gone by. The municipalisation of gas and ferries, and the establishment of various monopolies, such as electric lighting and hydraulic power, the rapid extension of the principle of municipal ownership of house property—all these things bear the hall-mark of the crude socialistic enterprise with which we have become so painfully familiar. It only needs the crowning principle of payment of members to cap the whole story. So far from being in a position to indulge in such an orgy, the time has come to call something like a halt. The huge reconstructions already in progress have to be carefully financed, and most economically proceeded with. It is peculiarly a time for good citizenship in the council, which, indeed, can be materially strengthened if a wise choice among the candidates is made. But if Labour holds its ground, and slips in one or two more, the voter will have good reason to be sorry for his bad generalship.

The "Sydney Mail."—Tennis-players all the world over will follow with deep interest the result of the Davis Cup competitions in Melbourne to-morrow and the two following days. In the "Mail" this week are splendid snapshots of the English and Australasian representatives, taken during the recent Victorian championship tournament, accompanied by an interesting article, in which victory for Australasia is confidently predicted. Brisbane's busy water-front is the subject of a couple of fine photographs, and Queensland is further represented by half-page pictures representing a distribution of blankets to aboriginals, and the result of a day's shooting. A couple of striking pictures show 18,000 cadets marching through the streets of Melbourne. "In the Property Room" is an excellent illustrated article, which gives little-known details respecting the "properties" of a modern theatre. "The City of Terror, Constantinople," is the title of another informing article, which is accompanied by a photograph of the entrance to the Dardanelles and a fine drawing of the city. The destruction of a barge on the Darling River is illustrated; and an artistic page deals interestingly with Fort Denison. The character sketch this week is of Mr. A. C. Carmichael, Minister for Public Instruction, who is shown seated at his office table. There are portraits of the Rev. Canon Vaughan, the late Sir William Owen, the late Mr. Justice O'Connor, and others. Yachting at Sydney and Hobart is illustrated, and many other subjects are pictorially dealt with. It may truthfully be said that no illustrated paper in the Commonwealth offers such value for 3d as the "Sydney Mail."

Approaching Close of the Session.—A significant indication of the intention of the Government in regard to the termination of the session was furnished last night in the Legislative Council by Mr. Flowers. He gave notice of his intention to move to-day for the suspension of such of the Standing Orders as would preclude the passage through all their stages in one day of the University Amendment Bill (No. 2), the Appropriation Bill, and the Loan Bill.

Interludes in Court.—Recently a practice has been adopted by the members of the Supreme Court Bench in claims for resumption of prohibiting any statement to the jury of the formal claim made by the owner of the property and the amount offered by the Government. The reason for this is apparently that as the value is one for assessment by the jurors their minds should be perfectly open in order to arrive at a determination based strictly upon the evidence placed before them. Yesterday, in No. 1 Jury Court, Mr. Justice Pring in a case of the kind stated firmly to plaintiff's counsel that his client's valuation and the Government's estimate must not be mentioned. The learned gentleman looked perplexed, and his attempt to argue the matter was sternly rebuked. Later on the same advocate asked a witness a question, to which the other side objected. His Honor rejected it, and when he was asked for a reason for the decision counsel was advised to consult his law books. His Honor, however, consented to "make a note of it."

Needless Valour.—When the firemen arrived at the fire in Park-street early yesterday morning the flames were leaping through the roof, and belching from every window of the top floor, and the whole block seemed in imminent danger of destruction. The firemen, realising that prompt measures were necessary, broke in the doors of the building, and, dragging a line of hose with them, stumbled up the dark and narrow stairs. Just as they gained the second floor landing, and paused to look about them, the leading fireman was startled by a peremptory order to "Stand!" and a threat of instant death if he moved. The officer at once flashed his lamp in the direction of the voice, and saw standing in an attitude of desperate defiance the caretaker, who, supporting his pyjamas with one hand and grasping a revolver with the other, seemed prepared to sell his life in defence of his charge. There were hurried, if not necessarily polite, explanations, and the firemen passed on in safety.

PERSONAL.

Owing to the illness of the Chief Justice, the Banco Court will not sit till Monday next.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) arrived in Sydney yesterday from Newcastle, and left last night for Melbourne by the express. In the morning the Minister visited National Park, where the two Australian batteries of field artillery are in training. The trustees of National Park met the Minister and Colonel Wallace, who accompanied him. Senator Pearce said that he was most hospitably received and entertained by the trustees.

The Minister for Lands (Mr. G. S. Beeby), who was well known as an Industrial Court solicitor, and who was recently called to the Bar of New South Wales, appeared yesterday in his first case as barrister in the High Court. Mr. Beeby has the conduct of the case for the Merchant Service Guild of Australia in the three matters in which shipping companies are seeking a prohibition against certain terms of the award obtained in the Commonwealth Arbitration Court. The three cases are being heard together, and a big Bar is engaged. Mr. T. S. Crawford, M.L.A., who has exchanged the cloth for the toga, is appearing as junior to Mr. Beeby, this being the member for Marrickville's first appearance in the legal arena. Of late years the ranks of the State Labour party have contributed liberally to the personnel of the Bar.

Mr. W. Wilson, B.E., M.Sc., lecturer on electrical engineering at the Auckland University, is on a visit to Sydney.

Colonel Beech and Major Campbell Johnstone, two English military officers who have been touring New Zealand, arrived from Wellington by the Maunganui yesterday.

Mr. Charles Jones, well known on the West Australian mining fields, and one of the discoverers of the Bullfinch mine, is on a holiday visit to Sydney.

Mr. and Mrs. Young, of Fairymead, Bundaberg, Queensland, are staying as the guests of Lady King-Hall, at Admiralty House.

Mr. W. Scott has been appointed Police Magistrate at Deniliquin.

Mr. H. W. Lane has been appointed a member of the local land board at Inverell.

Sir Joseph Ward left Wellington (N.Z.) by the Moeraki for Melbourne on Monday night, en route to England.

Captain W. Suttor Rich, of the Cheshire Regiment, has returned to Sydney on leave, after an absence of 13 years. Captain Rich was a member of the 2nd mounted infantry which left Sydney by the Southern Cross, in December, 1899, and served in the South African War, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Knight. Whilst in Africa he gained his commission, and served on the staffs of General Hutton and Colonel De Lisle. At the close of the war he proceeded to England, and was then sent to India, and from there to the West Coast of Africa. For the past 12 months he has been stationed at Sierra Leone.

Mr. J. Meek, general manager of Lever Brothers, and chairman of Lever's Pacific Plantations, Ltd., returned to Sydney from a visit to New Zealand by the R.M.S. Mongolia yesterday.

Amongst the passengers by the R.M.S. Orama, which arrived at Fremantle yesterday morning, is the Bishop of Christchurch, who has been on a trip to the old country.

Major Waine, the well known Sydney cricket enthusiast, and member of the New South Wales team of bowlers who recently visited the old country, is returning to Sydney by the R.M.S. Orama. Major Waine saw a good deal of the cricketers during the triangular contests, he stated that it had been suggested at home an Australian team should visit India, a suggestion which he thought was a very good one.

Sir Matthew Davies, who was Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of Victoria, in the nineties, died yesterday from neuritis. He was 62 years of age.

The death took place on Monday at her residence, Ocean-street, Woollahra, of Mrs. Hannah Hay Palmer, at the age of 73 years. Mrs. Palmer was a native of Sydney. Her father was Mr. W. H. Aldis, a merchant of this city in the early days. Old colonists will recollect Mrs. Palmer as a lady of high musical talent. There is a link connecting her with Chopin. She was a pupil of Boulanger, and he, in turn, was a pupil of the great composer. Miss Aldis was a brilliant pianist, and when a girl of 14 she gained distinction by her playing at the opening of the Sydney University. For many years Miss Aldis (afterwards Mrs. Palmer) took part in the leading concerts of Sydney, and was a prominent figure in the musical world. Her husband, the late Mr. W. H. Palmer, was for many years connected with the firm of Robert Towns and Co. Her daughter is Miss Gertrude Palmer, who is a well-known solo pianist and accompanist. There are also two other daughters, Mrs. Debenham, of Melbourne, and Mrs. Freeman, wife of Mr. Freeman, solicitor, of this city.

DEATH OF MR. JAMES GILES.

The death of Mr. James Giles, late Stipendiary Magistrate, took place yesterday, at a private hospital, after an illness lasting for several months. Mr. Giles was born at Clones, County Lonaghan, Ireland, on June 1, 1830, and came to Australia about 60 years ago. In his early days he followed pastoral pursuits in conjunction with the late Captain Turner, principally in Victoria and this State. He witnessed many exciting episodes when acting in the capacity of gold commissioner. He was, however, best known as a magistrate.

For years he held the position of P.M. at Bombala, Deniliquin, and Parramatta. His final appointment being that of stipendiary magistrate in the metropolitan district until his retirement about 13 years ago. Politically, while not taking any prominent part, he was an enthusiastic Liberal supporter.

The funeral will leave St. Matthias' Church to-day, the interment subsequently taking place at the family vault at Rookwood. Mr. Giles has left one daughter—his wife, son, and two daughters having predeceased him.

KIRK KILISSE.

A VIVID DESCRIPTION.

THE GREAT PANIC.

FIGURES IN THE DARKNESS.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Nov. 1.

From the mass of vague conjectures which has for the past fortnight arrived from the war correspondents in the Balkans one can pick out the messages of two men, and two men only, which bear on the face of them the clear evidence of truth. These are the messages from the "Times" correspondent at Constantinople, and the correspondent of the Austrian newspaper "Reichspost," with the Bulgarian Army. From these messages it is now possible to fix a few definite facts about the battle of Kirk Kilisse. In the following description the details as to the previous movements must be taken with caution, but the main facts of the battle itself are now pretty certain.

No one quite knows how it began. The original plan of the Turkish War Office, which was drawn up with the advice of the German Marshal Von Der Goltz, seems to have been to leave Adrianople and Kirk Kilisse strongly garrisoned, had to wait with the main army much farther south, near the railway, until reinforcements could join it. It has always been known that the Turks would be very slow in getting their scattered forces up to the front, and that was why this plan had been decided on.

A fortnight ago for some reason this plan seems to have been changed. The Turkish army—or at least the best part of three army corps—was apparently pushed up to a position between Adrianople and Kirk Kilisse, and the Bulgarians, who were at that time crossing the border and pushing back the line of Turkish frontier position, at once came into contact at several points with Abdullah Pasha's forces. Whether the fighting was light or serious is not known. At any rate the Turks kept their ground.

This was the position when, on the night of Monday, October 21, the third Turkish army corps, which was encamped around Kirk Kilisse on the Turkish right, was ordered to advance and meet the Bulgarians. According to an early account Mukhtar Pasha, who was in command of this part of the Turkish lines, agreed to the launching of a night attack by Prince Aziz Hassan against the Bulgarian left. This account says that the rest of the Turks were not informed of the night attack, which was defeated; and it is possible that some of these defeated troops were the mysterious body of men who are mentioned below. The story of the night attack, however, is very uncertain.

THE CRITICAL MOMENT.

What is certain is that on Tuesday morning the whole of the third army corps advanced. Its right wing pushed the Bulgarians in front of it for a considerable distance. Then both sides dug themselves in, and for the rest of the day the infantry of one army saw very little of the other. Whenever a compact body was perceived it was dispersed by Turkish shrapnel. Nightfall found the two sides still facing one another, the Turks with a small village about a mile in their rear, and the Bulgarians on the hills, facing them.

That night, about an hour before dawn, the men of a Turkish reserve battalion who were in the fighting line stood to their arms. They could just make out some groups of men moving down towards them through the half-darkness. The Turks fired a few shots when the battalion commander ordered the "cease fire" to be sounded.

What happened next (according to the "Times" correspondent, who gives this most interesting account), was extremely difficult, even for those on the spot to discover. One account was that the men now moving towards the Turks could be heard speaking in Turkish, and so perhaps were Turks belonging to the Bulgarian army, who were deserting it. Others who were present believe that they were Turkish troops driven in by an advance of the enemy.

Anyway, the men of the reserve battalion stopped firing, and stood peering into the dark, wondering what was in front of them, when suddenly there burst out upon them at short range an exceedingly heavy rifle fire, augmented by one or two machine guns, which the Bulgarians had brought up under cover of night.

The hungry under-officered men of this newly-embodied battalion gave way at once. Word went round that the officers who had ordered the "cease fire" sold them to the Bulgarians. Within a few minutes practically the whole fighting line was bolting back towards the village mentioned above, which lay in its rear.

"BULGARIANS ARE COMING."

The Turkish reserves had heard the firing, and when they found men running in on them the cry was raised, "The Bulgarians are coming," and the reserves fired wildly into them. As one Turkish newspaper writer put it: "Turkish troops fired on Turkish troops, and Bulgarians fired on both."

It seems to be the same episode which is referred to in the report of the Bulgarian General Dimitrieff to his Government, in which he says that a Turkish division had made a sortie from Kirk Kilisse during the night, and the Bulgarian storming parties made a feigned retreat, drawing the Turks within the range of the Bulgarian machine guns, which opened fire, and practically annihilated the enemy, and caused the precipitate Turkish retreat.

What that retreat was like the "Times" correspondent at Constantinople tells us. The reserves fired into their own retreating troops, the confusion increased, and the reserves began to bolt also. The fugitives began to reach the village, and panic spread to the transport, which was waiting there, and it began to retire in disorder. The artillery caught the panic. By the time dawn was breaking, the whole Turkish centre had gone to pieces. Amongst the crowds of men that fled faster and faster with their officers, were a few determined soldiers who stood their ground until the Bulgarians swept them down like a wave. By the growing light the Bulgarians could now make out the masses of fleeing men, and they played their shrapnel on them.

DRAMATIC INCIDENTS.

The eyewitness who described this to the "Times" correspondent, said: "I saw Mahmud Mukhtar, who constantly exposed himself in Tuesday's action, riding with drawn sword among the fugitives, at whom he slashed in a vain endeavour to rally them. One officer, after a vain attempt to rally his men, shot himself before my eyes. Most of the soldiers kept their rifles, but great-coats and water-bottles were thrown away. Officers looking for their men, men looking for their battalions, transport waggons overturned—the whole was an awful picture of disorder."

About the Bulgarian losses there has not arrived a word. It is known that there has been some very heavy fighting over certain of the forts, besides a great number of scattered encounters of troops at close range in the forests, where the casualties will probably never be fully ascertained. All that is known is that heavy relays of wounded men are being sent back from the Bulgarian front. The Turkish losses or the numbers present at the battle cannot be guessed, and perhaps never will be discovered.

But that the panic which involved the whole Turkish army was started by the appearance in front of the Turkish line of some troops whom the Turks could not recognise appears now to be perfectly established.

WIRELESS.

THE ALLEGED INFRINGEMENTS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The action brought by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company against the Commonwealth Government for alleged infringements of plaintiffs' apparatus was before Mr. Justice Higgins to-day. On behalf of the Commonwealth Government, an application was made for further and better particulars of the alleged infringement of the company's patent.

Mr. Justice Higgins said that the application would be refused.

The application was dismissed, and, by consent, an order was made that the defence should be filed within seven days.

PATENT ATTORNEYS.

BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The result of the election of two representatives of the patent attorneys to act on the new board of examiners for this profession has been the selection of Messrs. W. J. Spruson and P. Newell, of Sydney.

THE WAR.

WEEK END ALARMS.

MORE OPTIMISTIC VIEWS.

PEACE MEETING.

SERVIAN ADVANCE ON DURAZZO.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The "Evening Standard" says that the week-end alarms over the international situation are not justified, and that the action of a section of the English and Continental press, in adding to the scare by giving prominence to rumours which are intended to influence the Bourses, is reprehensible.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The Third Battle Squadron has returned to Malta from the East, owing, it is believed, to the easing of the Balkan situation.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

SOFIA, Nov. 25.

The Turkish and Bulgarian peace plenipotentiaries have met at Abak-Tchikcul, near Buyuk-Chekmeje.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 26.

The meeting of the peace delegates yesterday was merely formal, as Osman Nazimi had not arrived.

THE ARMIES.

ALONG CHATALJA LINE.

OUTPOST FIGHTING.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 26.

There was only outpost fighting along the Chatalja lines yesterday, together with some desultory firing from the heavy guns.

SIEGE OF ADRIANOPLE.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The "Daily News" correspondent states that all the Bulgarian regular troops have been withdrawn from Adrianople and sent to Chatalja, leaving the Servians and third-class reservists to maintain the investment.

The Servians are indignant that the censorship does not permit of any mention of them. Their largest guns (15 centimetres) are hopelessly outranged by the great Turkish batteries.

The Turks have repulsed every attempt on the part of the enemy to hold Papastepe, south-west of the town, and, displaying desperate gallantry, have won back a good deal of ground, especially on the right bank of the Maritsa River, where General Kirkoff's seventh division has had to retire four miles, and also on the right bank of the same stream where the Servians have sustained heavy losses.

The Bulgarian infantry on Thursday after a fierce fight entered Karagach, a suburb of Adrianople, and severe street fighting ensued, but eventually the Bulgarians were forced to retire.

This correspondent estimates that there have been 12,000 Bulgarian and Servian casualties around Adrianople.

SOFIA, Nov. 26.

On Sunday the Turks made a sortie against the southern section of the Bulgarian lines, but were repulsed with considerable losses. The Bulgarian investment is now within a kilometre of the town.

ADVANCE ON DURAZZO.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The "Daily Telegraph's" correspondent at Durazzo states that the Servians south of Alessio are now preparing to cross the river Matja in boats, the river being abnormally high.

He adds that the road to Durazzo is in a very bad condition owing to the heavy rain, and it will be four or five days before the Servians can reach the town.

The Servian army that was victorious at Monastir is also marching on Durazzo.

THE BATTLE OF VLADOVA.

ATHENS, Nov. 25.

Details regarding the battle of Vladova, which preceded the occupation of Fiorina, show that the Greeks defeated 20 000 Turks, after a fight lasting eight hours.

Eight hundred Turks were killed.

THE CHOLERA.

DISEASE SPREADING NORTHWARD.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The "Daily News" correspondent states that the cholera is pressing northwards, and has already reached Bulgaria, though all news in regard to it is being strictly censored.

He states that there are several hundreds of cases at Mustapha Pasha, on the border, where the sanitary and hospital arrangements are dangerously inadequate. The school has been converted into a hospital, but many of the patients are lying on the floor, and corpses are often not removed for 24 hours.

The water of the River Maritsa is contaminated, and cholera is raging in Adrianople. It has also made its appearance in the ranks of the Servian besiegers.

SAN STEFANO CAMP.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 25.

A Greek lady has joined Miss Alt, an English woman, who is working alone at San Stefano cholera camp.

Miss Alt, who is over 60 years of age, has been working from 6 o'clock in the morning till 5 o'clock in the evening, administering soup and water to the patients, regardless of the filth that everywhere pervades the camp.

Major Ford, an American surgeon, is the only volunteer doctor there.

Mr. Philip, secretary to the United States Embassy, and the Hon. Maurice Baring, the well-known journalist and author, are assisting.

GENERAL ITEMS.

THE PRISREND CONSUL.

VIENNA, Nov. 26.

The Austrian official sent to inquire into the treatment of M. Prochaska, the Austrian Consul, at the hands of the Servians in Prisrend, states that he has not been allowed to proceed any farther than Uskub.

It is rumoured in Vienna that M. Prochaska is dead.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 25.

An Albanian Mohammedan deputation has arrived, and is seeking the consent of the King to the nomination of Prince Charles as Prince of Albania when the Principality is created.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov 25.

The British merchantman Oriis, while carrying 600 refugees from Salonika, ran short of food. The refugees menaced the captain and crew, and on the arrival of the vessel at Constantinople H.M.S. Hampshire sent a guard on board.

It is reported that the Greeks have occupied Chios, an island in the Aegean Sea.

Nov. 26.

Four hundred Young Turks have been exiled to Konieh, in Asia Minor, and the police are searching for a member of the Committee of Union and Progress, who undertook to assassinate the Sultan and a number of prominent Turks.

HOME RULE BILL.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS.

IMPERIAL TAXATION.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The Home Rule Bill was further considered in committee in the House of Commons to-day.

On clause 15—Powers of Taxation—Mr Hayes Fisher (Unionist) moved an amendment to remove the power of the Irish Parliament to vary any Imperial tax.

Mr. J. E. Redmond said he considered the first financial scheme was a good one. The new proposals deprived Ireland of certain powers, but the Government had taken the wisest course, and in it the Irish party acquiesced.

Mr. H. L. Samuel, Postmaster-General, said that the proposal to enable Ireland to reduce the Customs duties was not vital, and as a large number of Liberals had objected the Government had thought fit to meet their wishes in the matter.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain (Unionist) asked the Government to justify the principle which allowed the Irish Parliament to vary the super-tax and alter the conditions regarding the exemption and abatement of income tax, but prohibited the varying of the rates of the tax.

Mr. Thomas Lough, Captain A. C. Murray, and Mr. J. A. Macdonald (Liberals) expressed dissatisfaction at the Government's decision.

The amendment was negatived by 284 votes to 167.

DYNAMITE CONSPIRACY.

A STARTLING STORY.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 25.

Plans to blow up the Panama Canal have been divulged by a confession of Ortie M'Manigal.

It appears that dynamite already in use for canal purposes was to be secured, and a quantity placed in each lock.

M'Manigal states that the decision to blow up the canal was due to the employment of non-unionists.

Other witnesses did not corroborate M'Manigal's story.

TRAMWAY CARS COLLIDE.

COLLISION IN A BLIZZARD.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.

Two suburban trolly cars came into collision, and were partly wrecked.

Twenty-five people were taken to the hospital seriously injured.

The collision occurred during a blizzard. The motor drivers could not see any distance ahead.

SIR STUART SAMUEL'S SEAT.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

A private individual, as a common informer, has commenced an action against Sir Stuart Samuel, claiming £46,500, being £500 for each vote he has given since the contract was entered into by the Indian Government for the purchase of large quantities of silver through the firm of Messrs. Samuel Montagu and Co.

A MILLIONAIRE'S OPTIMISM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, in a birthday message, states:—"It is a mistake to think that the United States is going to the bow-wows. I have a higher opinion of the human race now that ever I had, and women have attained an almost angelic height."

THE TORCH INQUIRY.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in reply to Lord Charles Beresford, said he hoped to receive the report in connection with the refitting of H.M.S. Torch at the end of the month.

EMPIRE DEFENCE.

MOTHERLAND AND DOMINIONS.

CONFERENCE URGED.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Mr. Arthur Lee, ex-Civil Lord of the Admiralty, in a letter to the "Times," suggests that the contributions of the dominions and dependencies should be utilised to fill the gap between the two-keels-to-one standard, and the 60 per cent. margin which the Government has already adopted.

The "Times" interprets Mr. Lee's suggestion as a 100 per cent. superiority in modern first-class armoured ships over the next naval Power. The paper urges that it is not sound strategy to use North Sea standards as a universal Imperial criterion. It would be better that Britain alone should meet all European needs and the ships contributed by the Dominions and dependencies should be earmarked for service elsewhere.

The paper adds that a conference should be called to decide the matter immediately.

DISASTROUS EXPLOSIONS.

TWENTY PERSONS KILLED.

WAUKEGAN (Ill.), Nov. 25.

An explosion occurred in the dry starch plant of the Corn Products Refining Company to-day, and resulted in the deaths of 20 people, and the serious injury of 25.

After the explosion the building caught fire, and a number of employees leaped from the upper windows, and were dashed to pieces on the footpath.

The cause of the explosion is not known.

£200,000 DAMAGE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.

An explosion of chemicals occurred on the fifth floor of the Union Sulphur Company's building at Brooklyn yesterday, and 70 employees were hurled in all directions. Eighteen sustained such injuries that they had to be conveyed to a hospital and several of them are not expected to recover.

The building caught fire after the explosion, and was demolished, the damage being estimated at £200,000.

THE MARCONI CONTRACT.

ADMIRALTY EXPERT'S EVIDENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

At the sitting of the select committee of the House of Commons which is inquiring into the contract with the Marconi Company for the erection of an Empire chain of wireless stations the wireless expert to the Admiralty gave evidence re-affirming the statements he had made before the Imperial Wireless Committee a year ago in regard to the reliability of the Marconi system over long distances.

He added that Marconi stations could be converted to use the Poulsen system without much cost at any time.

TRANSFER OF FOOTBALLERS.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The "Athletic News" states that nine New South Wales footballers are in communication with Northern League clubs, and resents these transfers, as it considers the positions should be occupied by British youths.

It is not known in Rugby League circles in Sydney who are the players referred to. Mr. E. R. Larkin, when seen yesterday, stated he felt satisfied that, with the number of young players in Sydney, the places of any who went away would be filled. A reciprocity agreement formerly did exist between the home body and the local league, but when D. Frawley returned to Sydney with the Kangaroos and resumed playing with Eastern Suburbs instead of remaining with the Warrington Club, as the parent body considered he should, the English Northern Union cancelled the agreement, and players are now free to come and go at will. Already this season H. Gilbert, S. Darmody, J. D. Campbell, W. Farnsworth, T. Gleeson, and V. Farnsworth have left New South Wales, and A. R. Francis and Curran, New Zealand.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.

The Democratic Party has decided to wipe out the Canadian reciprocity measure next session.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 26.

Mistchuk, formerly head of the detective force at Kieff, refused to accept the theory that the notorious murder of the youth Yushchinsky had any ritual significance, and was, in consequence, dismissed, and prosecuted on a charge of fabricating evidence with the object of disproving that it was a ritual murder. The trial has just been concluded, and Mistchuk and three of his assistants, who were charged with him, have been acquitted.

It will be remembered that the dead body of the boy Yushchinsky was alleged to have been used by Jews for ritual purposes. A recent cable stated that an inquiry had been held into the case, and it had been ascertained that the boy had been murdered by a gang of thieves, of which he almost had been a member, on suspicion of treachery. The case was a few months ago the subject of a remarkable protest by non-Jews in Great Britain, France, Germany, and Russia, some of the most distinguished men in politics, literature, science, and other spheres of life joining in, urging the impossibility of the "blood accusation," and their fears that it might lead to a general massacre of Jews in Kieff and other Russian cities.

REFERENDUM.

TRADE AND COMMERCE BILL.

ENLARGING THE FEDERAL POWERS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The debate on the second reading of the Constitution Alteration Bill relating to trade and commerce was resumed to-day in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Sampson (Victoria) thought that the Federal Parliament should have strong national powers. If the present proposals were agreed to, however, they would give those powers to the Commonwealth, but would rob the States of the benefit of a rigid Constitution. There would be the danger of Federal laws overlapping the States' legislation. The proposals would destroy the Federal principle of the Constitution. The anti-trust laws were sufficient to deal with trusts and combines, if the Government cared to set the machinery in motion. The solution of the industrial difficulties should be left in the first place to the States, and then there should be a Federal Court of Appeal to regulate the wages and conditions of industries which extended beyond a State. Under the circumstances the sweeping amendments were not justified, and he would not support them.

Mr. P. Maloney (Vic.) pointed out that last year Mr. Sampson urged that the trade and commerce powers should be as wide as possible. It was not right to say that the Government was not prosecuting the trusts. They had pushed on with the coal vend case, and until the Privy Council appeal had been decided they could go no further. He would advise the people to vote "Yes" to the six questions.

Sir John Forrest (W.A.) said that the proposals struck at the very root of the Federal system. It was a fair question to ask who had asked for the change. The people of Australia were fairly well satisfied with the Constitution. If it was given fair play there was no reason why the Commonwealth and States could not work in harmony. The party at present in power in the Commonwealth had always endeavoured to invade the powers of the States. The Federal Arbitration Court should consist of three persons. It was almost unthinkable that one man should have the control of the industrial life of the continent. The trade and commerce powers possessed by Australia had been sufficient for the United States for 100 years.

Mr. Scullin (Vic.) claimed that no new powers were being asked for. All the Government wanted was an extension of the Powers, they had at present.

Sir John Quick (Vic.) said that the Labour party would not find it easy to induce the people to accept the proposals by mere denunciations of trusts and combines. The amendment under discussion would give the Federal Parliament power over a vast body of penal legislation. No good case had been made out in favour of giving the Commonwealth power over all internal means of exchange, and the internal instrumentalities of the States. If that were done the Commonwealth might as well march on towards the goal aimed at in favour of complete central administration, and complete unification. No argument had been advanced in favour of the contemplated change.

Mr. Scullin: Mr. Irvin supplied argument in favour of it.

Sir John Quick did not intend to come into conflict with any section of the House. He was merely stating his own views. It was a free House, and a free country, and every citizen was entitled to his own opinion.

On the motion of Mr. Chanter (N.S.W.) the debate was adjourned till to-morrow.

The Prime Minister, in a short statement to the House, announced that the Government hoped to dispose of all the bills by the end of the week.

EARLY VOTE LIKELY.

FEDERAL CABINET MEETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

It is now fairly certain that the Federal session will not end before Friday, December 20. The Cabinet sat to-day. The Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher) stated subsequently that the meeting was held in order to arrange for an early vote in the House of Representatives on the Referendum proposals.

COST OF LIVING.

AUSTRALIAN CITIES COMPARED.

INTERESTING RETURN.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Mr. Justice Higgins to-day resumed the hearing of the claim of the Australian Tramway Employees' Association against the various tramway trusts and companies in connection with the Bendigo and Ballarat claim.

Figures were presented by Gerald Lightfoot, of the Commonwealth Statistician's Office, on the cost of living. He explained that the figures were compiled from information received from direct sources from 30 different cities and towns, and were based on monthly returns over a period from January to December this year. Melbourne was taken as the basis of computation at 1000 units. The figures representing the cost of living were:—Sydney, 1114; Newcastle, 900; Broken Hill, 1013; Melbourne, 1000; Ballarat, 863; Bendigo, 874; Geelong, 941; Brisbane, 937; Rockhampton, 920; Adelaide, 1107; Perth and Fremantle, 1107; Kalgoorlie and Boulder City, 1287; Hobart, 976; and Launceston, 944. In regard to food and groceries only, the respective figures on a similar basis were:—Sydney, 1033; Newcastle, 1044, Broken Hill, 1244; Melbourne, 1000; Ballarat, 1004; Bendigo, 1019; Geelong, 992; Brisbane, 1026; Rockhampton, 1070; Adelaide, 1070; Perth and Fremantle, 1268; Kalgoorlie and Boulder, 1574; Hobart, 1080; and Launceston, 1030. Rent is shown on an average for all houses as follows:—Sydney, 1236; Newcastle, 681; Broken Hill, 660; Melbourne, 1000; Ballarat, 647; Bendigo, 651; Geelong, 863; Brisbane, 802; Rockhampton, 692; Adelaide, 1162; Perth and Fremantle, 863; Kalgoorlie and Boulder, 849; Hobart, 818; and Launceston, 812.

Witness, replying to questions, said that, in regard to the cost of living, £3 in Melbourne was equivalent to £3 10s 5d in Ballarat. That estimate was based on the figures given above. Fuel was not reckoned in his calculations.

Mr. Justice Higgins: Regarding the cost of food and groceries only in the respective cities?

Witness: It would be slightly more in Ballarat and Bendigo than in Melbourne.

The hearing was adjourned.

AMERICAN ATHLETIC TEAM.

TO TOUR NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

The New Zealand Amateur Athletic Association has accepted the offer of Mr. W. Unmack, of San Francisco, to bring a team of American athletes to tour the Dominion, provided the team comprises George Horine or R. Rose, F. Smithson, W. M'Clure, and a sprinter. The team is expected to arrive at Wellington on January 2.

At a meeting of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association, to be held on Friday evening, the delegates will decide whether the Americans will visit New South Wales. It is proposed that the visitors will tour the Dominion, New South Wales, Victoria, and Tasmania. The cost of the tour will be about £350, towards which the N.S.W.A.A.A. will be asked to guarantee £100.

FEDERAL CAPITAL.

IDEAL CITY PROPOSED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

It is understood that radical alterations have been made by the departmental board, which was appointed to formulate the final plan on which the Federal capital is to be built.

The new plan is said to be an ideal one for a large inland city. There will be a lake in the centre of the city, as provided in the prize designs, but its shape will be much more picturesque than that originally laid down.

TRAGEDY OF THIRST.

HORSES DEAD.

NO WATER FOR SIXTY MILES.

CROYDON (Q.), Tuesday.

Two travellers from Dalgonally to Croydon reported to the police some days ago that they found a swag and packsaddle on the road at Clarville, 52 miles from here.

A constable and blacktracker went out on Thursday and returned last night. The constable stated that he found a swag and saddles on the road. He followed the tracks up to a spot five miles distant, and in the dry bed of the Wilson River found two dead horses, belonging to William Chandier, which evidently died from thirst.

Chandler had a black gin, Topsy Parker, looking for stock with the horses in question, and she has evidently perished.

The constable had a very hard trip, and was parched for water. The country is in a terribly dry state, and there is not water for 60 miles along the road from Venaport to Croydon, where the gin disappeared.

DEFENCE.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND

CO-OPERATIVE POLICY.

Senator Pearce (Minister for Defence) has received advices which indicate that New Zealand is coming round to the Australian way of thinking in regard to matters of defence.

In the course of a short interview yesterday afternoon, Senator Pearce said that a common arrangement for defence between New Zealand and the Commonwealth must come in the near future. Things were shaping that way, and it was in the interests of both that there should be an Australasian scheme.

Formal negotiations have not yet been entered into between the Commonwealth and the Dominion, but the way is being paved both for a naval and military arrangement. Last week General Godley (officer commanding the New Zealand forces) had an interview with General Gordon (chief of the General Staff for the Commonwealth), when the whole situation was gone into. It is probable that, as the outcome of this conference, direct negotiations with the New Zealand Government will be entered into.

Senator Pearce, discussing the opinion of the "Times" that the China station would probably be placed under the Australian command, said that such an arrangement would be in keeping with the understanding at the Imperial Conference last year. It was then agreed that in time of training or war, the combined Pacific fleet should be under the command of the Senior Admiral, whoever he might be. Probably that was what the "Times" had in mind when it made the comment.

The remount difficulty, the Minister said, had been referred to the Military Board, which would report to him in due course. Another matter he had looked into was the request of the State Government to be allowed to engage in quarrying operations in the vicinity of the Long Bay rifle range. This request he had been obliged to refuse.

NAVAL UNIT.

THE OVERSEAS CONTRIBUTION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.) asked the Prime Minister, in view of the facts that New Zealand had placed her gift of a battleship under the unconditional control of the British naval authorities, that the Malay States had determined to present the British Government with a battleship for incorporation with the Imperial Navy, that the South African Union was contributing to Empire defence six cruisers to be manned and controlled indefinitely by the British Admiralty, and that the Government of the Canadian Dominion proposed to shape her contribution in ships, so that it will become an integral part of the Imperial Navy under central control:—(1) Was the Commonwealth Government prepared to reconsider and discuss with the Imperial authorities the existing arrangement by which the Australian navy would remain the only naval force in the Empire maintained as a separate body, and under divided control? (2) Had any correspondence passed recently between the Prime Minister and the Imperial Government, with a view to changing the existing arrangements and securing concentrated control of the naval forces of the Empire? (3) If so, would the Prime Minister lay such correspondence upon the table of the House, or explain its purpose to Parliament?

The Prime Minister replied that the Government did not consider that the principle surrounding the policy of an Australian naval unit should be departed from, and the extension of that principle of defence was considered to be in the best interests of the whole of the Empire. No correspondence had taken place with a view to changing the general naval policy of the Commonwealth. The question of concentration would be determined by events which could not now be foreseen.

COMPULSORY TRAINING.

SUCCESS OF THE SCHEME.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Although the compulsory service provisions of the Defence Act have been in operation only a little over 18 months, the success of the movement has already passed all expectations. The number of youths and men in training throughout the six States is almost up to the limit of those liable, and in each separate instance, the high average is maintained. In Queensland all of the 2124 18-year-old lads, due to join the citizen ranks, are already in the fighting line, and in Western Australia only one young soldier has failed to respond to the call. In New South Wales, with its scattered population, the 6361 youths in training are only 96 short of the possible, while only 57 in South Australia, and 21 in Tasmania, have failed to come up for enrolment. Victoria stands in the worst position, with a shortage of 209, only 5186 of the 5395 senior cadets of the 1894 quota having reported themselves.

Even this is not by any means unsatisfactory, when the difficulties of enrolment and the amount of detail to be attended to are considered. The 18-year-old brigade were only transferred in July last, and 16,645 of them out of 17,029 liable in all parts of the Commonwealth have been accounted for. A deficiency of 384 is a mere nothing in view of the numbers involved. Similarly with the senior cadets boys, born from 1895 to 1898 inclusive, Queensland shows a deficiency of only 233, New South Wales of 975, Victoria of 563, South Australia of 204, Western Australia of 57, and Tasmania of 33, the number of lads training being at the present time 90,006 of 92,070, who are liable.

WAGES BOARD DEADLOCK.

CHAIRMAN RESIGNS.

A conference between representatives of the master bakers and operatives in the bread industry was held at the Trades Hall yesterday, with the object, if possible, of coming to an arrangement respecting the taking of country evidence in Sydney upon affidavit before the Bakers and Breadcarters' Country Wages Board. The men favoured the idea, and so did the board, but the masters stood out against it.

Mr. G. E. Flannery, barrister, chairman of the board, intimated, when this decision was made known to him, that it would not be convenient for him to visit the country centres, and stated that he would send in to the Government his resignation of his position.

The board has already taken a good deal of evidence. A change in its constitution will mean that this evidence will all have to be gone over again. At present set conditions apply to the baking industry in the country districts. The award being sought is one which, it is hoped, will be made to apply to the whole State, exclusive of the counties of Cumberland and Northumberland, the North Coast, the South Coast, and Broken Hill. The wages claimed are on a par with city rates. An effort is to be made to fix the working hours between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m., thus abolishing night-work.

The pay for the chairman of the board is £5 5s per sitting.

THE STORY OF WAIHI

NOVEL SCENES.

A SMASHED FEDERATION.

STRIKERS EXPELLED.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Nov. 22.

The events at Waihi and Huntly in the last few weeks are worth reviewing. First, there was the strike at the Waihi mine some months ago. The strike was called by the Federation of Labour, because a number of the workers (admittedly a minority) had determined to form a new union that was to be free from the orders of the executive of the federation. The commands of this little coterie of agitators had then begun to exceed all reasonable limits; they had altogether ceased to have any regard for reason. Ostensibly a federation of a few of the stronger and more militant trades-unions—miners, shearers, and wharf workers—and professing some of the tenets but none of the philosophy of socialism, this new body was (the past tense may now be employed) really a collection of persons who had set themselves the ambitious task of "bossing" New Zealand. With the rather insidious and plausible plea that "an injury to one is an injury to all," the federation put forward the disastrous doctrines of the I.W.W. The "general strike" it was to be. Did a solitary employer in the most remote locality dare to offend a single adherent of the federation, all work should cease. "Down tools!" and "paralyse the wheels of industry!" "The day is coming," said these "leaders of labour"—"the day is coming when the whistle will sound for the bosses, not the men, to start work."

THE STRIKE LOST.

With a stupidity that could only have been conceived by men stupid enough to conceive it, the battleground selected was a goldmine, of all places in the world. If it had been a coalmine, or all the coalmines of the Dominion, there might have been—there would have been—some chance of very seriously upsetting the whole community and making this so-called "federation" an organisation to be reckoned with, at any rate. But a stoppage or shortening of the gold yield really causes the public no immediate inconvenience; none suffer directly one-tenth as much as they whose occupation is suddenly terminated.

They have lost the strike. They have levied toll on the earnings of others to the tune of £25,000 to keep the strikers in idleness. To try to keep the Waihi mine closed down the federation has distributed in strike pay money enough to buy a goldmine of its own. Three score of the rank and file of the federation (but not one member of the executive) have spent several weeks in prison. One unfortunate man was killed in a riot at Waihi, another sent to goal for two months for threatening behaviour, a police constable dangerously wounded; and all for a cause that is lost, and that anybody who considered the matter in the light of commonsense must have known from the first would be lost.

But there is truth in the saying that "an injury to one is an injury to all," nevertheless. The federation has undobtedly injured the whole cause of Labour. By its extravagant language, fantastic methods, and contemptuous attitude towards law and order, and in regard to industrial agreements, the federation has brought the legitimate, constitutional section of organised labour into some sort of disrepute.

The workers—or "arbitrationists," as they are called—were actually permitted to hunt the federationists out of the town; and to-day it is reported that 1800 men, women, and children, exiles from Waihi, are in Auckland, afraid to return to their homes and their property. As the strike was unique in its beginning, so have the events following in its train been without parallel, at all events in this country. Waihi has gone from one extreme to the other. First, the federation element was allowed practically to take charge of the town; then its successors in employment, becoming the more numerous faction, were permitted to do precisely the same thing.

CHASED OUT OF TOWN.

When the strike began we were told: "The Mayor was summoned to appear before the strike committee," and was informed what arrangements would be permitted for hospital supplies, and so on. Last week it was stated: "Waihi was quiet and orderly last night. Two supposed federationists arrived by train. They were promptly chased out of the town." And last Saturday the Mayor of Waihi issued a "manifesto" declaring that "the executive of the new union" (not the police) were "preserving law and order," and that two strangers who arrived in the town, "failing to give a satisfactory account of themselves" (presumably to the union executive), were "turned back as federation spies!" Again, we were told that red, white, and blue badges were being worn by "arbitrationists" as a distinctive sign lest they should mistake each other for federationists and quarrel among themselves! In other words, anybody having the appearance of a striker, or of one who might be suspected of being a striker in disguise, not wearing the tri-colour, was a fit and proper subject for assault. And at this time the town was officially reported to be "quiet and orderly."

Routed from Waihi, a number of the strikers went to Huntly, where 600 adherents of the federation were employed in the Taupiri Company's coal mine. It is difficult to say how many federationists work there now, for there has been disruption in the ranks. Some weeks ago, when the miners took a "holiday" for the purpose of "sympathising" with imprisoned Waihi strikers, the directors of the Taupiri Company closed the mine for some days, and before reopening it took the drastic step of dismissing all members of the union executive. This was done on the ground that the executive had failed to carry out that part of the union's agreement with the company, which provides for continuity of the work and business of the mine.

Out of loyalty to their officers, the men refused to work. Then the public began to realise the weakness of the hitherto blustering Federation of Labour. That strike was called-off—the men were told to go to work. Here was a case where there did exist some sort of grievance against employers (which there was not in respect of the Waihi folly), yet the federation had not the stomach for a fight. With that the spell was broken. Affiliated unions began to secede (the Auckland Tramwaymen's Union, among others, decided by a large majority to pull out). Worse than that, from the federation viewpoint, whatever section of the community had regarded the organisation with some degree of apprehension quickly discovered that a more fitting attitude was one of contempt. So the federation is surely dying.

AVIATOR HART.

BUILDING ANOTHER MACHINE.

Mr. W. E. Hart, Australian aviator, was tendered a welcome at the Town Hall, Parramatta, last night. A large gathering attended, and Mr. T. R. Moxham, M.L.A., Alderman Collett (Mayor of Parramatta), and Alderman Jago delivered addresses, congratulating Mr. Hart upon his recovery from his recent accident.

Mr. Hart, who was still using crutches, said he was assured by his medical advisers that he would be perfectly well in a few weeks. He added that the machine in which he was flying when he met with the accident had been built by Mr. S. Sandford, and was a great success.

Mr. Hart said he had promised his parents that he would not fly again without their consent, but to-day he had made arrangements for the building of another machine, which Mr. Sandford would fly.

FERRY BOAT CAPSIZED.

RAN INTO BY TUG.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

A tug, while coming up the river to-night, ran into and capsized a ferry boat near Hawthorn ferry. There were only a ferryman and one male and two lady passengers in the boat at the time. The occupants were thrown into the water, but were speedily rescued.

WHALING.

EXODUS TO NEW ZEALAND.

The whaling industry at Jervis Bay is gradually becoming a thing of the past, and the whalers are one by one moving off to the New Zealand coast.

The two gunboats, Norwegia and Zealandia, and the factory ship Polynesian, all of which belong to the second of the two companies which arrived at Jervis Bay recently, have taken their departure for New Zealand.

The gunboat Sorrel, belonging to the first company, is also in New Zealand waters, and now the gunboat Campbell is about to leave for the same hunting grounds. This will leave only the gunboat Lionel and the factory ship Loch Tay at Jervis Bay, and, if the Sorrel and the Campbell meet with success in New Zealand waters, these two will also leave shortly to join them. Jervis Bay will then be deserted as far as whalers are concerned.

The Campbell arrived here yesterday from Jervis Bay, and took in coal at Pyrmont prior to leaving for Westport, New Zealand. Since the Campbell left here a little over a week ago she has captured only five whales. It is expected that the boats will experience better catches in New Zealand: or, if this surmise proves to be correct, the Loch Tay and the Lionel will make for New Zealand without delay, as the gunboats are unable to do much without the factory ship.

EASTERN SUBURBS STORM.

REMARKABLE SCENES.

BIRDS KILLED.

The storm in portion of the Eastern Suburbs, reported in yesterday's second edition, was of a most remarkable character.

Houses were unroofed by the wind, windows were broken, and gardens devastated by the heavy hail.

Shortly after darkness descended the peculiar stillness that preceded last Saturday's storm was again noticeable. About 7 o'clock sheet lightning began to play overhead, and dark clouds obscured the light of the full moon.

These conditions continued till 10 o'clock. Then two successive claps of tremendous thunder shook the houses. The clouds were riven by vivid lightning. The flashes momentarily lit up the vicinity, as with the light of day, and vessels passing along the coast were discernible. A deluge of rain and hail followed, accompanied by a gale of wind of terrible velocity. The hail was of unusual size, and was jagged in shape.

The storm lasted for only 20 minutes.

Hundreds of windows were smashed by the hail, which also caused havoc among the gardens and fruit trees. Outhouses were stripped of their roofs by the winds, and roads with any gradient at all had their surfaces washed away.

A large amount of sand and debris was washed on to the tramway lines, and gangs of men were employed for hours clearing them. The sand was responsible for a serious block to the Coogee trams, and people returning home after the theatres were forced to get out and walk. Two cars went off the line at Belmore-road, and the service was not normal until midnight. On the La Perouse and Botany lines the traffic was also disorganised, a car being derailed on each line.

The telephone service in most of the Eastern Suburbs was temporarily interrupted, poles and wires being down in many places. At Watson's Bay a cable-box was destroyed by the lightning.

Rose Bay appears to have been visited by the very centre of the storm. A butcher's shop on the Old South Head-road was unroofed, apparently by the lightning. The family were in bed, when a flash of lightning played through the house, and, amid the sound of wrenching timbers, the roof disappeared. It was found yesterday morning about 50 yards away. The family were left with the rain pouring in on them, and had to seek temporary shelter elsewhere. The water did a large amount of damage, walls and ceilings being cracked and furniture spoiled.

A scene of devastation was presented yesterday morning in the suburbs visited by the storm. It was confined to the narrow strip of land along the coast from Long Bay to South Head, and extended as far towards the city as the outer edge of Darlinghurst. Trees which before the storm held a beautiful covering of leaves, reared gaunt stripped branches in the air. Leaves were piled along the footpaths to a depth of a couple of inches, and scattered here and there were dead birds (evidently killed by the hail). Plants and flowers were smashed to the ground, the gardens suffering terribly.

FOR THE SOUTH SEAS

YOUTHS WHO WANTED ADVENTURE.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The youths awaiting sentence for the theft of the motor boat Dora were brought up for sentence yesterday. Those charged with the actual theft were Francis James Barnes, John Henry Costa, Henry Robert Adamski, James Ballantyne Dearlove, and Reginald Paul Dearlove. Against William Clarence McGregor and Francis James Barnes, charges of breaking into a warehouse and stealing were preferred.

Mr. Watson, who appeared for the defendants, said that for many years Barnes had cherished the idea of going to the Solomon Islands, and engaging in trading. He acquired on the time-payment system the hull of a motor boat. Then he picked up for £12 an engine, which had been scrapped. Being thrown out of work, McGregor suggested to Barnes that they should take some tyres and tubes from Ford and Company's premises, and sell them. Barnes suggested to McGregor that it would be a good thing to take a boat or two. In casting round for a suitable craft they took a fancy to the Dora. Up to this stage the Dearloves had not been in it. They were not told much at first, and apparently thought they were going for a trip in the bay for a week or two.

Mr. Watson related the experiences of the defendants when they got into the bay, and said they did their best to preserve the boat, and endeavoured to make all the restitution they could.

The Chief Justice: These persons took this boat to go to the South Seas, and if it had not happened that they met bad weather, I suppose they would have reached the South Seas, and with these firearms and this stock of ammunition they would have enjoyed themselves.

Mr. Watson applied for the benefit of the 656th section of the code.

The Chief Justice: I cannot do that where there is a series of criminal offences.

The Crown Prosecutor said that none of the boys had been in trouble before, except Costa, who in 1907 was sent to Westbrook Reformatory for stealing some waste copper.

The Chief Justice said he would have to look further into the matter. It was difficult on the evidence to apportion punishment. The whole case was a very uncommon one. It was the first of its kind which had ever come under his notice.

Defendants were further remanded till Friday.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEYS ABROAD.

HEAD OF THE LIST IN AUSTRIA AND GERMANY.

FREMANTLE, Tuesday.

"Brownie" Carslake and "Sandy" Ferguson, two Australian jockeys, who have been under engagement in Austria for the past few seasons, are passengers by the Royal mail steamer Orama, which arrived at Fremantle this morning. Carslake headed the list of winning jockeys last season with 92 winning mounts, while Ferguson won on 40 occasions. Bullock, they state, also headed the list in Germany. Ferguson has been riding for Herr Dreher, a brewer, who is reported to be one of the wealthiest men on the Continent—richer even than Rothschild.

SOUTHERN MINING DISPUTE.

NEW COMMISSIONER.

JUDGE SCHOLES TO ACT.

MERCHANTS PREPARING FOR EMERGENCIES.

Since the decision of the aggregate meeting at Bellambi has given all power to the Southern miners' executive to take what action might be considered necessary without further consulting the men, the proprietors of these mines are preparing themselves for any emergency that might arise, and, the coal merchants in the city, on the other hand, are bestirring themselves.

The proprietors admit that they have been asked by Mr. Bowling, on behalf of the miners, to meet representatives of the men in conference in respect to the dismissal of James Russell. They, however, are in a quandary to know whether the position has changed, since they stated this question to be sub judice. While one Royal Commissioner has resigned, another one (Judge Scholes) has been appointed. It is true the new commissioner has not yet actually commenced his inquiry, but he will do so, it is understood, at Wollongong to-morrow afternoon—thus complying with the miners' wishes to have the evidence heard locally.

The proprietors' position, however, has yet to be thoroughly reviewed before an answer can be given to Mr. Bowling. It was intended to have a meeting yesterday, but the secretary (Mr. Firth) had to go to his mining districts on important business. He will be at his office to-day, but the proprietors think it improbable that there will be a meeting before to-morrow—perhaps not till next week. If Judge Scholes is going to sit at Wollongong to-morrow afternoon it will, they say, be necessary for some of them to leave Sydney that morning in order to be in attendance.

One of the owners ventured the opinion that the Russell case was not the whole cause of the holding of the aggregate meeting. He said it was known that the annual election of officers was at hand, and that some particular limelight was required for certain persons aspiring to responsible positions.

The sudden cessation of work which that aggregate meeting necessitated will probably not escape the attention of the Industrial Registrar. There is a clause (32) in the award which says, in effect, that, having regard to the working hours, no miner shall absent himself from work during the proper working hours while the mine is at work without the sanction of the manager, under-manager, or without reasonable excuse. The question with the Registrar therefore is: What is a "reasonable excuse?"

MINES AT WORK.

IMPROVED PROSPECTS.

BULLI, Tuesday.

All the southern collieries resumed work this morning. Yesterday's meeting provided an outlet for the pent-up feelings of the miners, and it is considered unlikely that they will again cease work, at any rate not until after the Royal Commission appointed by Mr. Beeby has sat.

Mr. Bowling stated to-day that the motions carried yesterday put the position clearly before the public. He preferred not to say anything further at the present juncture.

At most of the mines in the district a few of the miners put in an appearance on Monday, and went about their work as usual.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

LATE SITTING.

MAIN ROADS BILL DEFEATED.

In the Legislative Assembly early this morning the debate on the second reading of the Main Roads Bill was continued.

The bill was further opposed by Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Lonsdale, Mr. Robson, Mr. Latimer, and Colonel Onslow, and Mr. Griffith, in reply, said he would not oppose an amendment to have the membership of the board reduced from five to three, one member representing the Government. He would not treat the bill as a party measure, and denied that it was an interference with local government. The £125,000 proposed to be handed to the board had been deducted from this year's subsidy for shires, and, if the bill was not carried, that money would not be spent on the roads, and the total subsidy would be only £279,000.

The second reading was negatived by 29 to 28, amid Liberal cheering, and cries of, "Resign."

The bill was then withdrawn by Mr. Griffith.

Mr. Perry: Get it burnt by the common hangman.

ASSEMBLY ESTIMATES.

Mr. Cann submitted a motion for the suspension of the Standing Orders to cure a legal irregularity caused by certain of the Assembly estimates being placed by the Speaker under the heading "Sergeant-at-Arms." The Treasurer explained that it was necessary to have the irregularity rectified in order to make the Appropriation Bill regular.

Mr. Wood submitted to the Deputy Speaker (Mr. Meagher) that the Speaker's recent ruling prevented Standing Orders being suspended, except on notice.

The Deputy Speaker ruled that the House was master of its own procedure. The Standing Orders could be suspended without notice, and he, therefore, ruled the motion in order. (Loud Liberal laughter.)

Mr. Cann: It should have appeared as a joint estimate of the Assembly and the Council. (Liberal cheering.)

Mr. Wood said the proceeding showed that the action of the Speaker, in framing these estimates as he had, bordered on the idiotic.

PRICE OF SUGAR.

REFINING COMPANY'S CHARGES.

QUESTIONS IN THE HOUSE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the House of Representatives this afternoon, Mr. Parker Moloney (Vic.) asked the Attorney-General whether he had seen a statement by Mr. Knox, general manager of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, to the effect that the high price of sugar was due to the duty of £6 a ton. In view of the fact that this sugar is being made in Australia, and escapes duty Mr. Moloney went on to say, is not Mr. Knox misleading the public?

The Attorney-General: I saw the letter to which the hon. member has referred. The facts are that there is a duty of £10 a ton on beet sugar, £6 on cane, excise £4, and a bonus of £3 on all white-grown cane sugar. That means that there is an effective duty of £5 on cane sugar, while the duty on the beet product remains at £10. The prices quoted by the company here and in Auckland show a difference of something over £7. I think it can hardly be denied that the reason for the extra price here is the duty the company, which is a commercial monopoly, charges the consumers of the Commonwealth—the amount of the duty plus the ordinary cost of refining and producing sugar.

Mr. Bruce Smith (N.S.W.): Will the Attorney-General give the House some clear and intelligent explanation of the charge made against him by Mr. Knox, viz.: "Mr. Hughes has made deliberate misrepresentations as to the prices and profits of the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, and has also made those charges the basis of his appeal for an alteration of the Constitution, with regard to corporations."

The Attorney-General: It is quite unnecessary for me to lay information on the table in regard to a charge made by a person outside this House. I propose to answer that person through the same medium as was used by him in making the charge. (Ministerial cheers.) If any hon. member in this House chooses to repeat those charges, I shall answer them here.

Mr. Kelly (N.S.W.): In view of the fact that sugar comes into New Zealand free, and the price charged in Dunedin is lower than that ruling in Australia, will the Prime Minister take the earliest opportunity of removing the duty, and thus arrange for keeping the Queensland white sugar industry alive, by a direct bonus?

The Prime Minister: There is no intention of doing that.

Replying to a further question by Mr. Parker Moloney, the Attorney-General said it was perfectly true that sugar grown in Australia did not have to pay duty, and that the company was able to charge that amount.

EPPING TRAGEDY.

BELCHER ON TRIAL.

A PLEA OF INSANITY.

At the Central Criminal Court at Darlinghurst yesterday, before Mr. Justice Ferguson, William Belcher, 42, was arraigned on an indictment charging him with feloniously and maliciously murdering Arthur Rosam, at Epping, on October 31, 1912.

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor, conducted the case for the Crown; and Mr. A. J. Spear (assigned by the Crown) appeared for the defence.

On opening the case, Mr. Harris intimated that a plea of insanity would be set up, and the jury would have the benefit of the views of Dr. Palmer, the Government medical officer, on that point.

Throughout the whole of the case, the accused sat in the dock with an expression of the utmost indifference. Once or twice he interjected while the witnesses were being cross-examined by his advocate.

Mary Anne Parker told the story of the strange crime. She said that Rosam, Blunden, and Belcher boarded with witness and her husband at Epping. All of them were recent arrivals from England. There had never been any quarrel or disturbance of any kind while they all lived together. The witness could not give the faintest reason for the crime. Prisoner and Rosam had arranged to have an early breakfast, and go away together to some new job. They sat down to breakfast together at 7 a.m. Twenty minutes afterwards Belcher left the room and went to his own bedroom. While he was away from the breakfast-room Blunden came in to breakfast, and in a few minutes Belcher returned, and shot one of his friends dead. He only just missed by about two inches the commission of a double tragedy.

Henry J. Blunden said he heard a shot fired from behind, and saw Rosam fell down dead, and then, immediately afterwards, was himself wounded at the back of the neck, though only slightly.

Arthur Aubrey Palmer, Government Medical Officer, said he had seen the prisoner almost every day since he had been in gaol. He was a very ignorant man. He could neither read nor write. His mental capacity was very poor, and he was certainly mentally deficient. The witness would not, however, certify that he was insane. There was no doubt that the prisoner knew right from wrong, but he had a very low sense of appreciation of the importance of the difference. Prisoner had told witness that he regretted killing Rosam, but his regret certainly did not carry any very great conviction.

To Mr. Spear, Dr. Palmer said he had examined the prisoner, and found two marks at the back of his head. One of them, the prisoner said, was caused when he was 14 years of age by a cab accident in London; the other, he said, was caused by a kick from a horse two years later. There was no doubt that both were the marks of serious injuries.

The prisoner was then put into the box. He said he came to the country in March last, and had lived at Mrs. Parker's place ever since. He had been run over by a cab in London when he was between 10 and 12 years of age. His slipper had caught in the wheel of the cab, and he had been whirled round for a few yards. The other accident happened when he was 16 or 17 years of age. His father's brother, Thos. Belcher, had been in an asylum in London for 25 years. He (the prisoner) was getting on nicely in this country. There was a good living here, and he wanted to have his wife and family here. He hadn't heard from his wife for four months. He had bought the revolver four days before, because of the burglar scare. He had never been in trouble before. His wife was 38 years of age, and they had three children. He had paid £18 to nominate his wife and family to come out, and whatever happened to him he wanted his wife to get that £18.

Four witnesses were called for the defence—late employers of the prisoner. All of them gave him a good character.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, on the grounds of temporary insanity. His Honor then committed accused to Darlinghurst Gaol until his Excellency's pleasure is known.

AUSTRALIAN STAGE HISTORY.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY DISCUSSION.

The president, Mr. Frank Walker, presided over a good attendance at the meeting of the Australian Historical Society in the Royal Society's rooms last night, when Mr. W. Farmer Whyte repeated the address he recently gave before the Shakespeare Society on "Australian Stage History, with special reference to Shakespearian productions."

In moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Whyte, Captain James H. Watson said the lecturer had awakened many interesting memories of early days. He could not go back to the first theatrical performance in Australia, on June 4, 1789, when "The Recruiting Officer" was performed by a party of convicts, in the presence of some of Governor Phillip's officers, but he remembered that when he landed in Melbourne, 50 years ago, he saw the name of Barry Sullivan on one theatre, and that of Charles Kean on another. When he had left London Fechter was billed for one of the theatres there, and Sothern for another. As for Sullivan and Kean, Australian playgoers gave the palm to the former, who was backed up by one of the best stock companies ever seen here, including Robert Heir, Charles Young, Lambert, and Richard Stewart, father of Nellie Stewart. He had also seen Walter Montgomery, James Anderson, William Creswick, and other of the celebrated Shakespearean actors who had visited Australia.

Mr. A. G. Foster, in seconding the vote, suggested that the lecture should be repeated at some future time, with lantern slides of the old theatres and the famous actors and actresses who had visited this country.

The president remarked that the references to the early days of the drama here made one realise the wonderful times in which we were living to-day, with our dramatic performances, our opera, and our picture shows; but it was to be feared that not many of the actors and actresses of to-day were the equal of those of the past.

THE WEATHER.

RAIN ON THE COAST.

Since 9 a.m. on Monday, due to monsoonal activity, further light to heavy rainfall has been recorded along the coast, and at a few scattered places on the highlands, chiefly the result of thunderstorms. The heaviest amount was 235 points at Woolgoolga. Crookhaven had 210 points, Camden Haven 20, Wollongong 192, Bondi 119, Beecroft 96, Lismore 97, Ulladulla 67, Taree 65, Parramatta 62, Gosford 60, and Tweed Heads 52; the remainder were all less than 50 points.

One hundred and thirty-three points were reported at Port Macquarie up to 6 p.m. yesterday.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was chiefly cloudy to overcast along the coast and on parts of the highlands, with showers or raining at places on the central and north coast, and misty rain on the Blue Mountains; otherwise skies were clear generally. The highest temperature registered on Monday was 91 deg. at Jerry's Plains, and Mogil reached 90 deg. The lowest registrations, associated for the most part with the southerly change, were: Kosciusko 30 deg., Kiandra 33 deg., Rockley 36 deg., and Cooma 39 deg.

At 9 a.m. yesterday the monsoonal conditions predominated over Queensland and coastal parts of New South Wales, and showed some intensification since Monday. Indications favour more cloud and showers, with thunder, over coastal districts. Winds veering to northerly in the far west, and becoming warmer generally.

BELLINGEN.—A heavy thunderstorm passed over the district on Monday night, 221 points being registered in [illegible] hours. It was the heaviest fall of rain experienced for some time.

JAMBEROO.—Further rain fell on Monday night, 1[illegible] points being recorded. The weather is cool and dull.

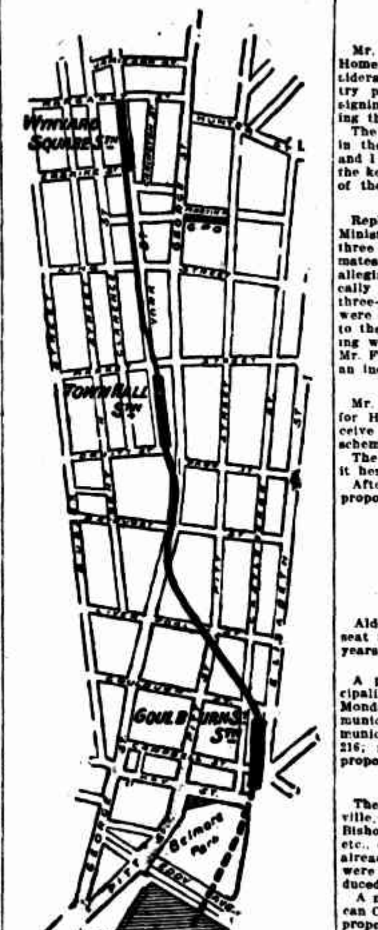

MURWILLUMBAH.—A severe hailstorm, accompanied by a perfect deluge of rain, passed over the district shortly before noon on Tuesday. The hail, which was very thick, and the size of marbles, lasted for more than 15 minutes. Trees were stripped of leaves and vegetables, and flower gardens in many instances were completely destroyed, and a number of window-panes were broken. The streets were flooded, the water-channels being unable to carry it away. The water swept across the footpaths in several places, and entered some of the business places. The water-courses on the hillsides were converted into raging torrents, and the low-lying land adjacent to the town was soon inundated. The hail was heaviest on the outskirts of the town, and several paddocks had the appearance of being covered with snow. In some places there are drifts of ice a foot deep. Heavy showers have fallen since noon.

THE FREEDOM LEAGUE.

A meeting convened under the auspices of the Freedom League was held last night in the Unitarian Church to protest against the compulsory clauses in the Commonwealth Defence Act. The main objections were that the Act violated freedom of conscience, and opposed parental control. The Freedom League holds that compulsory training is unnecessary—that voluntary service has not been fully tested, and that Australia can best solve the problem of her defence by populating the empty north.

From Goulburn-street the line will run underground diagonally across the blocks bounded by Castlereagh-street, Bathurst-street, George-street, and Goulburn-street. MATERNITY ALLOWANCES.

Replying to Mr. Bamford (Q.), the Prime Minister stated that he had seen two or three letters from persons who had been inmates of the Melbourne Women's Hospital, alleging that they signed documents practically under duress, giving to the institution three-fifths of the maternity allowance they were entitled to claim. A meeting of the congregation of the Anglican Church at Bowraville, held to consider the proposal of the Parochial Council to engage a lay reader in the parish to assist the Rev. L. MURRUMBURRAH, Tuesday.

In view of a recent report furnished by Mr. Pridham, Engineer of the Public Works Department, with regard to the probability of the council's sanitary depot polluting the catchment area of a proposed water supply for the town, Dr. C. S. Willis, principal assistant medical officer of the Government, has made an inspection of the area, and also of the weir now being constructed by the Railway Department on Cunningham Creek. As the catchment area is subject to pollution from drainage from the town and other sources, Dr. Willis was not favourably impressed with the idea of drawing a water supply from the weir for domestic use.

A PROPERTY DEAL.

CASE BEFORE COURT.

STRONG REMARKS BY JUDGE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

"The defendant has perpetrated an impertinent fraud, and I propose to deal very severely with him," observed Judge Eagleson at the conclusion of the examination of a judgment debtor in the County Court.

Evidence was given by George Godfrey, of Godfrey and Godfrey, solicitors, that Charles C. Peard, a builder, went to them and borrowed £150 on a property at Yarraville, which he represented had cost him £220. The money was advanced without a valuation having been made, Peard being regarded as an honest man and a shrewd buyer. The property, however, was worth nothing like the amount advanced on it, and had been bought by Peard from the vendor for £100. Peard had five or six mortgages with Godfrey and Godfrey, but they were all in default, from small amounts up to £400.

Charles C. Peard, the judgment debtor, said that when he went to borrow the money he asked for £100 and was given £150. He produced the municipal valuation notice on the Yarraville property, showing the assessment to be £240.

Judge Eagleson said that the defendant had perpetrated a very impertinent and daring fraud. He would direct him to pay the full amount owing under the mortgage, £177, together with the costs of the summons, within 24 hours, in default four months' imprisonment.

CITY COUNCIL EMPLOYEES.

A deputation of the workmen dismissed from the electric light department of the City Council waited on the Lord Mayor yesterday. Alderman Bourke, who introduced them, said that several of the men were within a week or two of 12 months' service, the completion of which would have entitled them to a fortnight's holiday on full pay. The Lord Mayor said he was sure in dispensing with the men's services there was no desire merely to escape the holiday provision. He promised to look into the matter and see whether it was possible to keep the men on for another week or two so that they would not be robbed of the holiday privileges attaching to the Council's service. With regard to the other men he would see that they got a chance if there was any temporary work to be done in other departments.

SHIP PAINTERS AND DOCKERS.

A conference took place yesterday afternoon at the offices of the Federated Steamship Owners' Association between Mr. J. P. Franki, manager for Mort's Dock and Engineering Co., Ltd., Captain Webb, chairman of the Steamship Owners' Association, and representatives of the Ship Painters' and Dockers' Union. Members of the union recently refused to work overtime until such time as they were able to earn a living wage from week to week. They are dissatisfied with the wages prescribed in their award. The conference was adjourned until to-morrow. Mr. Franki stated last night that union men were now working overtime.

MUTTON STRIKE.

There was a meeting of the mutton slaughtermen at the Trades Hall last night, but no advance towards a settlement of the sectional strike at Glebe Island was made. Another meeting will be held to-night, when the general secretary of the Australasian Meat Industry Employees' Union, Mr. T. W. Furse, hopes to be in a position to have certain proposals to submit.

CENSURING AN ALDERMAN.

The members of the St. Peters Council, at the council's last meeting, carried a resolution, by 5 votes to 3, to the effect that one of their number, Alderman Lane, had forfeited the confidence of the aldermen. The motion was moved by Alderman Sanderson, and seconded by Alderman Murray. The matter arose through Alderman Lane's action in giving evidence in a Court case in favour of a person who was proceeded against by the council in connection with the building of a stable to which objection had been lodged. The council lost the case.

One alderman, speaking against the motion, said that the aldermen were exceeding their authority in moving a vote of censure. Alderman Lane had only to answer to the ratepayers who elected him.

Alderman Lane characterised the motion as waste of time. He would help any innocent person.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

The J. C. Williamson management this morning announces that "Harbour Lights" will be revived at the Theatre Royal on December 7, for a fortnight only. Harry Sweeney (Frank Morland), Arthur Styan (Nicholas Morland), Winter Hall (Catain Hardy), Eardley Turner (Captain Nelson), Leonard Willey (Mark Helston), Boyd Irwin (Hockaday), Fred. At 1.30 to-day the curtain will rise upon the matinee performance of "The Quaker Girl" at Her Majesty's Theatre, where that vivacious musical comedy continues to draw large audiences. The dancing lesson between Miss Blanche Browne and Mr. Leslie Holland is one of the daintiest numbers in the piece.

The matinee of "Ben Hur" will begin at 1.45 to-day, at the Theatre Royal. General Lew. Wallace's romance has been cleverly dramatised, all the central incidents of the love story being retained, with the shipwreck, the processions, and ballots in the groves of Castalia, and the beautiful religious tableaux.

At the Criterion Theatre only three more performances can be given of "The Gambler's Sweetheart," a dramatic love story of mining life, with many humorous touches in it. On Saturday next Playwrights, Ltd., will produce "Meg, the Castaway," with Maggie Moore in her humorous and pathetic impersonation of the heroine, and Mr. H. R. Roberts as Sam Sloper.

At the Adelphi Theatre the new attraction, "What Women Will Do for Love," is drawing large audiences, and the central situation, in which the heroine descends a coalmine to warn her husband that the villain is preparing to blow it [illegible] ly, is followed by an explosion cleverly elaborated by the George Marlow management.

At Rickards Tivoli Theatre, where the usual matinee will be given to-day, the new programme will comprise the Three Keltons (musical), Nella Webb, Will Whitburn, the Max Franklin Continental Acrobatic Troup, and De Biere in his fascinating magic. On Friday there will be an extra De Biere and Nella Webb professional and prem matinee, to which the public will be admitted as usual.

At the National Amphitheatre the Brennan-Fuller Vaudeville Company will include Armstrong and Priscilla Verne, Les. Rincks, the Danish novelty artist, Mr. C., the American raconteur, Violet Black, and her group of English artists in "Telka, the Halfbreed," Maud Courtney, American soubrette, Budd and Clare, Reg. Rene, Joe Hurley, Maud Fanning, and other favourites.

MISS PROCTOR'S LECTURE.

Miss Mary Proctor, who has been making a flying return visit to Brisbane, will arrive in Sydney to-day, and will lecture on "Other Worlds than Ours" in St. James's Hall to-morrow evening. Professor David will take the chair. Miss Proctor, it may be added, has now forwarded a cheque to Dr. Howard Duffield (Adelaide) for £6 as a further contribution towards the Solar Observatory Fund, the sum resulting from part proceeds of her lectures in Toowoomba and Warwick, and also from the Riverview College Observatory. The plan for to-morrow's lecture is at Paling's.

THE SOCIETY OF ARTISTS.

The first five days of the Society of Artists' exhibition of Australian art has resulted in sales amounting to £450. The attendances have been good, and much interest shown in the exhibits. It is notable that the majority of the pictures on the walls are figure compositions and portraiture, a fact which gives added interest to the collection. The exhibition closes on December 3.

ROYAL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

Saint Saens' Biblical operatic cantata will be performed at the Town Hall to-morrow evening by the Royal Philharmonic Society of Sydney, under the baton of Mr. Joseph Bradley, and with M. Henri Staell as orchestral leader, the united forces numbering 400 performers. The varied and beautiful music affords several spirited ensembles, and dance numbers. The cast of soloists will consist of Mr. Walter Whyte (Samson), Miss Etta Gibson (Delilah), Mr. Andrew Black (High Priest), and Mr. W. Reginald Groud (Abimelech). The plan is at Paling's.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

Miss Grace Stafford's annual recital entertainment will take place at St. James's Hall this evening, when that well-known elocutionist and teacher will recite a scene from "Antony and Cleopatra," and will appear with Mr. Stuart Mack in Browning's "In the Laboratory," and in the comedy "Love in a Railway Train." Miss Stafford's musical monologues will be "Blue Eyes" and "Oh!" Miss Ada Moddenway will sing. The plan is at Paling's.

Miss Dora Hill, a Berlin-trained pianist and teacher, will give her annual pupils' concert at King's Hall to-morrow night, when an attractive programme will be presented, with the assistance of Miss Leonore Gotsch and Mr. Arthur Appleby. Invitations and plans are available at Paling's.

At the Concordia Hall to-morrow night a vocal recital will be given by Miss Vera M'Donald, a promising mezzo-soprano. In an attractive programme the assisting artists will be Miss Daisy Sweet, Miss Nellie Barrett, Miss Violet Ross, Messrs. Percy Herford, Alfred Shea, Allan Fraser, and George S. Holburn. The plan is at Nicholson's.

The Liedertafel Germania (conductor, Herr Carl Gotsch), in conjunction with the German Club "Concordia," will give a grand benefit concert at the Concordia Hall on Monday, December 2, under the management of George S. Holburn, in aid of the Mount Lyell Disaster Fund. Miss Leonore Gotsch, Miss Elsie Una Roberts, Mr. W. J. Coad, and Herr Carl Gotsch will assist. The plan is now open at Nicholson's.

Next Wednesday, at 1.25 p.m., at St. James' Church, Mr. G. Faunce Allman and Miss Dora Ranelaud will give the first of a series of three organ and violin recitals.

Mr. Roy Agnew, a young Australian composer, will give an invitation recital in the King's Hall on Tuesday, December 17, when he will play a number of his own works, and will be assisted by Mr. Alfred Hill and leading artists under the direction of Mr. Downs Johnstone, with Mr. G. S. Holburn as concert manager.

In addition to the excellent sales of tickets, Mr. Geo. H. Williams reports of the Sydney Hospital art union that throughout the city, suburbs, and country hundreds of applications are being made for tickets from adjoining States, more especially from Queensland, where already a satisfactory sale has been recorded.

Evening concerts have been arranged to take place at the Sydney Cricket Ground. The first, a sacred and classical one, is to take place on Christmas night, when the ground will be brilliantly illuminated with electric light, and the well-known acoustic properties of the grand stand will enable beautiful music and singing to be heard to advantage.

Miss Kate Bishop will play the "Waldstein" sonata and works by Chopin, Liszt, and Saint Saens at the Y.M.C.A. Hall this evening. Vocal assistance will be rendered by Messrs. Riemenschneider and W. Sutton, and Carl Gotsch will play 'cello solos. The plan is at Paling's.

Mr. George Greene's pupils will give their annual invitation recital in the Y.M.C.A. Hall to-morrow evening. They will be assisted in their programme by Messrs. Cyril Monk (violin) and Walter Thotman (piano). The plan is at Paling's.

Mr. Sid MacDonald's complimentary concert, to be given in the Town Hall on next Saturday evening, has aroused much public interest. Nearly one thousand reserved seats have been taken, and the sale of lower-priced tickets has been also very large. The young tenor will sing four times, and will be well assisted by other favourites. The plan is at Paling's.

Lady King-Hall will distribute medals and certificates won at the annual examination of the Associated Board of the Royal College and Royal Academy of Music, London, on next Monday afternoon, at the Town Hall. Sir Wm. M'Millan will preside, and a brief musical programme will be given. The public are invited to be present.

A pleasant social evening was spent by the "Walter Bentley" Players on Monday evening, at the studio, 554 George-street, with music, recitations, and light refreshments. It was decided to hold a picnic on December 15. About 60 members were present. The club will meet again in the new year on January 13.

The Railway and Tramway Musical Society are producing "Dorothy" at the Railway Institute on December 3, 4, 5, and 7 next. Included in the cast will be Miss Lynn Mills, as Dorothy, Mr. Reg. Riemenschneider as Geoffrey Wilder, and Mr. Harry Perfect as Lurcher, supported by full chorus and orchestra. Mrs. Fred. England is stage manager. The plan is at Paling's.

The city organist will give an organ recital at the Town Hall at 3.15 this afternoon, when he will perform a choice programme of beautiful pieces by Beethoven and Grieg.

OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

An exciting programme is presented this week by the management of Spencer's Pictures, at the Lyceum. The chief feature is a dramatic story in film form of a fall of a great financier during a crisis. The play is in three acts, and is a vivid revelation of modern money methods. The excitement is intense, and is sustained up to the very moment of the supreme crisis, while the realism of the panic-infused scenes on the Stock Exchange is such that one seems actually to hear the shouts of the frenzied crowd.

Among the numerous interesting films exhibited by West's management at the Olympia and Glaciarium is a picture-drama entitled "The Child Stealers," an extraordinary story of Parisian life. Its interest is heightened by the fact that it deals not only with the "apaches" and other inhabitants of the Paris slums, but presents a striking contrast with its scenes of a society which may well be that of the Faubourg St. Germain. The vividness of the presentation and the swift dramaticism with which the story draws to its inevitable close are remarkable. De Groen's Vice-regal orchestra is also an attraction.

The chief feature of the programme now on view at the Crystal Palace is, of course, the great 3lm. "The Massacre," but a bright series of humorous and dramatic pictures accompanies it. Williams' Weekly gives an excellent budget of the week's news, including the Bakers' Picnic, the Funeral of Mr. Justice O'Connor, and the Australian Naval Cadets' sports. Some fine views of the recent review of the senior cadets in Melbourne by the Governor-General are also shown, while Volta, the human dynamo, continues to mystify hundreds daily by lighting candles with his finger ends, and similar uncanny feats.

Large audiences are flocking daily to the three theatres controlled by the J. D. Williams management, where attractive programmes are being screened. At the Lyric the star story is "Cinderella," in which the fairy magic is rivalled by the marvels of the cinematograph. At the Colonial Theatre the principal attraction is "The Masked Sisterhood," a mysterious and thrilling drama of feud and intrigue; while at the Empress Theatre a strong programme of humorous and dramatic films culminates in "Burning Love and Flaming Hate," which is full of interest and excitement.

The management of the American Picture Picture in Pitt-street is presenting a strong programme this week. Among the most popular and interesting features now being shown are "The Lady Detective," and "Lord and Peasant," a pathetic love tragedy.

The management of the Vice-Regal Rink will, this evening, hold its first fancy, poster, and evening dress carnival, when the skating enclosure will be so canopied with variegated illuminations as to give it the air of a Continental fete. The Grand March Picture will be included in the programme. "A Night in Yokohama" is announced for Wednesday next.

VIEWS OF NORTHERN TERRITORY.

The Minister for External Affairs has arranged that the series of photographic views of the Northern Territory taken by the official photographer shall be reproduced at West's Olympia Theatre, Oxford-street, Paddington, next Monday afternoon. Those interested in the Northern Territory are invited to apply for complimentary tickets to the Chamber of Manufactures.

D. HENRY STEWART'S PUPILS.

The ninth annual recital by the pupils from the studio of Mr. D. Henry Stewart took place last evening at St. James's Hall, which was crowded. The pupils showed considerable ability, and evidence of careful training. Standing out among the pupils was the performance of Mr. Leslie Marshall, who earned unstinted applause for his masterly execution of Liszt's Rhapsodie No. 5. Miss Bella Stewart was also successful, in conjunction with Mr. D. Henry Stewart, in some of the latter's own compositions.

The pupils were assisted by Mr. Robert Stroie, Miss Nelly Rouxel, Mr. Percy Wharton (accompanist), and Miss Rene Chapman, and Mr. E. Parkinson, who excellently acted scene 5 from "Romeo and Juliet," and the Portia scene. The prizes won during the year were distributed during the interval by the Lord Mayor.

WILD WEST AMUSEMENTS.

The big Wild West amusement display that had to be postponed last Saturday on account of the heavy rains, will take place on the Sports Ground next Saturday afternoon. The programme will include [illegible] rodeing, buckjumping competitions, pony riding for [illegible], bullock riding, buffalo riding, Indian burr [illegible] riding, handling wild cattle, Australian v any other style, and "Fun in a Stockyard." A challenge [illegible] contest for £50 a side between J. Mulvaney, of Gundagai, and G. H. Jamieson, late of Wirth Bros.' Wild West Show, will also take place.

MISS MIRRIE SOLOMON'S CONCERT.

There should have been a larger attendance at Miss Mirrie Solomon's concert at the Y.M.C.A. Hall last night than was vouchsafed by music-lovers, who, perhaps, scarcely realise the genuine talent which inspires the compositions of this bright young pianist. Her manner is essentially modern, showing an intimate connection between the lyrics and the music that springs from them. Most frequently she aims at creating an "atmosphere" rather than a continuous musical theme, so that, at her best, her song compositions bear a resemblance to those of Mallinson. There were, in all about 24 separate compositions from her pen presented last evening, of which only a few had been heard before, so that the programme cannot be followed in great detail. Miss Eva Pitt, an amateur soprano, sang with some expression three graceful "Indian Songs" in one group, two love-songs, and the Oriental "Suttee." Mr. Nelson Illingworth, whose vocal style is frequently rough, showed improvement in the tragic "A Lament," and in the emotional "Passion Flower" again proved in sympathy. Miss Daisy Sweet sang in all six numbers. In "Sweet Wind that Blows," with its rhythmical accompaniment and a good deal of repetition in the vocal theme, the contralto with the ample voice would have been more effective had her interpretation showed tenderness; but she gave a telling rendering of the clever and original "My Star," the rapid enunciation of which was neatly achieved. After "Rest," the contralto sang admirably as encore "Music," the beautiful accompaniment to which was fairly played by Mr. Harold Whittle. This song was one of the memorable successes of the evening. Miss Mirrie Solomon played a clever "Rhapsody" in three movements (second piano, Mr. Harold Whittle), which we should like to hear with orchestra, and other original competitions; and joined with Mr. Alfred Hill in the latter's well-known Maori Sonata for violin and piano.

MISS DAPHNE AKHURST'S CONCERT.

Miss May Fetherston organised a first-rate musical entertainment last night in honour of her brilliant little pupil, Daphne Akhurst, and Concordia Hall was densely crowded. A vexatious delay occurred in starting, and it was 8.20 before Mr. Hector O. Fleming raised his baton for the harmonised arrangement of Nevin's popular song, "The Rosary." This was delivered with richness of tone by the ladies of the St. Cecilia Choir, who then responded to the enthusiasm with an extra number. Little Daphne Akhurst, a child-pianist with a remarkable aptitude for the instrument, played Dussek's "La Matinee" with a brightness and fluency which properly reflected the freshness and gaiety of the little piece; and as encore added with considerable expression for one so young Rex de Cairos Rego's "Nocturne." Daphne was especially brilliant in Benjamin Godard's "Valse Chromatique," and the extra value as encore again showed the precocious little player at her best. On each occasion heaps of flowers and a generous profusion of gifts were handed her during protracted enthusiasm; and in the second part, tired by so much excitement, her playing was less spontaneous. Mr. W. J. Coad introduced Sgambatti's "Serenata Napoletana," with passages alternately "pizzicato" and "con arco," and the employment of a broken rhythm which, in conjunction with the artist's effective rendering, proved pleasantly charming. Mr. Sid. Macdonald proved in full voice in Tosti's "My Dreams," adding "Myrtha" (Clutsam) as encore. The tenor also joined with Miss Florrie Fetherston, a lyric soprano, with a sympathetic voice of high range, in Lurantoni's well-known duet, "A Night in Venice," in which the ensemble was both tuneful and well-balanced. Mr. Lawrence Campbell, after "Lichtenberg" recited as encore "With Eliza," in which his humorous and emotional touches of character delighted the audience. Mr. Ernest Truman accompanied the soloists with skill.

MOSMAN MUSICAL SOCIETY.

Balfe's opera, "The Bohemian Girl," so well known, yet now almost forgotten, was revived last evening at the Warringa Hall, Neutral Bay, by the Mosman Musical Society. The arrangements were in the hands of the honorary secretary, Mr. A. Langford, and a word of praise must be given to the excellence of the stage management. A strong chorus, both in numbers and voices, was effectively garbed in all the picturesqueness of gipsy costume, while the scenery was pretty, and chosen with an eye to the proportions of the stage. The orchestra, under Mr. A. H. Norman, proved occasionally too loud for the performers, but as a rule they ably assisted in carrying the opera, with its graceful, old-fashioned melodies, through with unflagging élan and vivacity. Of the cast the best was easily Mr. Thomas Midelton, as Devilshoof, whose acting and singing were equally commendable. His gipsy costume was remarkably complete, even to the Malay kris in his girdle. Miss Muriel Barton, too, as the Gipsy Queen, sustained her part well, displaying a good voice, dramatically employed; while Miss Annie Davidson made a graceful and convincing figure in the role of Arline. Mr. W. R. Beattie rendered the part of Count Arnheim with appropriate pathos; while Mr. Leslie B. Hoskins was effective as Thaddeus. Mr. Ernest Archer played the part of the foppish Florestein with humour, and Miss N. Sabe was successful in that of Buda. The part of Arline in the first act was taken by little Miss Florence James. Misses Ella Eggert, Celia Bell, Nellie Langford, Madge Scott, Myrie Aylward, and Priscilla Miller executed several graceful dances. The piece will be continued nightly until November 30.

A general strike is threatened by the timber workers, because the companies will not concede an advance to 9/6 a day.

PERTH HOSPITAL MANAGEMENT.

The Perth Hospital Board some time ago decided to ask for the resignation of the resident medical officer, the secretary, and the matron, and to call for applications from the eastern States to fill the vacancies. The medical officer and the secretary having appealed to the Government, the Premier has consented to hold a special inquiry. The hospital board is quite agreeable that the Public Service Commissioner shall inquire into the complaint made by the medical officer and secretary, that their dismissal points to conspiracy and intrigue. The board, however, objects to a special inquiry into matters which it has already investigated.

ARRIVALS IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

FREMANTLE, Teusdry.

The Belgic, which arrived on Saturday, brought 640 new settlers to Western Australia. The new arrivals, particularly those who travelled on assisted passages, appear to be a bright, healthy lot, of the right type. All told, there were 1450 souls who came to swell Australia's population. About 10 per cent. of them are assisted, and hail from the lowlands of Scotland and the English provinces.

so that we might have room to tell you all the reasons why you should buy "Robur" Tea. Anyhow, we've room to tell you it is pure tea—it is strong tea—it is nice tea, and that it is very saving tea, also that every package contains full weight.

For everyday "high class" family use we recommend the No. 1 grade. It has a deliciously refreshing flavour, and is wonderfully saving tea to use. If your grocer doesn't happen to stock it, ask him to get it for you.

FIRE ON A STEAMER.

Before the New Zealand Shipping Co., Ltd.'s, steamer Wakanui left Montreal for Australia on her last trip a fire broke out amongst portion of the cargo. The fire was confined to No. 4 hold, where a large number of rolls of printing paper were stored. Attempts were made to extinguish the outbreak by means of the chemical apparatus kept on board, but hoses had to be brought to bear on the fire before it was suppressed. The affected cargo was taken out of the hold and reloaded before the Wakanui left Montreal. The steamer arrived here on Sunday last.

COLLISION AT THE HEADS.

The small wooden steamer Kallawatta, belonging to J. W. Laughton, while passing through the Heads on Monday night, during the heavy hailstorm, bumped a deep-sea steamer. The weather was very thick at the time, and it was impossible to distinguish the other boat. The stem of the Kallawatta was damaged well above the water-line, and she was taken to Morrison and Sinclair's yard for repairs.

In Algiers a military aeroplane has been set to the uses of peace. In a skirmish with the Touaregs, Colonel Largeot was mortally wounded. The officer sought the services of a priest, but there was no priest with the column. Then the military aviator, Lieut. Bregar, asked and obtained from his superior officer permission to fly to Laghuat, 150 miles away, where a certain Order had a residence. Within five hours' time a priest was at the bedside of the dying man.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

During the past 24 hours the different pressure systems have undergone a considerable change. The antarctic disturbance, which yesterday just touched the fringe of our coast, has moved rapidly to the south-east, and at 9 a.m. was to the south of the Bluff, New Zealand.

The high pressure has worked eastward to the extent of 600 miles, and is responsible for the decided cool change over the State generally.

A rather marked monsoonal tongue is shown over Queensland, extending as far south as our north-eastern districts, but so far it has not resulted in any change.

Another very well defined disturbance in the form of a closed curve depression is over Western Australia, with its centre between Southern Cross and Cue. Southerly winds and cloudy weather, with some showers, should rub along the coast for another day, but inland the winds will veer to northerly, and temperatures should rise.

Ocean Forecasts:—Squally on parts of New South Wales coast; fresh in the western bight.

MINING IN THE NORTH.

AN INSPECTOR APPOINTED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Thomas) announced to-day that Mr. T. G. Oliver had been appointed mining inspector in the Northern Territory, at a salary of £500 a year. Mr. Oliver left on Monday to take up his new duties. He would be an assistant to Mr. Jensen, the geologist. Mr. Jensen had asked that Mr. Oliver should first go to the Herberton tin district, in Queensland, and inspect the plant there, in view of the development of Horseshoe Creek, in the Territory. He (the Minister) was at Horseshoe Creek, and had been asked whether he would agree to establish a tin concentrating plant there. It only had at present a plant that was old and out of date. He promised that if the report were favourable he would consider the proposal. The fact that Mr. Jensen had now referred to the possible developments of the Horseshoe Creek district showed that he must have a favourable impression of the district. Mr. Jensen had gone to the Bamboola district to inspect the country.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

SHOT IN THE FOREHEAD.

INDIAN HAWKER WOUNDED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The police at Pomborneit are trying to discover the whereabouts of a man who, it is alleged, fired at and wounded an Indian hawker named Dava Singh. The injury is not dangerous.

Singh told the police that a compatriot, who was his mate, was abused by a man earlier in the evening. Later, while Singh was lying in his vehicle, he heard two discharges from a shot gun, which had been fired at the wagon. Singh looked out of the conveyance to see who was shooting, and a pellet from the third discharge wounded him in the forehead.

CLOSE SEASON FOR FISH.

WAGGA, Tuesday.

It has been noted that fish are more abundant in the market of Wagga during the close season of October and November than at any other period of the year. The reason is said to be that the fish are more active in the breeding season, and that professional fishermen carry on operations without regard for the law. At the police court, as a result of the visit of an inspector, a number of persons were prosecuted for using nets, traps, and more than one line, as permitted by regulations. Fines were imposed in each case, and the nets found in the waters ordered to be confiscated.

IN THE LONGROOM.

"Agent" writes:—

Sir,—Among many others I have received a request from the Comptroller-General of Customs, through the Sydney Collector, to tender him such "constructive criticism" as may assist him to extricate his department from the deplorable state of chaos into which it has fallen. This is surely a melancholy comment on his own administration. For years merchants have complained through your columns of the maladministration of the Sydney Customs, and if the Comptroller does not know how to remedy the defects that exist there now, he never will. In 1905 the internal and external relationships of the department were about as bad as they could be. In March, 1906, Dr. Wollaston was commissioned by the Ministry to institute an inquiry into the cause of our constant complaints. He was stationed in Sydney for two months, and whom he would he sent for and whom he wouldn't he did not send for to give evidence. Merchants thought that some permanent change for the better might result, but what could be expected from such an inquiry? Nothing short of a properly constituted commission will bring to light the causes of the rottenness of the administration of this department, from which the merchants have suffered for years. It is all very well for the Customs clerks to meet and formulate schemes for the advice of the Collector and Comptroller-General, while the Minister and the Chamber of Commerce stand idly by. I wish the clerks every success in their efforts at reform, but unless they can secure a properly constituted inquiry their efforts will be fruitless.

AUSTRALASIAN TEMPERANCE AND GENERAL.

The report of the above society for the 12 months ended September 30 shows that 10,262 policies were issued in the ordinary department, assuring £1,051,636 and 56,660 in the industrial department, assuring £2,393,044. The total income of the society now exceeds £400000. The funds have increased by £174,065, while £132,000 was distributed during the year over 4000 policyholders. The rate of interest earned was £4 11s per cent. The report states: "The growth of taxation is becoming alarmingly burdensome, and policyholders would do well to take steps to check these legislative encroachments on their savings."

BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

The report of the above institution for the six months ended September 30 shows a net profit of £214,023, to which being added £85,815, brought forward, made £299,838 available for distribution. The directors recommend a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, absorbing £150,000, adding £65,000 to the reserve fund, and carrying £84,838 forward. The following comparison of the deposits, advances, and profits of the bank over a series of years may be made:—

The report was adopted by the shareholders at yesterday's meeting, the president making use of a striking phrase—"the spending impulse"—as in part accounting for the heavy imports.

COATS' COTTON PRICES.

The directors of J. and P. Coats, Ltd., have now intimated that the scheme for the maintenance of minimum prices for their thread has been finally adopted. The scheme, in the first place, is to apply to Coats', Clark's, and Chadwick's six-cord sewing cotton, which represented the bulk of the company's trade. The wholesale prices fixed are subject to 15 per cent. trade and 3¾ per cent. cash discount. Government or public institution contracts are to be subject to a discount of 10 per cent. The Central Agency, which is the distributive organisation of the combine, will discontinue to supply goods where it is proved that the prices have been "cut." The trade, on the other hand, is not to sell competitive goods at a smaller margin of profit than that fixed for Central Agency goods.

The Balmain New Ferry Company, Ltd., has increased its capital to £100,000, by the creation of 50,000 new shares of £1 each.

Harding and Billing, Ltd., is being wound up, and Mr. H. T. Harding has been appointed liquidator.

At yesterday's wool sales 10,829 bales were offered and 10,455 bales sold, including 397 bales disposed of privately.

The market ruled very firm, greasies realising to /15 and scoureds to /22¼.

The Commonwealth Government has lent £6,580,000 at interest to the State Governments during the last couple of years. This is made up as follows:—New South Wales, £3,150,000; Victoria, £980,000, the face value of debentures being £1,000,000; Queensland, £1,000,000; South Australia, £100,000; Western Australia, £850,000; and Tasmania, £500,000.

Twelve boxes of gold valued at £18,000 have been shipped by Chinese merchants in the s.s. Yawata Maru sailing to-day for China.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

CORNSACKS NOT SO STRONG.

Cornsacks were not so strong yesterday. The advance to 7/ per dozen had the effect of considerably checking sales. It was recognised that sellers had been too precipitant, and accordingly, some holders reduced their quotation to 6/10½. At this price business came back again, and a large number of bales was sold to storekeepers. This price ruled ex store, or ex Ula, now unloading. Some sellers still asked 7/, and they were content to wait for the market to come up to them. No parcel business of any consequence was done. Four hundred bales, however, were despatched to Melbourne, where merchants would buy still more were the sacks available, as the Melbourne quotation was considerably higher than Sydney value. Branbags were quiet at 6/7½, with a steady demand. Woolpacks had business at 2/9½.

Metals were dull. There was no inclination for any speculation, and large business between houses was at a standstill. Parcel sales reported were only to fill immediate requirements, pending the arrival of shipments. No. 10 American black wire was difficult to procure. The commodity was in short supply, and as it cannot be laid down here at the late ruling rates above which buyers were unwilling to go, no transaction was noted. Wire netting was distributing more freely, and galvanised iron was also in request, especially on the northern rivers. Tinplates had no quotation under 17/. The lowest price at which they could be landed on Monday's cable quotation was 17/5 per case. Cement was offering at 14/ in large parcels, but for distributing lots the market was firm at 15/.

Oils had a fair distributing trade at the quoted prices. For first brands of linseed one or two houses asked a penny above the quotations. The sale of 1903 gallons of Meggitt's raw and boiled oil was reported. Eighteen tons of linseed cake was also sold. The convention price of white-lead was unaltered at £27/10/, f.o.b., which would be equal to a landed cost of £36/10/. It was at this latter price that second hands were sold to storekeepers. Champions, which had a higher importing cost, sold at £38/10/ in distributing lots. Parcels were selling at £1 under.

At the tea auction and privately yesterday 700 packages of Java were sold. There was fair competition, and the prices realised up to /8 were better than at the previous auction of Javas. There was an improved inquiry for medium and good Ceylons and the trade was recognising that it would have to buy soon if it were not going to be left at the end of the year. The last Ceylon sale of the year will be held on December 17, instead of continuing to the close, as last year. This is a clear indication that tea plucking is not proceeding on such an extensive scale as a year ago. Local sales included 400 packages of Ceylons up to 1/0½.

Sales of imported timber continue on a large scale. Oregon sales were last week credited with about five million super feet for Australia, and considerably more business is pending at full rates. Arrivals during November have been rather heavier than usual, owing to shipments, which in some cases should have reached here sooner, being more or less bunched together. Baltic freights have advanced, 80/ to 85/ per standard being paid, as against 60/ to 67/6 a week ago. Sellers are looking for a further advance.

THE DIAMOND CONVENTION.

A private telegram to the "Berliner Tageblatt" states that the De Beers Company and the Premier Diamond Company have extended the recently-concluded price convention so as to form a general convention. The object in view is to obtain a control over the whole of the diamond trade, in order particularly to obviate operations in the international diamond trade during the present troubled times.

BREADSTUFFS.

PROMPT WHEAT FIRMER.

As regards new wheat for prompt delivery higher prices were paid yesterday. Millers bought at 4/2, but the quantity was not large. Old wheat was quoted at 4/8. Mid-December wheat was offering at 3/9½. The local market was quickly adjusting itself to easier conditions brought about by the fall in values overseas. Shippers reduced their limits to 3/2½ and 3/3 to the grower for January-February delivery, equal to 3/7 and 3/7½ ex trucks Sydney, but 3/7 was the more general offering. Even this price was at least 1d above the Sydney parity of the London market. It was still the influence of the short sellers which kept the market above that parity. Very little was being obtained from the country.

Flour had a steady business, the convention prices being £9/10/ and £9/7/6 for city and country brands respectively.

LIVE STOCK SALES.

WEST MAITLAND, Tuesday.

J. G. Martham held a special sale of horses at Campbell's Hill yards to-day. There was a good attendance of buyers. Competition was keen, and the market slightly improved. The yardings comprised 200 head of all descriptions. Heavy draughts realised £32 to £37, light draughts £23 to £30, light harness sorts £10 to £20, ponies, best, £14 to £22; others, £8 to £12.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 26,000 fat sheep were yarded. The supply was well suited to trade requirements, consisting chiefly of good and prime crossbreds, with an increased proportion of wethers. Best merino wethers, however, continued scarce, while moderately fat and useful grade merino ewes were largely represented. The market opened practically unchanged, but as sales progressed gradually hardened to improved rates. Numerous pens of good character crossbred ewes were freely purchased by graziers. Quotations: Prime crossbred wethers from 17/ to 19/3, few higher, good ditto ditto from 15/6 to 16/6, second and lighter from 13/ to 14/9; prime crossbred ewes from 14/3 to 19/, extra to 18/, good ditto ditto from 13/ to 14/, seconds from 9/6 to 11/6, old and inferior from 8/; best merino wethers from 15/6 to 16/3, good from 13/ to 15/, seconds from 11/ to 12/6, inferior from 8/6, best merino ewes from 10/9 to 12/, good from 8/ to 10/; others from 5/.

QUIET AND STEADY.

A good steady business was transacted in Sussex-street yesterday. The reduction in the quotation for butter has had a beneficial effect upon sales, both for local consumption and for export. It was stated that in New Zealand there is almost a complete absence of speculative buying. Factories are slowly but surely beginning to realise that their dreams of /12½ or /13 for early shipments have no chance of realisation, and are becoming reconciled to the certainty of a lower average of values. The milk supply in many districts has suffered by reason of the boisterous weather. Within another week or two many of the big factories will go on to cheese-making. This will naturally mean a shortening of exports.

Cheese was in fairly good demand at the reduced rate of from /7¼ to /7½ per lb. The big grocers were still holding off the market. Cables from London indicate that the home make continues large, while Montreal letters are to the effect that the Canadian autumn output was considerably ahead of that of last year. In addition the stored stocks are also said to be heavier. With this information available it certainly looks as if the consumptive demand at the late range of prices has decreased, and that there will be more cheese offering in the United Kingdom during the next four or five months than can be sold at advantage.

There was no sign of improvement in the bacon position. Stocks of ordinary qualities were heavy, and concessions were being given on the published rates. Sides were in better demand than any other class of meat. This was no doubt due to grocers requiring the hams for their Christmas hamper clubs. Agents handling the special brands continued to ask last week's high levels.

There was no movement in eggs. Supplies have now begun to fall off in earnest, and it is thought that the market will gain strength with the passing of each day. Pastry cooks were again inquiring for case varieties, and a good business was booked at from /11 to 1/ per dozen, according to quality. New-laid suburban were in average demand at from 1/0½ to 1/2 per dozen. Duck eggs were quoted at from /11 to 1/.

Mr. D. J. Evans, secretary of the Queensland Cheese Manufacturers' Association, writes:—

In your dairy produce report in last Saturday's issue, you mentioned that there was a rumour that the Queensland cheese market had collapsed, and prices were in the neighbourhood of 6d and 6½d.

I have pleasure in advising that there is no truth whatsoever in the rumour. All the leading brands are still quoted at 6½d and 7½d for large and loaf respectively, new make. Matured cheese is unobtainable. After the recent rains, milk supplies increased, but not nearly as much as was expected.

The s.s. Ayrshire, sailing December 20, will take 1200 cases of Queensland cheese to London on consignment. This will considerably ease increasing stocks.

Current quotations were:—

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

A FEATURELESS MARKET.

The business transacted in forage and grain was uninteresting. Potatoes were in brisk request at unaltered levels. Monday's shipment from the Clarence had nearly all been cleared. The few remaining lots were in firm hands at £11 per ton. A fresh shipment of 3000 bags of New Zealand tubers is expected to be available for to-day's market.

Chaff moved out freely at the previous day's rates. Victorian wheaten or oaten was in strong hands at from £6 to £6/5/ per ton. For prime Adelaide wheaten up to £6/15/ was asked.

There was a more healthy feeling in onions. The Clan Campbell discharged 250 bags of Victorian Silverskins, and as the quality was good agents were able to secure £8 per ton for the best samples. The same steamer also landed a few cases of Globes. These were also commanding £8.

Only 30 half bales of lucerne hay were received from the Hunter River. Prices were unaltered.

At the firewood auction 21 truckloads were put under the hammer. There was no change in values.

RAILWAY MARKET.

GLUT IN CHAFF.

Both lines were fully occupied again yesterday, when 97 fresh trucks were placed in position. There was an over-average crowd to seal the fate of consignments, but the chaff glut took any spirit out of business, consequently a dragging sale is reported. Auctioneers had to force all they knew, and the whistle was much in evidence.

Of the 97 lots offered, chaff comprised 77, nearly all of which were wheaten. It is difficult to quote the market ruling for chaff yesterday. It chopped about for various descriptions. Perhaps an case of from 5/ to 7/6 covers it. Hay did not alter abnormally. It was a point or two firmer. Wheat was unchanged.

Marthaguy wheaten chaff sold for 6/3. Very few lots were reserved. A couple of trucks of Ganmain oaten went at 5/9. Tamworth lucerne chaff realised 6/8. Green and brown lucerne hay in big bales changed hands at 4/, 4/5 twice, and 4/6 twice; and in small bales at 5/4, 5/6, and 5/7.

FRUIT MARKET.

AMERICAN APPLES.

The Marama came alongside with a shipment of 5000 cases of American apples. The quality was up to the average of recent consignments. Heavy sales were booked at from 15/ to 17/6 per case. Monday's shipment from Tasmania was also available. Supplies of stone fruit showed a substantial increase, and values were a fraction easier all-round. Saturday's storm has played havoc with many of the orchards, and "wind-falls" were exceptionally plentiful.

Current quotations were:—

The market ruled firm at late rates for most descriptions, although there was at times some hesitancy in the bidding for faulty skirtings. Scoureds were in strong demand at late rates. Greasy wool sold to /15 and scoureds to /22¼.

Winchcombe, Carson, Ltd., offered a catalogue comprising a number of super lines in attractive condition, with many parcels showing a tender and thin staple. In the grease the highest price was /14½, paid for nine b w of A/Hume (Burrowa), a wellbred wool of fine quality, good length, and light condition. FIRES.

BRIGADE'S BUSY MORNING.

The fire brigades had a busy time yesterday morning.

A fire which broke out in Young's-chambers, at the corner of Pitt and Park streets, destroyed the third floor of the building, and its contents. The floor was occupied by the Adelaide Photograph Co. The damage is estimated at £500.

Varnish boiling over was the cause of an outbreak of fire at Joyce Bros., Ltd., varnish works, Coward-street, Mascot. The local brigade extinguished the flames with one hydrant. The building, which was of brick and iron, was partly burnt out.

A fire was started at the sawmills and joinery works of W. F. Foster and Co., 122 and 124 Morehead-street, Redfern, through tar boiling over. Before the outbreak could be extinguished a quantity of tar was destroyed, and the rear of the factory, together with the back gates, were damaged by fire.

COPPER DOWN—SHARES AFFECTED.

BARRIERS VARIABLE.

GOLD AND TIN STEADY, BUT QUIET.

A further decline of 15/ in the price of copper—bringing it back to £76/17/6—did not have a good effect upon a market that has shown a lack of activity for several days past. On top of this was the fact that the "middle" quotations of the London Stock Exchange on Monday evinced an easing tendency in several copper and silver stocks.

Despite this fact, however, a fair amount of business was transacted. It certainly was slightly larger than that recorded on the morning of the previous day.

In the silver division Broken Hill Junction North opened with very firm sales at 19/9, but subsequently the price eased to 19/4½. On the other hand, Broken Hill Junctions (ord.) commanded firm support at 8/8, with buyers still unsupplied at that figure. British Broken Hill (old) eased a fraction. In the stocks not dealt in, an easier feeling was noticeable in the quotations for Broken Hill Souths and North Broken Hill, but Broken Hill Block 10 were not mentioned at either the morning or noon "calls."

On the other hand, both classes of Zinc Corporation shares were firmly held, whilst there were inquiries for Amalgamated Zinc, but no declared sellers. New Burragorang (Yarranderie) were called for, but sellers were undeclared. Steady offers at the previous day's sale rate were made for Radium Hill (old), with sellers quoting wide.

The decline in the price of copper, together with the easier tendency of the London Stock Exchange quotations on Monday, was followed by an easier feeling locally. Hampdens sold back to 51/6, the previous day's rate being 52/4½. Mount Elliotts changed hands at £7/16/6, as against £7/19/; whilst Mount Lyells eased from 23/6 to 22/10½. The one stock that disclosed a sound position was Mount Morgans. Very fair offers were also made for Wallaroo and Moonta, and Chillagoes.

In gold stock, business on sound lines was recorded in Occidental (Cobar), with Bullfinch Proprietary, and Chaffers also dealt in. In tin stocks, Bourke's Hill Tin eased a fraction. Good offers were made for Tongkah Compound, but holders quoted wide. Tongkah Harbour was in request, but sellers quoted widely.

The position of affairs was not materially altered as the result of the business recorded during the afternoon. In the copper division Mount Morgans commanded firm support. Hampdens repeated the easier price reached early in the day, whilst Wallaroo and Moonta sagged a fraction. The buying offers for Mount Elliotts hardened materially at the afternoon call, and resulted in business at a fairly sound figure, though still 2/ under the previous sale recorded earlier in the week.

In the case of silver shares business on sound lines was recorded in B.H. Junctions, ordinary and preference; but B.H. Junction North repeated the easier sales of the morning. B.H. Souths (contg.) also receded a fraction, whilst the quotations for other Barriers were practically unchanged. The gold division was represented by sound business in Occidental (Cobar), with Brilliant Deep also improving materially. In tin shares Tongkah Compound sold strongly at 51/, with Bourke's Hill Tin easing a shade. A sale of Radium Hill (old) was reported at £23.

A rumour was current late yesterday afternoon that developments of a satisfactory character had attended diamond drill boring in the Broken Hill South mine. A private telegram from Broken Hill stated that excellent ore 48ft wide had been proved by bore No. 80.

TASMANIAN COPPER COMPANY.

ANNUAL MEETING.

THE NEW SMELTING AGREEMENT.

LAUNCESTON, Tuesday.

The annual meeting of the Tasmanian Copper Company was held last night, Senator Clemons presiding. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, said that the Metals Extraction Company was bound to take deliveries of the Tasmanian Copper Company's ore from November 1, and would commence smelting operations on January 1. The contract with the Metals Extraction Company was better than the Tasmanian Copper Company had ever had. On ore worth 70/ per ton the company was to receive 47/6 per ton, irrespective of the price of metals. Deliveries during November and December would be at the rate of 300 tons per week, from January to March 150 tons were to be treated, and 150 tons delivered, after which 300 tons per week would be treated. Under this contract the company would receive 9/9 more than it had under any previous contract. The directors had also been looking round for the possibility of another process, and there was now at Broken Hill, under the guidance of the general manager of the Zinc Corporation and Bewick, Moreing, and Co., a flotation process which would profitably treat Tasmanian Copper Company's ore. He predicted a most successful future for the Tasmanian Copper Company, feeling certain that the Metals Extraction Company's process would prove successful.

Mr. Bowes Kelly said he did not believe the process would be a success. Why was Mr. Evans, who erected the plant, leaving before it had a trial?

The chairman: He is going on six months' leave, and returning to Rosebery at a higher salary. The plant already had a trial run, and is satisfactory. Mr. Evans is not the metallurgist.

The motion was carried. Mr. E. M. King was re-elected a director of the local board, and Mr. F. L. Cox, of the London board. Messrs. L. Tulloch, W. Martin, and C. Dempster were also nominated as directors.

The chairman said this was a deliberate attempt to obliterate him and Messrs. King and Barclay from a say in the control of the company, as these three, if elected, would, with Mr. Bowes Kelly, have power to do what they liked. The motion for the appointment of an additional director was declared lost.

ANTI-TRUST PROSECUTIONS.

THE SUGAR TRADE.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The hearing of the proceedings brought by the Crown against the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, the Merchants' Association, and other companies, for breaches of the Commercial Trust Act was continued.

The Attorney-General read much correspondence, with the object of showing that the nomination forms for the firms to get discount were drawn up by the Sugar Company. A ring of some 90 persons, said the Attorney-General, divided the sum of £29,088 7s in the period of twelve months in the way of discount. Knowing the amount of discount and the rate they could draw, the inference was that the amount of sugar purchased by the ring was £605,000 worth in the year. In the same period Fairbairn, Wright, and Co. purchased £126,000 worth. These two totals aggregate £731,000, which, it was contended, was the total output of the Sugar Company, except for special contract supplies for brewers, etc. The Merchants' Association practically got the control of the whole output of the Sugar Company. The only buyers they were unable to squeeze out were Fairbairn, Wright, and Co.

The hearing is proceeding.

"TWILIGHT LEAGUE."

NEW INSTITUTION FORMED.

HOME FOR EDUCATED WOMEN.

A large number of ladies met yesterday in the Lady Mayoress's rooms, in the Town Hall, to consider a proposal to establish an association to be known as the Twilight League, for the purpose of maintaining a home for educated women whose age had necessitated their giving up their former profession. Miss Florence Clarke, Lady Mayoress, was in the chair.

Various speakers dwelt upon the desirability of such a home, and the unhappy circumstances which too often surrounded the declining years of elderly ladies of small incomes. Mrs. Mackinnon moved that the meeting express its sympathy with the proposal, and that those present should pledge themselves to help forward the movement as far as possible, which was seconded by Mrs. Swift. A committee, moved by Mrs. C. Walker, Mayoress of North Sydney, and seconded by Miss Rose Scott, was formed, and it included Miss Clarke, Lady Cullen, Lady Carruthers, Miss Rose Scott, Mrs. C. Walker, Miss Sutherland, Miss Bedham, Mesdames Yuill, J. U. Maclean, Goodlet, Newman, Swift, A. H. Austin, E. J. Carter, Neville Mayman, E. C. V. Broughton, Innes Noad, R. J. Lukey Miss Montefiore, and Miss Compton Legge. Miss Liggins and Mrs. Waugh were appointed respectively secretary and treasurer pro tem.

Mrs. Mackinnon said that she had found that the working women were always caring for others. The case of the aged mother, the younger children, and so on, always fell, not on the married members of the family, who went their own gait, but on the patient, hard-working daughter, who contributed to the support of the rest out of her own small earnings. The home would provide each woman with a room, at a rent of from 10s to 15s a month, of which she would be absolute mistress. One good meal daily at cost price would be provided. She hoped eventually to see the home established where there was sufficient space for each of the inmates to have her own little garden plot.

Miss Rose Scott said that she knew of elderly women who were practically dependent on the old-age pension. If the members of Parliament were raising their own salaries, she thought they might raise the old-age pension. (Laughter and applause.)

A discussion took place concerning the proposed name for the home, several ladies objecting that "Twilight" conveyed a too melancholy suggestion. The names "Sunshine Home," "Florence Clarke Home," and "Hunter Home," the last after the name of Madame Hunter, to whom the origin of the scheme is due, were proposed, and the question was finally left in abeyance until a later stage.

CITY COUNCIL ELECTIONS.

NOMINATIONS CLOSE TO-DAY.

Nominations for the 26 seats in the City Council close at noon to-day. Up to last evening something like 40 nominations had been lodged, so that electors will be offered a large choice of representatives; too large, in fact, for the independent vote will be split in at least four wards, and it is not at all unlikely that the Labour pairs, with their solid following, will capture the seats in some of those cases, in addition to those they already hold, and several more they may gain. So far there are only the two candidates, Aldermen Cocks, M.L.A., and Jones, nominated for Lang Ward. Just why they are enjoying immunity from attack, seeing that officially-branded labour candidates would certainly have better prospects in that ward than, say, in Bourke, the centre of which is Macquarie-street, has not been made clear, but the party evidently counts on the sympathies of Alderman Jones being with them again in whatever proposals the caucus may decide upon. Labour will probably get a walk over in Gipps, where Alderman W. P. Fitzgerald and ex-Alderman O'Connor, Alderman Macey having retired, are the candidates. From the large crowds that are assembling nightly to hear the various speakers the indications are that there will be a record vote on this occasion. The strength of the voting must necessarily influence the new council. A poor poll, interpreted as public apathy, cannot key up the city's governors; but a large poll, revealing an alert public, must necessarily remind the council that it is under close observation. Many of the candidates have been very generous of promises, and their verbal extravagance has revealed an ignorance of the city's finances and commitments. Varying estimates have been given of the debenture debt, and of the position of the several funds. The figures given by Alderman Stephen in his address published in the "Herald" yesterday, may be taken as authoritative, as he is the chairman of the finance committee.

No candidate is permitted to spend more than £50 in connection with the election. Details of all expenditure have to be furnished to the town clerk within seven days after the election, and if it is shown that any candidate has spent more than the stipulated sum it is provided that a penalty of £20 shall be imposed, and the election declared void.

For some days citizens will have noticed long sheds being put up in various parts of the city, 13 having already been erected. These are the polling booths, one of the structures occupying the centre of Moore-street.

BLIGH.

A large number of ratepayers assembled on Monday night at the corner of Victoria and Liverpool streets to hear addresses from Alderman M'Elhone and Mr. W. J. Cox, candidates for Bligh Ward. Mr. J. F. King occupied the chair, and briefly introduced the speakers.

Alderman M'Elhone, who had a good reception, devoted his speech to a severe criticism of the methods employed by Labour aldermen at present in the council, and Labour candidates now put forward for election. He contended that the affairs of the city, so far as they were the result of those aldermen who were not chained to a party wheel, were eminently satisfactory. For the last nine months however, the City Council had been simply a glorified Labour board. Night after night had been wasted in the discussion of wild-cat schemes and proposals that were only put forward to catch votes. The electors would live to regret it if the same state of affairs still existed for the next three years. He would tell them distinctly that he would decline to sit there if the same conditions prevailed, because he could not do any good under those circumstances. He declared that the position of the finances of the city left room for very little dissatisfaction. The electric lighting scheme showed a clear profit to the ratepayers of just on £22,000 up to September. With careful management, that profit next year would amount to £40,000. In the course of years the electric lighting scheme promised to represent so much as to practically give the ratepayers a free city.

A Voice: We want low rents.

The Candidate: Oh, well, I'm afraid I can't help you.

Continuing, Mr. M'Elhone said he was decidedly against the adult suffrage franchise. The present franchise was the most liberal in the world, and he would not vote for any further extension. He thought the workers had nothing to complain about. The council had been very liberal with their employees, and had nearly always paid wages in excess of wages board rates.

Mr. W. J. Cox spoke against the proposal for the payment of aldermen. The men who had made the city great had been the men who had given their services without fee or reward.

Alderman Thos. Hughes, M.L.C., delivered a vigorous speech. He said that the City Council to-day was really an immense business concern. There was no room in it for faddists and theorists, who could make attractive speeches, but who had no municipal experience and no commercial capacity. Neither would there be any opportunity to put the fads and theories into practice. There was no better test of a man's value to the city than the measure of success he had achieved in his private affairs.

Mr. John Garland and Mr. John Dennis also spoke, and a vote of confidence was carried in the candidates.

"Civiticus" writes:—If we wish "Tammany Hall" methods, or that the City Council should be directed by the "Trades Hall in Goulburn-street, then, by all means, let those candidates who are opposing the chosen candidates of Labour, all go to the poll. If we want good, sound civic government, then let those anti-Labour candidates, who have a good following, meet and decide by drawing lots, which two shall have the undivided support of all citizens who are against "Trades Hall" influence.

BOYS' BRIGADE.

NEW HEADQUARTERS.

LORD CHELMSFORD ON BOYS' CLUBS.

The corner of Riley and Arthur streets, Surry Hills, was gay with bunting yesterday afternoon. The partly-erected walls of the new building of the Boys' Brigade supported a platform, at one side of which preparations had been made for the laying of the foundation-stone. Attracted by the unusual event, a small crowd of the residents gathered around the spot, with several police keeping an orderly line. On the platform was erected a marquee. At 4 o'clock Lord Chelmsford, accompanied by Lady Chelmsford and Captain Dumaresq, drove up, and the function immediately commenced.

Sir James Fairfax (hon. treasurer) welcomed his Excellency. He explained in a short speech the history of the institution. It was, he said, first the Boys' Club. Afterwards the newsboys were brought into it, and it was called the Newsboys' Club. In course of time the title was again altered, and it became the Boys' Brigade. During the many years the institution had been in existence its establishment had been moved from place to place, till at last they had settled down in Fitzroy-street. That locality suited very well for a while. The promoters were not satisfied, however, and it was thought proper that they should look for a home of their own. During the time they had had a visit from Lord Jersey, then Governor of New South Wales, and he and Lady Jersey were good enough to entertain the boys at Government House. Lord Jersey gave £100 towards the building fund.

"Many persons in the community owe their success in life to their beginning in the Boys' Brigade," said Sir James Fairfax. "Some are in the Public Service, and some in businesses of their own. When you consider the number of years this institution has been operating, some hundreds—probably thousands—of boys must have passed through it."

Some years ago, when in England, he proceeded, he had attended an annual meeting of Dr. Barnardo's Institute for Boys. He was told then that the children's department in the gaol near by was almost empty, and he had put it down almost entirely to the influence of the institution.

"The record shows what we are trying to do, and we will work very hard to do it," he added. "The objects of the brigade are fully understood. We want to put up this building, and we want, of course, funds to do it with. When it is finished and paid for, we want an endowment fund to keep it going. It is the custom in some institutions to aim high, but I do think it is not out of place to say that the public ought to subscribe not less than £5000. The object is a good one, and I can bear testimony to the work of those who have been engaged in it."

Sir James Fairfax then asked Miss Milner Stephen (president of the ladies' committee) to hand his Excellency a silver trowel and a mallet.

Lord Chelmsford saw the stone dropped in its place, and, addressing the crowd, he pronounced the formula, "I have much pleasure in declaring this stone well and truly laid." Under the stone was placed a bottle containing the daily newspapers and the last annual report of the brigade.

His Excellency said that some time ago he had visited the institution. He had had some experience in connection with institutions of the kind, and he had arrived at this conclusion, together with the support in his opinion of a visitor who had come here on behalf of the Church of England Men's Society, that the club in Fitzroy-street was admirably managed, and was doing good work. Now, after 30 years, the work was going to spread itself. It had changed its site, and was going to finer premises. He had noticed that municipal elections were about to take place, and, while he had every confidence in our City Fathers, and believed they could do a great deal of good, yet he thought that not one of them could do such a fine piece of work as was done by this boys' club. Those who were mothers and fathers knew that when their boys were at a club they were doing well, and were out of mischief.

"I think," said his Excellency, "we can hardly over-estimate the value of the work of these institutions. It is in the nature of boys to get into mischief; it is only a sign of good health when they do. But we would rather they showed their vitality in a place like a club, where they could go in for boxing and other healthy sports, than among bad companions. You ladies and gentlemen who live in this vicinity will welcome this club, because you recognise that it is going to do a great deal of good for the boys of the district.

"You probably know from experience, even better than I do, what this club has to offer the boys. It has to offer gymnastics, boxing, and all sorts of recreation in the evening. It can also offer to the studiously inclined education in certain directions, which will enable the boys to grow up useful men.

"We have to remember that boys in a large city have one period in their lives more dangerous than any other, and that is the period when they are finishing with the school, when they haven't yet taken up any regular occupation. In England we try all we can to get all boys to go on to the evening school, but there is always bound to be a great leakage, because the boys feel their first freedom, and there is always the attractiveness of the streets. So in large cities such as this we must always welcome institutions of this sort." He hoped the function would bring the attention of the public to the useful work of the brigade, and induce others of similar nature to be established in various parts of the city, so that every district might be able to have its boys' club. Those who gave up their time to looking after the boys would find later on that if they were able to manage boys they would be able to manage men.

Mr. J. R. Love, a member of the committee, in thanking his Excellency and Lady Chelmsford for their attendance, said the building would be made sufficiently convenient for teaching, instructing, and amusing the young people. He hoped that in time it would become the headquarters of many similar institutions.

Donations amounting to £1060 were collected on the spot.

Among those present were Sir Henry Stephen, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bennett, Mrs. Malcolm Stephen, Mrs. E. W. Knox, the Misses Fairfax (England), Mr. J. O. Fairfax, Miss Fairfax, Mrs. Consett Stephen, Mrs. W. A. Monk, Miss Joyce Allen, Miss Peggy M'Arthur, Mrs. J. L. Suckling, Dr. and Mrs. Fairfax, Mrs. Hogarth Mackenzie, Mr. C. N. Kellick, Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Brownlow, Mrs. S. Ackman, Miss Una Ackman, Mr. and Mrs. Baumberg, Mesdames Reaney, Bottrell, Eury, F. Bail, Loewenthal, Lumsden, Carver, Lorang, Pascoe, and Quigley, and the hon. secretary, Mr. L. A. M. Stephen.

The architects of the building are Messrs. Halligan and Wilton, and the contractor is Mr. A. E. Burroughs.

BLIND AT PLAY.

ANNUAL REUNION.

The blind workers connected with the Industrial Blind Institution in William-street, held their annual picnic at Correy's Grounds, Cabarita, yesterday. During the afternoon various sports competitions were carried out.

At the dinner which was held subsequently, Mr. J. Nicholas said he had watched the progress of the institute year by year, which they would all admit had been wonderful. In fact, he doubted if there was its equal in any other part of the world. (Applause.) The inmates were proud of what the institution was doing for the blind, and they were doubly proud of their manager, Mr. Hedger. (Loud applause.)

Mr. Pickering said it was due to Mr. Hedger's efforts that the institution was in the proud position it occupied that day. There had been many unjust attacks made against it.

Mr. Hedger responded. He said he was delighted after many years' service to know that he had the goodwill of the blind. When he joined the institution in 1893 there were only 23 inmates in the institution. He was pleased to say the institute had done a large amount of good work in making blind men and women self-dependent, and able to earn their own living.

Mr. Downes, M.L.A., a member of the committee, and Mr. Sinclair, hon. secretary, also spoke.

THE NEW CABLE.

The Pacific Board's new cable, placing Sydney and Auckland in direct communication, has now been successfully laid to Muriwai Bay, a distance of 21 miles from Auckland. The Silvertown has paid out 1230 nautical miles of cable between Bondi Beach and Muriwai at a speed of 7½ knots. No hitch of any kind occurred, the weather being favourable throughout. The engineers in charge of the expedition are well satisfied with the work.

It is confidently anticipated that the whole work will be finished and the cable made available to public use before Christmas.

THE NEW BUILDING FOR THE BOYS' BRIGADE.

HIS EXCELLENCY LORD CHELMSFORD DECLARING THE FOUNDATION-STONE WELL AND TRULY LAID.

LATE SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The "magpie" grass track was available to trainers at a special fee at Randwick yesterday morning. Odist and Crown Grant disposed of a mile in 1m 50s, while Miss Enid negotiated seven furlongs in good style, Silesia accompanying him over the last four furlongs. Prince Lack went leisurely over six furlongs.

On the tan track Miocene put in a useful mile gallop, and Boy Blue over a round went strongly. After doing strong work, St. Medoc finished up with a sprint home. Midge B put in a useful six furlongs, and Coronata disposed of five furlongs usefully. Royal Merv did easy work only, and Moorilla put in a strong round. Gigandra did easy work, and Mirabexia spurted nicely over half a mile. Salarino put in a steady mile gallop, and Easter Tide ran once round at her leisure. Lochano got over a mile strongly, and useful work was done by Menes, Flaxen, Malibus, En Haut, Hallmark, Seise, and Kingbrook.

The Kensington Racing Club's cup meeting will provide an attraction for patrons of pony and galloway racing this afternoon, when a particularly interesting bill of fare is down for discussion. The pick of the small horses are engaged, and as the track is in first-class order after the recent rain, a most interesting afternoon's sport should result. The transit arrangements include special trams from Circular Quay and the Railway Station, at frequent intervals, while the ordinary Coogee and Long Bay services will also be available. Owing to the number of entries received, which will necessitate the running of some of the races in divisions, it has been decided to start the first race at 1.30 p.m. The results of the racing may be anticipated as under:—Maiden Handicap.—First Division, Get On or Willie Merv; second division, Lorna or Mungay. Fourteen Hands Handicap: First Division, Mayfair or Lady Blackberry; second division, Snipfield or Bobadil Maid. Kensington Cup: First Division, Whisper or Ragtime; second division, Revere or Resolved. Encourage Stakes: Tanothea, Jackomy, Hazelberry. Fourteen-one Handicap: Wild Fuchsia, Native Rose, Racial. Welter Mile: Spyglass, M.K., Urania. Fourteen-two Handicap: Real Silk, All There, Lady Sydney.

Mr. J. Lamrock, the secretary of the Moorefield Racing Club, states that the horse trains will have to leave the Central Railway Station earlier than usual on Saturday, and also that orders for horse boxes must be made on Friday.

The Wollongong Jockey Club are out with a five-event programme for their meeting on Tuesday next. Entries close with the secretary, Mr. J. Denmeade, on Monday next at 4 p.m.

CYCLING AND MOTORING.

NOTES.

Don Kirkham, the Victorian road rider, perhaps the best long-distance rider in Australia, states that he will attempt the 100 miles out and home unpaced record next week. L. Meredith, the English champion, holds the record at present, for 4h 52m 51 4-5s. The Victorian western district roads will be used. Kirkham, is to be checked and timed by Mr. G. R. Broadbent, who will follow in a car.

A record of 532 miles in 24 hours, 250 miles being covered in the first 12 hours, is very creditable travelling for a 3½-h.p. motor cycle. It is the record for that particular standard of power machine for Australasia. The figures were put up last week by a South Australian motor cyclist, Mr. F. C. Custance, on his Dunlop-tyred motor. While this is a record for a 3½-h.p. motor, the best figures in Australia for a motor cycle record ride stand to the credit of P. Yeend, who drove a 4½-h.p. motor 629 miles in 24 hours.

The executive of the N.S.W. Cyclists' Union decided to present the prizes won at the Speedwell 50-mile road race at the next monthly meeting of the council, to be held on December 11 or 18. The list issued by the hon. secretary of the union is as follows:—E. K. Lambert (20m), 3h 1m 9s, 1; W. Gerrard (13m 40s), 2h 54m 50s, 2; R. A. Wagschall (15m), 2h 56m 11s, 3; D. Kirk (scr.), 2h 42m 7s, 4; J. M. Keen (10m), 2h 52m 6s, 5. Absolute fastest, D. Kirk, 2h 42m 7s; fastest unplaced, G. L. R. Walcott, 2h 45m 10s; second fastest unplaced, G. D. Anderson, 2h 47m 11s; youngest, C. Lassau; oldest, C. Grierson, scr.; first, largest club entry, C. A. Grierson (Marrickville); first, country rider, A. C. Martens (Kurri Kurri).

MOTOR TRADERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Motor Traders' Association has decided to extend the sphere of its operations by creating a new section, which will include all those engaged in the motoring trade who are not eligible for membership as importers. The new branch, which is to be known as the garage section, has been brought into existence in response to a widespread demand from country traders, who wish to secure the advantages of membership of the M.T.A., but have hitherto found themselves debarred. It is anticipated that a large number of firms, both in the city and country, will become members of the garage section, and the operations of the M.T.A. will thus be extended over the whole of the State, instead of being confined merely to the city.

In order to establish this garage section, several amendments to the constitution were necessary, and these, having been drafted by the association's lawyer, were unanimously adopted at the annual general meeting, held on Monday, under the presidency of Mr. Alick McNeil. The annual report and balance-sheet, which have already been published, were adopted without dissent. The following officers were elected for 1913:—President, Mr. A. H. Davies; vice-presidents, Messrs. Alick McNeil and W. B. Larke; treasurer, Mr. G. C. Hamilton; auditor, Mr. J. M. Hanlon; secretary, Mr. J. F. Rosesoley; general committee, Messrs. W. G. Easy, W. J. C. Elliott, J. M. Hanlon, G. F. Hill, W. R. Hipsley, G. H. Kloster, C. J. Moulder, Roy W. Sandford, H. A. Sweeny, and A. P. Wright.

An amendment to the constitution was also made, providing for the admission to membership of the manufacturers, as well as the importers, of motor tyres. The question of the commission allowed to purchasers of motor tyres was discussed, and it was decided that the general committee should go into the matter, and arrange a conference with the tyre firms.

The certificates won at the recent hill-climbing and petrol consumption contests were presented by Mr. W. B. Larke, vice-president, as follows:—Messrs. R. A. Carter, Crossley, first prizes, hill-climb and petrol test; A. P. Wright, Armstrong-Whitworth, second prize hill-climb; Dalgety and Co., Delaunay Belville, third prize, hill-climb; Davies and Fehon Motor Ltd., Benz, second prize, petrol consumption test; H. A. Schroeder, Ravenhoff, third prize, petrol consumption test.

MOTOR CYCLE RECORD.

The hon. secretary (J. A. Fair) of the Motor Cycle Club of N.S.W. set himself a hard task in essaying to break the motor cycle road record from Sydney to Melbourne. The existing record stands to the credit of J. E. Yee, who covered the distance, 575 miles, in 31 hours 19 minutes. J. A. Fair arranged a schedule of 30 hours. It was:—

Sydney G.P.O., leave 4.10 p.m. Monday.
Goulburn, 10.40 p.m. Monday.
Yass, 1.10 a.m. Tuesday.
Gundagai, 4.40 a.m. Tuesday.
Germanton, 10.10 a.m. Tuesday.
Albury, 11.40 a.m. Tuesday.
Benalla, 4.40 p.m. Tuesday.
Melbourne, arrive 10.10 p.m. Tuesday.

Mr. W. W. Reynolds, of the Auto Cycle Union, sent Fair away from Sydney to schedule time. He was accompanied by A. Fraser as far as Goulburn, which place was reached at 10.19 p.m. Yass was reached at 1.10 a.m., where Fair had a rest, and left at 2.20 a.m. He reached Gundagai at 4.40. Germanton was passed to time. The schedule was kept at Albury. Fair is evidently going strongly, as he covered the 130 miles between Gundagai to Albury in 6 hours. This is practically the worst part of the road, and to average 20 miles an hour over this stretch is very creditable driving. Albury to Melbourne left him another 208 miles to go, and if he only averages 17½ miles an hour he will equal Yee's time. He had 11 hours by his schedule time to cover the Victorian stage. Fair is riding a 3½-h.p. Speedwell, equipped with Dunlop tyres.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Fair arrived at the General Post Office at seven minutes to 10 o'clock to-night, having completed the journey in 29 hours 43 minutes. The previous record was 31 hours 19 minutes.

QUESTION OF REPRESENTATION.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

At a meeting of the Queensland Rowing Association last night, the question of whether Queensland should go on with the interstate race or not was discussed. Mr. Waugh said the matter had come to a serious stage for two reasons, one being the apparent want of a crew to efficiently represent the State; the second was the financial position. For some time past the crews had not been up to interstate form, and it would be almost an absurdity to claim the right to represent the State without going to the country clubs. They were bound to row in Adelaide, and if they wished their turn to come in Brisbane they wanted to know whether the country clubs should contribute so much per head towards the expenses. Mr. Kelly, of Wide Bay, said his club was not in favour of the race being continued. Mr. Gates, of Bundaberg, read a letter from his club which indicated the likelihood of its approving of the proposal that in event of its securing a win in the interstate Trial Eights, and being recompensed for the Brisbane trip, it would be willing to undertake the trip to Adelaide. Ultimately a motion was carried that the Q.A.R.A. be urged to use its utmost endeavours to take immediate steps to boat the best eight possible.

A scheme has now been arranged for the administration of Mr. Ratan Tata's gift of £1400 a year for three years to London University to promote the study of methods for the prevention and relief of poverty. A bureau is to be formed for the provision of information, lectures are to be delivered, and literature is to be published on the sub-

MAIN ROADS BOARD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Anent the publication of a report in your issue of the 23rd inst., under the above heading, wherein the Minister for Works (Mr. Griffith) states that the Guyra Shire Council notified by letter their desire for the formation of a Roads Board to supervise the main roads, I am directed by the president (Mr. Dutton) to state that no official communication whatsoever has been sent to his department in regard to the Main Roads Board question. At the last meeting of the council it was unanimously decided to co-operate with the Sutherland Shire Council protesting against the imposition of a main roads board on the public, and in furthering the matter the Parliamentary representatives of the shire area (Messrs. Lonsdale, McDonald and Thomas) have been written to asking them to place before Parliament this council's objections to the constitution of such a body.

I am to state that my council has given the main roads their most careful and urgent attention; the road plant has been worked on the main roads ever since its purchase some twelve months ago, and council courts Government inspection of its main roads. My council contends that there is no gainsaying the fact that the proposed Board is the thin edge of the wedge to burst up "local control," and in the case of some shires—and it is believed there are some—it will be necessary for them to "shut up shop" when the main roads are taken, as there will be very few roads left (if any) to be cared for.

I have further to point out that as no road classification has so far been made public, it is surmised that the old Government road classification will be adopted. What positions will councils be in who have through roads (as is the case of this shire) that have never received classification under the past Government regime? Will the roads board be entitled to claim them as soon as they find that the councils have brought them into first class condition? In conclusion, my Council would like to know from the Minister what is wrong with section 115 of the Local Government Act?

I am, etc.,
JNO. E. PHELAN,
Shire Clerk.

Council Chambers, Guyra,
November 25.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Although it seems to be the policy of your paper to boom the roads board proposal, I trust you will allow a representative of those shires who do not see eye to eye with you to give publicity through your pages to an emphatic protest against the establishment of the proposed board.

I wish to refer to the letter of Mr. Griffin in your issue of the 19th inst.

I quite agree with Mr. Griffin when he says his work as president of the Good Roads Association is helpful to his work in the cause of local government—but local government in this case means municipalities.

The history of the movement to my way of looking at it is, the municipalities having no endowment under the present L. G. Act resent the shires receiving an allowance towards the cost of the maintenance of the hundreds of miles of main roads in their areas, and although the majority of shires have spent their endowment, and in many instances very much more that their endowment on their main roads, the roads that seem such a thorn in the side of the Good Roads Association still remain in an unsatisfactory condition. The reason of this is simply the bad roads exist principally in the municipalities.

Some shires have erected shire boundary posts, but in most cases a blind man being driven alone the road can tell by the bumping of the vehicle when he gets inside the municipal area.

When the town areas were laid out they were made too large, and now, after years of taxation of an unjust nature, some measure of relief is promised by the L. G. Amending Bill.

Mr. Griffin says there is some "sort of a departmental board or committee," which at the present time distributes endowments, and that sort of committee is to be the real pure thing itself by the addition of Mr. Griffin's name. This sort of a board is composed of the highest officials of the L. G. Department, and although I have all along advocated shire and municipal representation on the endowment committee, I never stooped to try to belittle the gentlemen who at present constitute that board.

It would be strange indeed if the bill was not in Mr. Griffin's eyes a "tremendous improvement on the present system of endowment." This bill proposes to take away £250,000 per annum from the shires and place Mr. Griffin and Co. in the position of having a good solid cut at this amount by way of endowment to municipalities.

To sum the whole position up shortly, certain main roads are in a state of disrepair, the shires executive assert the principal roads complained of are in the outlying parts of the municipal areas. These have to be repaired. Instead of honestly facing the situation and asking for endowment to municipalities the Minister has been prevailed upon to take £250,000 from the shires and place it to the credit of a board to maintain these roads. Well, when the board has been in office 12 months we will find £249,000 of the amount has been spent in the outer municipal areas.

For some months past Mr. Campbell, the secretary of our association, has been trying to arrange an interview with the Minister for Works for our executive to protest against the formation of this board, and other matters in connection with the bill; but, so far, he has not been able to induce Mr. Griffith to meet us, although I see he has had an interview with Mr. Griffin's association, who urge that the bill become law, since he was asked to receive us.

We have gone through the bill clause by clause, and the unanimous conclusion of the executive is that if it is passed into law local government as far as shires are concerned will become a dead letter.

Mr. Griffin's concluding sentence lets the cat out of the bag. "It appears to be they (municipalities) have now before them a proposal which will save to them and their ratepayers an expenditure of thousands of pounds each year." Let me add, money taken from shires and handed to municipalities.

I am, etc., R. J. HIGGINS,
President, Shires Association.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I herewith attach copies of letters received this morning from Canobolas Shire Council, having reference to the proposed Main Roads Board, and the Departmental reply, part of which appeared in your issue of Saturday. In the Departmental reply Canobolas Shire Council was included among those that were stated to be in favour of a roads board.

I attach copy of the letter addressed by that Council to the Minister, under date November 13, and I would ask that you will kindly publish these so that the public, and our legislators in particular, may be more fairly seized with the position than the Minister is at the present time. I am, etc.,

T. I. CAMPBELL, Secretary,
Shires Association of N.S.W.

[COPY.]

Canobolas Shire Council,
Orange, November 25, 1912.

Sir,—[illegible] issue of the "Herald" I notice particulars of the association's protest against the constitution of the proposed Main Roads Board, and also copy of letter forwarded to your association in reply. In the reply aforementioned, the Minister is reported to have stated that 30 shires and 57 municipalities had written to the department asking for a roads board to be constituted to supervise main roads. Amongst the names of the shires stated appears that of Canobolas. This is clearly a mistake, as this council is strongly opposed to the constitution of the proposed main roads board, and their attitude in this connection is clearly defined in a letter which was written to the Hon. the Minister for Works on the 13th inst., a copy of which is enclosed herewith for the information of your executive. I will be glad, if provided the "Herald" report is correct, you will immediately take steps to contradict the statement that the Canobolas Shire Council favours the establishment of a main roads board.

Yours faithfully
(Sgd.) C. T. FLEMING, Shire Clerk.

T. I. CAMPBELL, Esq., Secretary, Shires' Association of New South Wales, 7 O'Connell-street, Sydney.

Canobolas Shire Council,
Orange, November 13, 1912.

The Hon. the Minister for Works, Sydney.

Sir,—Re the Main Roads Bill now before Parliament, I am directed to forward you copy of resolution passed by the council unanimously at meeting held yesterday:—"That the council of the Shire of Canobolas, hereby enter a strong protest against the passing of the proposed Main Roads Bill, for the following reasons:—(a) That it is a serious blow at the fundamental principle of local government, and is equivalent to a vote of censure on the whole of the shires and (b) That its effect will be to impair the usefulness of local governing bodies, and revive the old system of centralisation, with all its evils; and (c) That a mileage vote for main roads would have made ample provision for meeting the case in defaulting shires and municipalities, without the appointment of a cumbersome board, and the consequent interference with the internal management of local governing bodies, and (d) That a return be presented showing the amounts expended on main and minor roads which in our case, at any rate, will clearly show that the Canobolas Shire Council has done its duty, and does not merit the censure cast on shires generally by the proposed bill." The "return" referred to in paragraph (d) has been prepared, and we find that the total expenditure on roads, streets, bridges, etc., from January 1, 1907, to October 31, 1912, is £28,911 1s 1d, and that out of this sum the amount expended on main roads running through the shire is £12,252 1s 9d, or a sum equal to within a fraction of 46 per cent. of the total amount expended on public works. The details of these figures can, and will, be furnished to you if desired.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) C. T. FLEMING, Shire Clerk.

NEWTOWN JUBILEE.

The Newtown Harriers will conduct a 220 yards handicap, open to all members of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association, in conjunction with the Newtown jubilee celebrations on Thursday, 12th December. The weekly club meeting will take place at the Sydney Sports Ground this evening.

BOXING.

McCOY v BERNSTEIN.

To-night, at the Stadium, Herb. McCoy, the Australian lightweight champion, will be called on to defend his title for the second time within a month, the challenger being Leon Bernstein, the French lightweight, who, it will be remembered, was decisively beaten by Hock Keys a few weeks back. Bernstein on that occasion showed great speed and skill, and claims that his defeat was brought about through his not being able to devote sufficient time to his training. For to-night's contest he has undergone a very searching preparation with Paul Til, and, as a result, the French camp is hopeful of leading in another winner. The contest will commence at 8.30, and will be handled by Mr. Arthur Scott.

MEHEGAN OUTPOINTS WARD.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

Hughie Mehegan, the Australian lightweight, defeated Ward on points in a 20-round contest last night.

The decision was badly received by the spectators, and Mr. Hulls, the referee, was mobbed.

There were 3000 spectators, and at the outset Mehegan was a pronounced favourite.

Owing to Mehegan's crouching Ward's punches lacked power, though he constantly drove his left into the Australian's face.

When the decision was given the spectators boohooed, threw stools, and attempted to rush the officials. The latter stepped into the ring surrounded by the boxers Owen Moran, Dr. Scroll, and Freddie Welsh and shortly after the police were called in, and the demonstration ceased.

CONTEST STOPPED.

PARKES, Tuesday.

A match at the National Stadium on Saturday night, between Devlyn, a recent arrival, and a local man named Dodd, was stopped by the police in the second round owing to the continual disregard of the rules respecting "clean breaks."

LONDON, Nov. 26.

In the contest to-night, between Mehegan and Ward, the latter was declared defeated after the twentieth round.

The decision was badly received by the spectators, and Mr. Hulls, the referee, was mobbed.

"THE SPENDING IMPULSE."

CHECK IN DEPOSITS.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of New South Wales was held yesterday, the president, Sir Normand MacLaurin, presiding.

The chairman stated that, before moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, he would, as usual, give some explanation of the figures, and how they stood in comparison with twelve months ago.

The circulation was less by £153,000, which represented the amount of the old issue retired during the year. They no longer issued their own notes in the Commonwealth, so that for some time to come there must be a gradual decrease in this item until they got down to the New Zealand issue, which alone remained to them.

The deposits showed the small increase of £290,000 in the aggregate. The fixed deposits from the public showed a fair increase, the current accounts derived from the same source a small increase; while on the other hand there was a considerable decrease in the aggregate of the deposits held from the Commonwealth and the various State Governments which kept accounts with them. The arrest in the growth of deposits was a feature of banking generally in Australasia at present. It might, in brief, be ascribed to a spending impulse—public and private—which had arisen out of a rather rapid expansion of the deposits in the few preceding years. This impulse had outstripped, for the time being, the accumulative power derived from the money receipts for our primary products. The expenditure referred to had manifested itself in directions which had caused an increase in the imports, and as there had been no corresponding increase in the exports, the annual savings of the people, as represented by deposits, had decreased.

The bills payable account to some extent reflected the situation likewise. There was a large increase here of £671,000, but in this case the increase was to a great extent due to trade requirements of an exceptional nature on the import side, which might be viewed as abnormal and not likely to recur.

On the asset side, coin and its equivalents had decreased £350,000. But short call money in London was more by £206,000. Government and municipal securities were less by £137,000, while bills receivable in London and remittances in transit were more by £268,000, due to operations in connection with the bills payable expansion. The aggregate of all these accounts, which they consider to be their specially liquid assets, was only some £35,000 less than at September, 1911, which was a purely nominal difference.

The loans and advances, which include bills negotiated in London on Australasia, represented the obligations of clients at this end of the world. There had been an increase of £535,000, which was a small increase compared with that of the preceding year. To some extent this increase was due to bona fide requirements of traders arising out of increased imports. But a good deal of it arose from commitments of country clients in connection with extensions of their holdings, more particularly in relation to the cutting up of large estates for closer settlement. This state of affairs he referred to at the last half-yearly meeting, when he said that they had deemed it needful to put some restriction on their borrowing clients. They still consider it desirable to maintain a strictly conservative policy, consistently, however, with a reasonable support of legitimate trading requirements, especially those in connection with the financing of the wool and wheat crops, which at this time of the year called for a good deal of money to move them. They hoped that the steadying influence which bankers generally throughout Australasia in the exercise of a prudent forethought were using towards their borrowing clients would soon have the effect of restoring the financial equilibrium. But it could not be too clearly understood that this steadying influence to be thoroughly effective must be exerted all round by those who had the control of the large affairs of the country—public and private. This was applicable to legislation as well as to action.

The past winter had been characterised by variable weather. The autumn was dry, and the outlook at one time was unfavourable. There were considerable losses in stock at that stage, but fortunately the season took a turn, and fair rains relieved the immediate situation. Rain was still wanted in several districts of this State, but it was expected that the shortage in the wool clip would be to some extent counterbalanced by an increase in the price; that there would be a fair quantity of wheat for export and that metals and some of the smaller exports would help to swell the total, so that there were some hopes that the yield of exports on which so much of the prosperity of the country depended would not be seriously short of last year. It remained for those who were controlling the imports to do their part in bringing about the restoration of the equilibrium between exports and imports, which was necessary to ensure a return to a perfectly satisfactory position.

Acting on the power conferred by them in clause 38 of the deed of settlement—one of those recently amended by the shareholders—extended leave of absence was granted by the board to their colleague, Sir Charles M'Kellar, for the rest of this year. Sir Charles had taken his seat on the London board as one of the directors of that board, and his presence and counsel there had been of great value to the bank. Beyond that, in his visits to various important centres of Europe, he had gained much information on his part, and disseminated useful information about the bank, which they felt sure would be productive of much benefit. He was due to return to Sydney early in January next.

The president's motion that the report and balance-sheet be adopted was seconded by Mr. Thomas Buckland, and carried unanimously.

Mr. E. W. Fosbery, M.L.C., was elected a director, and Messrs. S. E. Laidley and A. G. Milson auditors.

INCREASE IN CAPITAL.

Subsequently a special general meeting of the proprietors was held for the purpose of considering the propriety of increasing the capital of the bank, and the proposals of the board of directors in regard thereto.

Sir Normand MacLaurin said that, in his remarks to the shareholders in May last, on the half-yearly figures of March 31, he stated that the board intended to bring forward a proposal for further increasing the capital of the bank by the issue of £500,000 new shares, pro rata, at par. They had given effect to the intention then expressed by bringing forward for acceptance by this statutory general meeting of shareholders the resolutions which he now submitted to them, and which had been duly circularised among the shareholders. He could not do better than repeat the words which he used six months ago: "The board considers that the best interests of all concerned are more adequately served by maintaining a high ratio of shareholders' funds to the resources derived from the public than by a high rate of distribution on a smaller ratio of capital." It was quite true that the expansion of the bank's figures, as they appeared in the balance-sheet, did not show the large increase which had appeared between previous recent years. Nevertheless, the business of the bank showed an increasing activity and turnover, which, while it made for profits, also called for a full measure of their own resources to satisfactorily cope with it. The board felt confident that they would agree with this policy, and he had accordingly much pleasure in moving the resolutions.

The resolutions were adopted.

NEWCASTLE.

THE MARKET-STREET CROSSING.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

A special meeting was held at the council chambers last night in connection with the Market-street crossing being closed to pedestrian traffic, six persons being summoned to appear at the Court for using the crossing instead of the bridge. The Mayor of Waratah moved that a solicitor be engaged to defend the six persons, that an adjournment be asked for a week, and that in the event of a conviction an appeal should be made. Ald. Pitts seconded the motion, which was carried.

UNDETECTABLE HAIR STAIN.

We have our own hair staining preparation that is REAL, NATURAL stain. Most "Hair stains" can be detected at once—but not ours. It is in a rank by itself—different and superior. You can never detect its work—looks so remarkably well. It is thoroughly worth your trying, because none could be better, yet many are more expensive.

It does not harm the hair, but, on the contrary, nourishes the roots and improves its growth. Not greasy, not dull—just absolutely natural. All shades, and costs no more than others.

A LITTLE POWDER FOR THE FACE.

You say that you like "a little powder for the face." That is quite reasonable. But what powder? You haven't an idea. You take the one that somebody commends, or the one whose odour appeals to you. Of course, if you happen to have a greasy skin, and get a fatty powder, you simply make your trouble worse. If, on the other hand, you have a dry skin and happen on an absorbent powder, you hasten the final ruin of your complexion.

MADAME RUBINSTEIN is the first Face Specialist to differentiate between dry, moist, oily, and normal skins when advising the use of powders. She therefore supplies the NOVENA POUDRE for dry and normal skins, and the VALAZE COMPLEXION POWDER for greasy, overmoist skins. Each in three tints, 2/, 3/, and 5/ a box, postage 3d. Of liquid Powders there is the VALAZE SNOW LOTION (a superb Viennese preparation for normal skins, price 3/6, and 6d postage.

VALAZE SKIN FOOD is an ideal skin corrective, preserves and beautifies. It is Nature's own skin replenisher and nourisher. The price of Valaze is 3/6 and 6/6 a jar, postage 6d.

VALAZE LIQUIDINE overcomes many undesirable conditions, amongst which are greasiness, shine, coarseness, and over-moistness, and removes and prevents pimples, blackheads, acne, and blotches, also undue flushing of the nose and face, price 5/ and 8/6 a bottle, postage 6d.

VALAZE LIP LUSTRE, protects the lips from the wind and cold, prevents and cures sores, cracks, chaps, and imparts a natural colour which cannot be displaced by biting or wetting, price 2/ and 3/, postage 3d.

Dr. LYKUSKI'S BLACKHEAD and OPEN PORE CURE banishes these disfigurements. It closes enlarged pores, cures a greasy, coarse skin, and assists in preserving a healthy complexion. By its use the skin is perfectly cleansed, effectually braced and stimulated to healthy action. Price 2/10 posted.

Write for Mme. RUBINSTEIN'S Book, "BEAUTY IN THE MAKING," which will be sent to any address on receipt of 3d to defray the cost of postage. Valaze preparations, obtainable from all chemists, or direct from

DESTROYED BY

DANNEBROG.

A BLESSING TO WOMANKIND.

MADAME FROKJAR, of 165 Pitt-street, Sydney, is known as a benefactor to womankind. Why? The answer is simple and lies in the word DANNEBROG, a word famous throughout the Commonwealth as an incomparable remedy for Superfluous Hairs. Madame FROKJAR was once a popular masseuse, known even at FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HOUSE, Melbourne. Her pity for women suffering from Superfluous Hairs led her to practise with DANNEBROG, which she had brought with her from Northern Europe. Dannebrog is a delicate, highly sensitive remedy, as genuine as truth itself, and as pure as morning dew. Its effect on hair is remarkable, as hundreds of grateful clients freely testify. They refer to Dannebrog as a blessing to womankind. Only one fee, and success shown before payment. Country clients treated by post. Consultations and pamphlets free.
